Taft Tells How to Balance National Budget

CONGRESS SHIES AT PRESIDENT'S DEFENSE TAXES

May Draft Program of Its Own.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Congressional opposition grew today against President Roosevelt's demand for 460 million dollars in new taxes to finance increased armament expenditures.

Senator Pat Harrison.

Meanwhile there was increasing support for the proposal made by Senator Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee, to subject Mr. Roosevelt's entire fiscal program, submitted to congress in his budget message yesterday, to a searching examination by a 24 member joint congressional committee.

The purpose of this inquiry would be the establishment of closer cooperation between the congressional appropriating and revenue raising committees, further reductions wherever possible in the expenditures of 8 billion 424 million dollars recommended by Mr. Roosevelt for the fiscal year 1941, and a determination of the realistic requirements of the national defense.

Would Determine Needs.

Senator Harrison said the matter of raising 460 million dollars in new taxes was not an easy task. He believes that before undertaking it congress should ascertain for itself whether there is any justification for increasing the armaments expenditures by that amount.

Senate Republicans agreed at a conference today to support the Harrison proposal, which was indorsed individually by many influential Democrats. There was some coolness toward the plan among Democratic members of the house ways and means committee, but Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] declared after a conference with President Roosevelt that he favored it.

"I have always thought that there should be close coöperation in shaping appropriation and tax legislation and some such joint study might avoid a lot of long drawn out controversy," Doughton said. "It shouldn't take long. I believe 60 days would be more than ample."

Republicans Would Go Further.

The conference of senate Republicans suggested an extension of the Harrison proposal to the creation of an additional joint committee to study the question of national defense appropriations and survey the national military policy. Senator Harrison accepted this recommendation in principle but felt that the result could be accomplished by calling members of the military and naval affairs committees before the joint fiscal committee.

Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, said there was almost unanimous opposition at the minority conference to any plan for further taxes at this session. The Republicans took the position, he said, that further increases in the deficit and debt should be prevented by further decreases in appropriations rather than increasing the already staggering tax burden.

Would Not Affect Deficit.

If congress should reject the President's recommendation for 460 million dollars in new taxes to finance a so-called emergency armaments program, and should reduce the national defense estimates in that amount, the result would not affect the deficit for the next fiscal year. The two items would cancel each other.

The President estimated the actual deficit, or the difference between prospective revenues and disbursements, at 2 billion 876 million dollars. He arrived at this figure by estimating a decrease of $675,000,000 in expenditures and an increase of $382,000,000 in revenues over the current fiscal year.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, said the

IT CAN BE DONE, HE REPLIES TO ROOSEVELT DARE

Lists 5 Steps That Must Be Taken.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio accepted a direct challenge from President Roosevelt last night and presented a program which he said would balance the national budget at about $7,000,000,000 by 1942.

"Mr. President, Here's How to Balance the Budget," was the title taken by Taft, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, for a speech before the Chicago Bar association. It was in answer to a recent dare from the President to show how the budget could be balanced in two years.

Earlier Senator Taft spoke before 1,000 at a luncheon in the Union League club on "Economic Planning Without a Plan." He dwelt upon contradictions, conflicts, and inconsistencies between departments and New Deal agencies at Washington. After seven years, he said, these still retard recovery and employment. He added:

"The people look forward to the 1940 election as a time to clean house."

Sets Forth Five Steps.

In last night's speech Taft set forth five steps which he deems will accomplish the job of balancing the federal budget. The only alternative to a balanced budget, he said, is national bankruptcy thru inflation. Taft's five steps were:

1. The President must wish to and be determined to balance the budget.
2. Eliminate bureaus, reduce number of employés, reorganize.
3. Change methods of handling relief, housing, agriculture, government loans.
4. End grants for local public works; reduce federal public works; reduce subsidies.
5. Play no favorites; subject army and navy estimates to critical analysis.

The Ohioan called the President's offer to give him a prize if he could show how to turn the trick an admission that Roosevelt "is unable to get the government or the country back to normal." The President's budget message to congress, he said, moved "very gingerly" in the right direction.

Sees No Desire to Save.

"But a good deal more will have to be done," he added, "before the President can claim his own prize. I question the genuineness of the President's new-found desire to reduce spending. I have seen no evidence of a desire to abandon the deficit borrowing policy. No government planner suggests or even asks where the money is coming from to pay his increased expenses.

"There is no evidence that the President wants to stop spending," he said after sketching the New Deal effort six months ago "to force thru congress the notorious spend-lend bill, authorizing expenditures close to five billion dollars by government departments without obtaining any appropriation by congress, a new spending trick developed by the New Deal spenders."

Borrow 10 Million a Day.

The Ohioan said the deficit this year will be close to 4 billion dollars. The President, he added, has not vetoed a single spending bill since the bonus bill in 1935.

"Think of it," he said. "Every 24 hours the government is borrowing and spending, over and above all the taxes it collects, the huge sum of 10 million dollars. Every three days the government is borrowing more than the value of all the farms in an average rural American county."

Unless the government balances its budget, he asserted, inflation may come sooner or later. And then "a man with money in the savings bank still has the money, but he can't buy anything with it." Inflation, he said, would make the depression of 1932 look like Coolidge prosperity.

Seeks Housekeeping Plan.

A suggestion from Taft was that a small committee of experienced men should be created to plan the government's housekeeping "in the light of

NOT JUST TRYIN' TO GET BY, ARE YOU, FRANKLIN?

William Powell Wed; 'Scarlett' Sued by Mate

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 5 [Special].—Names of stars high in the Hollywood sky figured in today's matrimonial news. The cast of characters included:

Laurence Olivier, British star of "Wuthering Heights."

Powell and Miss Lewis were married on a dude ranch near Las Vegas, Nev. Miss Leigh and Olivier were sued for divorce by their respective mates in the courts of London, England. Miss Leigh's husband, Herbert Leigh Holman, a barrister, named Olivier as co-respondent.

Powell's Third Marriage.

Powell's marriage, his third, caught the Hollywood gossips by surprise. Few even knew that he and Miss Lewis were acquainted. He has avoided attachments since the death of glamorous Jean Harlow on June 7, 1937. They were engaged.

Powell's first wife was Eileen Wilson, now employed in a technical position in the movies. His second was Actress Carole Lombard, now Mrs. Clark Gable. Today's bride has appeared in several films, including one entitled "She Couldn't Say No." She will return to work Monday as the feminine lead in "Forty Little Mothers."

Powell's best remembered rôles were in "The Thin Man" series. He and Miss Lewis were married beneath a bower of flowers by Justice of the Peace B. D. Hickman. The blue eyed bride wore a blue flowered dress with matching turban. She is 5 feet tall and weighs 100 pounds.

Frolicking in Snow.

Vivien Leigh was frolicking in the snow at the Lake Arrowhead mountain resort as her husband put her friendship with Olivier on record by naming the latter as co-respondent in the London suit.

She and Olivier first met in England. A year ago, when Miss Leigh was visiting Hollywood, their friendship was renewed. They were seen together frequently. Last month they flew to Atlanta, Ga., for the premiere of "Gone with the Wind." Olivier also has a part in that picture.

Friends believe they will be married when the two divorces are granted. He has been separated from his wife, Jill Esmond, another English actress.

Neither Olivier nor Miss Leigh would comment on the divorce actions. A studio representative, however, said they hoped to be free to marry soon.

FATHER DIVINE PLUCKS FINE FEATHERS OF HIS ANGELS, ONE CHARGES

New York, Jan. 5 [Special].—Thomas Brown, a Negro butler who no longer believes that Father Divine is God, testified today in the suit he and his wife, Verinda, have brought against the Harlem cult leader.

A capacity crowd in the Supreme court chamber laughed often as Brown, whose heavenly designation in the Divine flock was "Onward Universe," declared that the "Messiah" did him out of sixteen suits, including tails, tuxedos, and swallows.

Soon after he joined the cult, "Mr. Universe" testified, Father Divine began to send his male angels with orders to "fix 'em up." It wasn't long until all his suits were gone, Brown testified, so he told Father Divine he needed some clothes himself. Whereupon, he said, Father Divine sent him a pair of overalls and two pairs of long drawers.

Hands Freeze in Pockets When He Falls Into Lake

Ernest E. Jack, 1428 Maple avenue, Evanston, went to the Grove street pier yesterday to look at the beautiful ice formations made by Lake Michigan. He leaned over too far and fell in, breaking thru the thin ice. Jack pulled himself out and two passersby carried him to a home near by. When police arrived they found Jack's hands were in his pockets. They had to cut his trousers to get them out, because they were frozen fast.

PHILADELPHIA NAVY YARD IS BUSIER THAN IN WORLD WAR DAYS

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 5 (AP).—More workers are employed at the Philadelphia navy yard now than during the peak days of the world war, the commandant's office announced today. The yard has 13,594 men building or repairing naval ships and aircraft. Top employment during the world war was 13,156. Under construction are the 35,000 ton battleship Washington, the 45,000 ton superdreadnaught New Jersey—largest in the nation's history—a mine layer and two destroyers. Under repair is a sizable fleet of world war destroyers.

Admits Trunk Murder; Says Victim Nagged

In a sullen monolog at the detective bureau last night Samuel De Lao confessed that he had slain Mrs. Nellie Sharp, 65 years old, and disposed of her body after packing it in a trunk. De Lao lived with Mrs. Sharp and her daughter Cleota, who posed as his wife, in a flat at 207 West 25th place.

"The old lady nagged me all the time because I didn't have a job," the killer said. "I hit her on the head with a hammer."

Body Stuffed in Trunk.

Investigation of the murder started after the body was found in the trunk early yesterday. The trunk was lying in an alley near 3539 South Wells street. Identification was established several hours later thru a description given by the daughter when she reported to police that her mother was missing. Mrs. Sharp was estranged from her husband, John.

Previously, Mrs. De Lao, as she calls herself, had attempted to collect the pay check of her mother at the Belmont hotel, where the elderly woman was employed as a maid. This was reported to the police and Cleota, a faded blonde, and De Lao, a powerfully built man of 49, were taken into custody.

The daughter told police the three of them lived on Mrs. Sharp's earnings. De Lao, she said, had been out of work since he was dismissed several months ago from a Work Projects administration job.

Policemen meanwhile had gone to the house. On the floors, on clothing, and on furniture they discovered bloodstains that convinced them the slaying had taken place there.

Mother's Trunk Her Coffin.

Mrs. De Lao said the trunk was her mother's. Her story was that her mother and De Lao, her paramour, quarreled Thursday morning. She left them to take their dog for a walk and when she returned she found De Lao mopping up the stains. She said that she asked for her mother and De Lao replied, "You won't see her any more."

Further investigation disclosed that De Lao had enlisted the help of Natale Pintaro, 215 West 25th place, a vegetable peddler, in getting rid of the trunk. Pintaro related that he had put the trunk on the fender of his automobile and carried it to the alley, where it was dumped. He said he knew nothing of its contents.

"I did it," he said, "and I'm sorry. I lost my temper."

Here's Picture of Real Victims in Finnish War

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TURKU, Finland, Jan. 5.—The real victims of the bolshevik attack on Finland are not the Finnish soldiers in the trenches on the Mannerheim line nor those fighting in the arctic, but the civilian population.

Real suffering is not to be found so much on the battle fronts, where a large proportion of the wounded quickly fall into repose of the sleep of death, but in the refugee areas where one-tenth of Finland's population has been concentrated.

Homes Crowded with Refugees.

In the vicinity of Turku all the country homes and farm houses are crowded with aged men, women, and children, some of whom are awaiting transportation to the homes of persons in Sweden or Norway who have volunteered to care for them for the duration of the war.

The suffering of these people, living in congested quarters, is intensified by subzero weather. The homes on Finnish farms are roomy and comfortable, but when 20, 30, and sometimes 40 persons are crowded into six or eight room houses and are obliged to manage with one small kitchen designed to cook meals for a fair sized family, the struggle for life becomes more bitter.

In a number of homes that I visited today the rooms simply swarmed with children and it seemed a miracle that they were clean and warmly dressed and comparatively happy.

Mothers Knit and Sew.

In some homes from five to eight children amused themselves with toys on the floor in the center of a room while around the walls, where temporary benches had been constructed, their mothers sat, cramped and crowded, busily knitting, mending, and sewing.

Taken from their homes in the fighting zones and from Finnish islands occupied by the Russians with little warning and with few personal belongings, these refugees now are living in quarters just as cramped as those I was in a few days ago on the Mannerheim line, where the soldiers are living in crowded dugouts.

But everywhere the most noticeable thing was the cleanliness and order. The only eyes that I saw that were red with tears were those of the children, who persisted in having their little squabbles as children do.

Finds Plenty of Laughter.

There was plenty of laughter. Despite their cramped quarters and the fact that a month ago they were strangers to one another the refugees all seemed to be friends.

In the kitchens cooks were preparing a supper of porridge and milk for the children and sandwiches and very weak coffee for the grownups. The women explained that they took turns at cooking.

Doctors are paying regular visits to the homes, and there have been no epidemics thus far. Each community has its own hospital. Everywhere there is splendid organization and efficiency.

Children Play on Skis.

At one spacious farm house the yard was full of children sliding down a small hill on tiny skis. Ninety-three persons, half of them children, were living in this 11 room house.

What once was the parlor was lined with two story bunks, where 30 persons slept. Three rooms upstairs accommodated another 35 and in the small home formerly occupied by the farm hands were another 28 persons.

The mothers said that they regretted that the war had closed all the schools in the country. Yes, the children were enjoying it now, but the winter is long and has just really set in. The women said they were trying to continue to teach the children, but it was difficult. They take turns reading to the children.

Uuno Hannula, minister of education, told me that his greatest task is to prevent the population from losing morale. He said the Finnish gov-

FRENCH DRINK 4,000 TONS OF COFFEE NAVY TOOK OFF GERMAN SHIP

PARIS, Jan. 5 (AP).—Frenchmen who enjoy drinking coffee and who have experienced difficulty in obtaining their favorite brew because of military necessities will be able to drink their fill for the next week or 10 days. Approximately 4,000 tons of Brazilian coffee, seized aboard the German freighter Santa Fe, are being distributed thruout the country. It is estimated the coffee will last the civilian population more than a week. The army already is well stocked.

HORE-BELISHA OUSTED IN ROW WITH GENERALS

Censor Chief Fired in Cabinet Shakeup.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain tonight fired his minister of war, Leslie Hore-Belisha, in the most sensational political event in Great Britain since the start of the European war.

Sir Andrew Rae Duncan.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

Lord MacMillan, minister of information, who had been severely criticized over his handling of the government's propaganda service and censorship went out with the minister of war in the cabinet shakeup.

Oliver Stanley, president of the board of trade and son of the earl of Derby, a former minister of war, was put in charge of the war office.

Reith Enters Cabinet.

Chamberlain turned the ministry of information over to Sir John Charles Walsham Reith, former chief of the British Broadcasting corporation and the Imperial Airways.

Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, a director of the Bank of England and chairman of the British Iron and Steel Foundation, became the new president of the board of trade.

Chamberlain's dismissal of Hore-Belisha from the job he had held since 1937 disclosed there had been serious differences of opinion between the war minister and generals who objected to his reforms and drastic changes in army policy.

His removal was regarded as a victory for the army chiefs who were reported to have encouraged Chamberlain to dismiss him. It was known they were displeased and resentful toward the war minister's methods in reorganizing the high command and putting the British military machine on a wartime basis.

Clashed with Gort.

Stories were circulated of a lack of harmony between Hore-Belisha and Viscount Gort, commander in chief of the British expeditionary force in France, and Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the imperial defense staff, both of whom he had promoted.

Hore-Belisha also was faced with an anti-Semitic whispering campaign.

News of the war minister's removal, coming on the eve of a campaign by Chamberlain and other members of the government to stump the country to find out how the people were reacting to the war, caught the public by surprise.

Well Liked by Public.

With another 2,000,000 men ordered to register for military service a few days ago, most observers believed that Hore-Belisha was certain to retain his office for the duration of the war. In public estimation he stood higher than any minister, apart from Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty. He was looked upon as the second man in the war cabinet for his energy and drive. A former journalist, he had given the country some of the most distinctive pronouncements about the progress of the war over the radio and in parliament.

Hore-Belisha, who is 41 years old, probably was the youngest member of the war cabinet. He was appointed in place of Alfred Duff Cooper ostensibly to oust the older generals and to elevate younger men. When that job was accomplished he set about expanding the army from a small standing force to a powerful fighting machine to meet wartime requirements.

He was personally responsible for steering thru parliament the new conscription measure making all of Britain's man power between the ages of 18 and 41 liable for military service.

Pays Tribute to His Work.

Letters exchanged between Chamberlain and Hore-Belisha relating to the cabinet shakeup gave no clew to the official reasons for the war minister's removal.

Chamberlain in a letter to Hore-Belisha, accepting the latter's resignation, paid tribute to the war minister's work and offered him the presidency of the board of trade. Hore-

Belisha declined. The board of trade portfolio does not carry a seat in the war cabinet and is regarded as a junior ministry.

Hore-Belisha, in his letter to the prime minister, said he regretted that for reasons he gave Chamberlain "verbally" earlier in the day he could not accept the "important office" the prime minister had offered him. He added that he was glad that there was "no difference of policy between us."

The early recall of parliament from its Christmas vacation was hinted in political circles tonight to enable Hore-Belisha to make a personal statement on the developments leading up to his dismissal. The opposition plans to demand a fulldress debate on what Hore-Belisha has to say and Chamberlain will be called on to give his version.

The prime minister was reported to be contemplating additional changes in the junior ministries of the government.

Press Demands Explanation.

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—British newspapers from the London Times to the smallest rural daily, tonight met the dismissal of Leslie Hore-Belisha as minister of war with questions concerning the fitness of his successor, Oliver Stanley. The papers demanded an explanation.

Under the headline, "Belisha Sacked," a commentator of Labor's Daily Herald, said: 'Things are going splendidly, then Neville [Chamberlain] started a blitzkrieg on his own. He annihilated—his secretary of state for war! Now what on earth has been going on — behind the scenes?"

The Times, which never has been especially friendly toward Hore-Belisha, praised his work and said editorially that a new army, "thanks largely to him is in a fair way to come into existence."

Sees Return to Politics.

The newspaper, which often reflects government opinion, added, however, that "there is no reason to suppose this retirement marks the extinction of a political career which was distinguished by the most essential quality of drive."

"These changes," the Times declared, "will not be taken as the last word either as regards men or as regards machinery."

The Daily Mail explained the war minister's removal by saying "he has not been getting on with the generals, and he goes." The News Chronicle gave a similar explanation.

Paper Attacks Stanley.

The Express said that "Hore-Belisha was one of the most efficient ministers. Mr. Oliver Stanley is a most unsatisfactory appointment."

In an editorial, the Express accused Stanley of "putting the clock back" as minister of transport, and said he "blundered over unemployment assistance" as minister of labor.

The influential Cardiff Western Mail, a strong supporter of the government, said of Stanley "we cannot say he has been a conspicuous success at the board of education and the ministry of labor, or at the board of trade."

BRITAIN AGREES TO PURCHASE SIX AMERICAN SHIPS

New York, Jan. 5 [Special].—The British ministry of shipping, headed in this country by Sir Ashley Sparks, director of the Cunard White Star line, has arranged for its first purchase of American flag tonnage to swell the ranks of Britain's vital merchant marine, it became known today. Six ships are involved in the sale, which is subject to approval of the United States maritime commission.

Four of the vessels are to be bought from the American-Hawaiian line—the Delawarean, Louisianan, Tennessean, and Indianan—all moderate sized freighters of around 5,500 gross tons. They were constructed in 1919 and 1920, in the period when many vessels were completed as a part of the country's wartime construction program. The two others are the Oakwood, a 6,071 ton vessel constructed in 1920, and the Waban, of 6,038 gross tons, built in 1919. These two are owned by Lykes Brothers.

If the commission gives consent to the sale, they probably will be turned over to the British ministry of shipping at an Atlantic port. The vessels may load United Kingdom cargoes and sail for home at an early date.

Two defendants were sentenced to life imprisonment and 40 to prison terms running up to two years each. Twenty-eight were acquitted.

The 82 defendants were part of a mob of 1,000 which battered the policemen to death. The killings came a few days after the jailing of a leader of a crowd which had refused to remove a flag of the Nationalist party from a flagstaff.

HITLER'S FRIEND CAUSES RUMPUS IN LONDON PRESS

Sensationalism Attacked and Defended.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—A newspaper war raged in London today over lurid publicity given in some sections of the press to the return from Germany this week of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's friend, Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford, the 25 year old daughter of a British peer, Lord Redesdale.

London newspapers varied widely in their treatment of the event. Some lavished columns of front page space and blaring headlines in recording her arrival and others virtually ignored it.

The squabble extended from editorial dens on Fleet street to the confines of Whitehall. Some newspapers took time off today from hurling abuse at each other to register a protest with the government against what the Daily Express described as "censorship by bayonets."

Refuse Press Permits.

Complaints were made against the attempts by the war office and the foreign office, acting under the scope of the emergency powers defense act, to exclude newspaper men from communication with Miss Mitford. Press permits to travel on the channel boat with her from France were not granted. Soldiers with fixed bayonets patroled the gates of the railroad station, the public highway and the quay at Folkestone, where the channel boat docked. A trebled police force was on hand, ostensibly to deal with a possible demonstration.

Only when the ambulance wherein Unity still was suffering from her bullet wounds broke down and returned to Folkestone did the newsmen get a break.

The chief protagonists in the newspaper war about Unity's news value now are carrying on a campaign of mutual abuse.

Assails "Sensational Press."

The conservative Daily Telegraph, which, like the Times, buried the news of Unity's arrival in a couple of paragraphs on an inside page and did not publish her photographs, took a crack at the "sensational press" for starring her and suggested that her return had better been marked by a dignified silence.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, which gave the story a big display, countered by charging the Daily Telegraph with hypocrisy and jealousy for missing the news. The Daily Mirror and the Daily Mail joined in the shouting from the sidelines, while Vernon Bartlett, a member of parliament, writing in today's News Chronicle, plaintively asked "Has the British press gone mad?"

Another Voice Is Heard.

The latest contribution to the war came from the editor of the trade journal, Newspaper World, who plumped for a policy of ignoring Miss Mitford. He said "decent newspaper men" were infuriated by the treatment accorded Unity in the sensational press.

"The persistent pursuit of Lord Redesdale, her father, was bad enough. Lying in wait for Miss Mitford was even worse. But worst of all," he stated, "was the scarcely concealed glee with which some photographers greeted Miss Mitford's return to Folkestone after the breakdown of her ambulance. For the accident gave the photographers a chance of getting what hitherto had been denied them, closeups of the unhappy woman."

The editor named the papers publishing the pictures and commented, "These papers, in fact, could not have given greater prominence to the subject if it had been an important item of war news."

Close Rail Line

Germany yesterday closed the railway along the western front to foreigners, necessitating their taking the Munich-Zurich route.

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 5 (AP).—German authorities today closed the Basel rail route thru Switzerland to foreign travelers, matching a measure taken by the French at the beginning of the war.

Hereafter all foreigners must take the Zurich-Munich route instead of the Basel-Black Forest line, which has been operated regularly since the war began within full sight of the French Maginot line across the Rhine river.

There were reports that the closing of the line meant the Germans were preparing for some activity on the Swiss frontier. The Swiss, however, exhibited no anxiety, explaining they considered it merely a long overdue precaution.

Premier of Belgium Picks Cabinet After Old One Quits

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 5 (AP).—Premier Hubert Pierlot announced tonight the formation of a new cabinet to succeed his ministry which resigned today. The new government will have 14 members, only one of whom was not in the last cabinet.

FRENCH BATTER GERMAN TOWNS WITH ARTILLERY

PARIS, Jan. 5 (AP).—French artillery today pounded German villages 10 miles behind the western front, military sources reported, as patrol activity continued along the entire northern flank.

French heavy shells were aimed at breaking up concentrations of German patrol troops. At the same time 75 millimeter [about 3 inch] shells were rained on the German side of no-man's land to hinder enemy scouting forays.

Both French and German patrol activities were accompanied by incessant automatic fire. French military sources said that despite the intensified exchanges there had been no change in the opposing consolidated lines.

The high command's morning communique merely said there was "local patrol activity on both sides." The night communique said, "nothing of importance to report."

Germans Scout from Air.

BERLIN, Jan. 5 (AP).—Continued artillery and aerial scouting activity were reported today in the German high command's communique. The announcement, covering yesterday's developments, said:

"Artillery activity on the western front was somewhat liveller at different points. German air reconnaissance against Great Britain and France was systematically continued."

Dutch Fire on Planes.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Jan. 5 (AP).—Unidentified foreign planes flying over Netherlands territory above the province of Utrecht were fired on today by antiaircraft batteries and fled when Netherlands fighter planes went up.

Belgian Protest to Germany.

ITALY TO ISSUE RATION CARDS WITHIN 10 DAYS

ROME, Jan. 5 (AP).—Italian officials announced today that ration cards would be distributed in Italy within ten days and that coffee would be made available, starting Feb. 10, in limited quantities for the first time since shortly after the European war started. Other foodstuffs which may be rationed were not announced.

A trade dispute with Brazil cut coffee imports early in 1939 and shortly after the war started the government prohibited public sales. Available supplies were stored for possible army use.

ITALY, HUNGARY SEEK ANTI-SOVIET DEFENSE PACT

Also Discuss Demands Against Rumania.

ROME, Jan. 5 (AP).—Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, went to Venice tonight to meet Count Stefan Csaky, Hungarian foreign minister. Csaky arrived in Venice today.

Italian circles predicted that the two counts would discuss defense of the Balkans against possible Russian invasion.

Hungary's future action toward settling territorial claims on Rumania also was due for consideration, Italian circles said.

Budapest dispatches said Count Csaky also might confer with Premier Mussolini. Italy long has supported Hungarian policy.

Vision 3 Power Coöperation.

Italians said that with relations improving between Hungary and Jugo-Slavia, more extensive coöperation among the Rome, Budapest, and Belgrade governments might be forthcoming. They warned, however, that it seemed premature to speak of a treaty among the three or of one between Hungary and Jugo-Slavia.

Ciano was expected to urge Csaky to press for a friendly agreement with Jugo-Slavia and thus facilitate Italian plans to defend the Balkans against possible invasion.

Hungary and Italy were reported agreed that Russia should not pass south of the Carpathian mountain frontier which Hungary has with the soviet union as a result of the German-Russian partition of Poland.

Hungary Wants Transylvania.

A considerable part of the talks was expected to center around Hungary's demands upon Rumania to return Transylvania, which was taken from the Hungarians after the world war.

Hungarians were said to feel that the time had come for Rumania to negotiate with Hungary for the return of some of Transylvania or at least that King Carol's government should drop its antirevisionist policy.

If the opposition to negotiating over Transylvania is not stopped, some quarters said, Rumania could not expect sympathy from Italy, Hungary, or Jugo-Slavia in case of a Russian attack on Bessarabia, territory Rumania got from Russia as a result of the world war.

Australian Air Force Chief Resigns; Asks New Post

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Australian war cabinet accepted today the resignation of Air Vice Marshal S. J. Goble as acting chief of staff of the royal Australian air force. Air Marshal Sir Charles Burnett, royal air force inspector general, was named successor to Goble, who asked for an overseas post.

ernment never could thank its people enough for the assistance they are giving and the sacrifices they are making now.

At present the state aid amounts to 20 cents a day per child and 24 cents a day for each adult. But the state realizes, he continued, that this amount soon must be enlarged. The farmers and others now accommodating the refugees are unable to carry this burden long, he said, especially when their unexpected guests consume the greater part of the milk that their cows produce.

This was the first day in 16 that Turku was not attacked by soviet planes. Every day for more than two weeks from 12 to 16 planes have appeared over the city and dumped their loads of bombs.

Seek to Destroy Harbor.

The bolsheviks have made special attempts to destroy the airport and harbor. They have caused damage estimated at $1,140,000. Twenty bombs have hit the shipyard, but only slight damage was caused. One ship was sunk in the harbor.

One of the 10 towers of Turku castle, the oldest in Finland, was destroyed. The castle was hit by four bombs and the valuable interior, which has been turned into a museum, was greatly damaged.

Fifty persons have been killed by bombs here and 200 wounded, but the morale of the people has not been affected. They are living up to their slogan, "Business as usual, but at night." Stores and banks are open from 5 to 10 p. m. and business offices until midnight.

RUSSIAN FLYERS RESUME BOMBING RAIDS ON FINNS

Land Troops Smash New Attacks by Reds.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 5 (AP).—Soviet warplanes struck again today at southern Finland, while unofficial reports told of another smashing victory by the Finns in the snows of the far north, where they already had scored major triumphs over the Red army.

Bitter cold settled over the country, the temperature reaching 8 below zero in Helsingfors and 30 to 40 below in the north and east.

Official reports merely recounted continued Finnish successes on the eastern frontier and said that Russian planes continued raids on the ancient port of Viipuri, on the Gulf of Finland, and attacked the inland town of Voika, where two persons were killed and 16 injured.

Victory Reported at Salla.

From Tornio, on the Finnish-Swedish frontier, came unofficial advices, however, that the Finns had delivered another crushing blow to the Russians at Salla, 125 miles north of Lake Kianta, scene of last week's virtual destruction of the soviet 163d division.

The routed Russians were reported to be retreating in great confusion from Salla, which is just above the arctic circle, toward Kanadaksha, their base in Russia.

The vital Murmansk-Leningrad railroad, Russia's supply line to the north, is only 40 miles from the frontier in this vicinity and observers said the new victory might presage destruction of this line.

Recall Previous Reports.

There have been previous reports from the northern and central Finnish fronts of successful raids against the railroad at several points by elusive Finnish ski troops.

These reports and the accounts of the latest victory led neutral observers to believe that the Red army would be forced to abandon efforts in the north to sever Finland and confine its invasion to the Karelian isthmus to regain prestige.

The Finns already have declared that the winter war in the north is theirs.

Without the Murmansk railroad, Russia would have trouble getting supplies to its forces in the north, but it could continue moving men and munitions to the Karelian isthmus thru Leningrad.

400 Russians Reported Slain.

The Finnish high command, in a communique dealing with yesterday's fighting, said its troops had killed 400 Russians and taken 40 prisoners in two encounters on the eastern front.

On the Karelian isthmus the high command said there had been lively artillery activity and a Russian night attack at Kirvesmaki, in the Taipale sector, which was repulsed.

In one eastern front attack, northeast of Lake Ladoga, the Finns reported the Red army beaten back with the loss of 150 killed. A second soviet drive at Suomussalmi was said to have been repulsed at an enemy cost of 250 dead and 40 prisoners.

Finnish commanders reported that the Russians failed in another attack at Aittojoki but made no mention of casualties.

Reds Hammer Mannerheim Line.

A night of incessant Russian artillery barrages against the Mannerheim line on the Karelian isthmus strengthened the opinion among military observers here that the winter war of the next two months would be fought in that area.

Most observers already have written off as failures the soviet attempts to cut the republic in half at its narrow waistline in central Finland.

Bombard Koivisto Fortress.

The continued bombardment of Koivisto fortress at the west end of the isthmus and the aerial attack on Viipuri, Finland's eastern outpost, indicated that the Red army hoped to soften that sector for a great offensive.

The Finns remained tight-lipped about their activities behind the Russian lines but it was known they have been active both by air and land.

Informed sources discounted frequently heard reports that the Murmansk railroad had been cut to pieces, but they acknowledged that it probably has been attacked.

Text of Soviet Communique.

MOSCOW, Jan. 6 [Saturday] (AP).—The Leningrad military headquarters early today issued the following communique:

"Nothing of importance took place in all directions Jan. 5. In the Ukhta, Repola, and Petrozavodsk directions activities of patrols. In the Petrozavodsk direction [north of Lake Ladoga] soviet patrols annihilated an enemy group of 50 men. On the Karelian isthmus activities of patrols and artillery duels. Soviet aviation made a number of successful raids on enemy reserves and military objectives."

Believe Britain Is Sending War Supplies to Sweden

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—Great Britain was said authoritatively tonight to be sending arms and munitions to Sweden in addition to aiding Finland. A British-Swedish trade agreement recently was concluded, it was recalled, and it was believed that the negotiations involved the question of military supplies.

GERMANS CHARGE FOES USE LEAGUE AS TOOL IN WAR

Warn Norway, Sweden on Aid to Finns.

BERLIN, Jan. 5 (AP).—The German press today warned Norway and Sweden anew against providing transit for British and French military aid to Russian-invaded Finland.

The newspapers which called upon the two northern countries to clarify their positions, simultaneously sharpened their drive against league of nations members who were referred to as "so-called neutrals" for agreeing to fulfill the league covenant by aiding Finland.

Call League Empires' Tool.

The league, of which Germany ceased to be a member in 1935, is considered in official Nazidom as a British-French tool. Hence any country remaining a member is held by the Nazis to be more or less on the side of the empires.

The press attack, which bore an official tinge, accused England and France of using the league covenant as a screen to involve Norway and Sweden in war against Germany.

The German viewpoint is that French and British aid to Finland could be transported on thru the two Scandinavian countries. This, Berlin officials assert, can have but one meaning—a French and British foothold there against Germany.

Germans say that Norway and Sweden are being promised league aid if they become embroiled in war as a result of assisting Finland. With such a development, they added, the western powers then would establish themselves under the cloak of the league.

Sees Ores Barred.

The German press also sees the empires as trying to prevent Germany from obtaining Scandinavian iron ores and southeastern Europe's oil.

The latest German warning, which the semiofficial commentary Dienst aus Deutschland said undoubtedly expressed official opinion, was given by Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

"At the beginning of this decisive year 1940," said the newspaper, "every nonwarring European state must understand that war exists for Germany wherever the enemy, regardless of the subterfuge used, effectively establishes positions to aid its war aim which has been proclaimed a hundredfold as the destruction of the great German reich."

100,000 BRITONS VOLUNTEER FOR MILITARY UNITS

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP). — Britain today disclosed that volunteers for military service have passed the 100,000 mark. These volunteers are in addition to approximately 750,000 conscripts called up since the national service act became effective in June and to 2,000,000 expected to be conscripted during 1940. More than 1,000,000 men are now under arms.

Sweden Asks Russian Probe of Submarine Raid on Ship

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 5 (AP). — The Swedish government tonight asked Russia to investigate charges by the crew of the Swedish steamer Fenris that a Russian submarine had attacked the vessel. Reports were received that the 484 ton steamer was shelled by a submarine in the Gulf of Bothnia near Uleaborg, Finland, and set afire late last night. The steamer still was burning. A lightship rescued the freighter's crew of 15. Russia declared a blockade of the Finnish coast in December.

BRITAIN WARNED BY HULL AGAINST SEIZING OF SHIPS

Will Be Held Responsible for Any Damage.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull today revealed that the United States has warned Great Britain that this government will hold Britain strictly accountable for any loss or damage to American vessels, crews, or cargoes taken into port for search under the British blockade.

The warning was delivered to the British foreign office Dec. 14 thru Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States. Two other protests have been lodged with the British government over interference with American shipping within a month.

Reserves All Rights.

On Dec. 8 Secretary Hull formally notified the British government that this country was reserving all rights for itself and its citizens under the blockade. This protest implied that the United States would hold the British government liable for damages or losses sustained.

Another American note, sent to Britain Dec. 22, protested against British interference with United States mail on the high seas destined for Germany and neutral ports. It was made public Tuesday.

The Dec. 14 note was not made public until today. It was filed after dispatches disclosed that the 4,996 ton freighter Mormacsun of the Moore & McCormack line, en route to Bergen, Norway, had been forced by the British to go to Kirkwall, a British control port.

The note stated bluntly that the United States would hold Britain accountable for damages and losses incurred by American vessels diverted from their courses in noncombative areas for examination in British ports in the war zone, forbidden to American shipping under President Roosevelt's neutrality proclamation.

No Reply from Britain.

Britain has not replied to any of the formal communications.

In the note made public today Hull acknowledged the receipt of a note from the British ambassador in which the latter said American vessels en route to neutral European ports should voluntarily check in at contraband control ports established by the British government.

In polite, but cold language Hull said this statement was taken by the United States as implying Britain would use force if necessary to divert American vessels into such ports, without regard to the laws of the United States or the rights, obligations, and liabilities of American vessels.

In view of the British position Hull declared he was impelled to bring to the consideration of the British government two considerations which he deemed worthy of careful notice:

"1. Since, under the neutrality act, it is illegal for American vessels to carry cargo to belligerent ports in Europe and northern Africa, such vessels will, of necessity, be carrying only such cargo as is shipped from one neutral country to another. Such cargo is entitled to the presumption of innocent character, in the absence of substantial evidence justifying a suspicion to the contrary.

Willing to Coöperate.

"2. It is my understanding that the American steamship companies operating vessels to European destinations, putting aside certain of their rights under accepted principles of international law, have voluntarily indicated a willingness to coöperate with the British authorities in every practicable manner intended best to serve the mutual interests of themselves and the British government in those circumstances in which the respective rights of the two parties might be regarded by them as in some respects in conflict.

"It is my belief that such a spirit of liberality on the part of American shipping interests should be met by a corresponding degree of accommodation and flexibility on the part of the British government, and that such mutual deferences should avoid giving rise to any occasion for the forcible diversion of such American vessels to those belligerent ports which they are by the law of the United States prohibited from entering."

NEUTRALITY BELT PROTEST STUDIED BY BELLIGERENTS

PANAMA CITY, Panama, Jan. 5.—Germany, France, and England have informed President Augusto S. Boyd of Panama that they were "examining" the protest against violation of the neutrality belt around the Americas filed by 21 American republics on Dec. 23.

None of the replies has given any definite answer to the complaint accusing the European belligerents of violating the declaration of Panama nor any indication of acceptance of the 300 mile neutrality belt outlined for the western hemisphere.

NAVAL EXPERTS DOUBT WISDOM OF HUGE WARSHIP

It's Too Vulnerable to Attack, They Say.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 [Special].—Naval experts, who are studying the suggestion of several congressmen that the United States build superbattleships of 60,000 to 80,000 tons, today cited the loss of the German pocket battleship Graf Spee as a reason for doubting the wisdom of building extra large ships.

They pointed out that the costly Graf Spee was defeated by British cruisers with armament far less powerful than the German ship carried. This country's proposed superdreadnaughts, which would cost an estimated $150,000,000, might be equally vulnerable to war craft with inferior firing power, the experts contended.

Would Shun Responsibility.

Several navy officers have said privately that they would shun the responsibility of taking a $150,000,000 vessel out to sea where it might fall a victim of small cruisers, submarines, or even bombing planes.

The house subcommittee on naval appropriations called on the navy department two weeks ago to prepare estimates on 65,000 ton battleships. Representative Melbin J. Maas [R., Minn.], a member of the subcommittee, went further and called for the building of battleships up to 80,000 tons, vessels almost twice the size of the largest men of war now afloat or being built.

Possible to Alter Plans.

High ranking naval officers have since told the subcommittee that it would be possible to alter the plans of two 45,000 ton ships, about to be constructed, to increase their tonnage to a size approaching the floating Gibraltars proposed.

The change could be made now, they said, because work on the ships still is in the planning stage, with actual construction not expected to start for two months. The battleships of 45,000 tons will cost $90,000,000 each.

No alterations now could be made in six 35,000 ton battleships also under construction, the work on them having progressed past the point of changing their size.

BARBOUR ASSAILS PLAN OF EDISON AS TOTALITARIAN

New York, Jan. 5 [Special].—The suggestion set forth to congress this week by the newly appointed secretary of the navy, Charles Edison, that President Roosevelt be granted "emergency powers" to commandeer shipyards and industrial plants engaged in filling government orders was attacked today by Senator W. Warren Barbour [R., N. J.].

Barbour called the proposal entirely unjustified, adding: "Any such grant of peacetime powers to the President would be the beginning of totalitarian government in the United States. The experience of Russia and Germany proves this. The seizure of essential industries by totalitarian leaders of these countries was almost the first step taken after they came into power."

Face Charge of Posing as Sales Tax Officers

Edward Hines, 1032 West 78th street, and Thomas Durkin, 8353 South Paulina street, were freed on bonds of $100 each yesterday on charges of impersonating state officers. A tavern owner complained that they represented themselves as state employés able to straighten out sales tax problems. Hines and Durkin will be arraigned in the State street court on Monday.

Cold to Continue

Cold weather is to continue in Chicago today and tomorrow, but the forecast indicated that no such extreme mark as the 4 below zero touched yesterday will recur. Previously no official subzero temperatures had been recorded in Chicagoland since Feb. 19, 1936, when it was 7 below.

The cold moderated last night over much of the territory to the northwest. Early yesterday it was 21 below in Bismarck, N. D., and at 6:30 p. m. last night it was 7 below there.

Many downstate cities had mercury readings much under those in Chicago. Springfield reported 9 below, Pana 13 below—a 10 year record—and Bloomington 12 below. Forecaster C. A. Donnel attributed Chicago's warmer temperatures to winds bringing in air from over the lake. The maximum temperature yesterday was 23 above.

TEXAS ADMIRAL ASSUMES FLEET COMMAND TODAY

San Pedro, Cal., Jan. 5 (AP).—A tall Texan takes over command of the United States fleet tomorrow. He is Admiral James Otis Richardson, 61 years old, who went to the naval academy from Paris, Tex., 41 years ago.

After considerable firing of saluting guns on the dreadnaughts in the harbor here this six-footer will walk down the quarterdeck of the battleship Pennsylvania as fleet commander-in-chief, and give a farewell handshake to Admiral Claude Charles Bloch.

Bloch goes ashore as a rear admiral, after two years in command of the fleet. He will proceed to Washington for conferences before going to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, in April to assume command of the 14th naval district.

THREE BROTHERS, EACH A 6 FOOTER, JOIN AIR CORPS

Three brothers enlisted yesterday in the army air service in the courthouse recruiting office. They are Norbert Mizera, 23 years old; Henry, 22, and Bernard, 18, all of 229 East Huron street. Each is a strapping six footer.

Lieut. Col. Edward R. Shaifer, who is in charge of the recruiting office, said they will be sent to Chanute field at Rantoul, Ill., for an eleven month course in aeronautics. Then they will take examinations to become flying cadets.

The young men, all graduates of Lane Technical High school, are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mizera, who operate a farm near Beckemeyer in Clinton county. The family spends its winters in Chicago. The youths have four sisters.

FALL FROM ROOF FATAL.

FRANCE DEMANDS PRACTICAL PEACE AFTER THIS WAR

Clings to Same Idea She Had at Versailles.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 5.—France's idea of the next peace is practically identical with that she was unable to impose after the last war because of the interference of David Lloyd George, then Great Britain's prime minister, and President Woodrow Wilson at the Versailles peace conference.

A foreign office spokesman today stressed the difference between the Anglo-Saxon and what he characterized the Latin—that is, the French—viewpoint. The former he defined as idealism born of sentimentality; the second, as practical politics. He argued that if the latter viewpoint had been permitted to dominate at Versailles it might have prevented the disturbances of peace in Europe since the world war as well as the present conflict.

Publishes Conversation.

André Tardieu, a former premier, who was a close adviser to Georges Clemenceau, in July published verbatim a conversation he and Lloyd George had during the Versailles conferences to prove that this was so. And, the government spokesman suggested, that is exactly what Premier Edouard Daladier meant when he recently said that France would not lay down her arms "without positive and material guarantees."

It was not enough, he said, that disarmament was imposed to prevent further aggression, but it was essential that the manufacture of arms and munitions be permanently restricted.

Marshal Ferdinand Foch, the French general staff, and even Clemenceau to a certain extent insisted at Versailles that the occupation of the Rhineland and the prohibition of German fortifications in that area were essential to a permanent European peace.

Visions No Economic Bars.

Only after the guarantees mentioned were obtained would France consent to discuss the Anglo-Saxon or idealistic plan—which the spokesman said France subscribes to wholeheartedly—a Europe without economic barriers to preserve the prosperity of all nations, large or small. This, it was assumed here, conforms to the American policy as evolved by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

The foreign office denied the German charge that France and England are trying to involve America in the war. However, it was admitted that the empires have taken heart at what has been stressed officially and in the press as the attitude of Mr. Roosevelt. It was said that this attitude, altho neutral, still assumes that a defeat of the empires would mean that America itself would be the next victim of aggression.

Mother Visits Her Son, 10, Shooting Victim, Then Dies

Three days before Christmas, Harold Hinshaw, 10 years old, was accidentally shot while playing bandit with his brother at their farm home near Milbrook, in Kendall county. The wounded boy was taken to the Copley hospital in Aurora. His mother, Mrs. Euretta Hinshaw, also the mother of a baby 3 weeks old, visited him there Thursday night. As she left, Mrs. Hinshaw was stricken with heart disease. She died a short time later.

FINANCES TO SET PACE OF ARMING FOR PHILIPPINES

Quezon Shuns Waste and Wild Schemes.

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 5 (AP).—President Manuel Quezon said today the Philippines "will go ahead building up a national defense as fast or as slowly as its financial resources permit without wastefulness or fantastic schemes."

The statement followed an extended conference among Quezon, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, military adviser to the Philippines, and chiefs of the Philippine military. The conference was in connection with preparation of the 1940-'41 budget.

Up to the Commonwealth.

High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre reported earlier he had discussed defense plans with Quezon several times. Sayre said, "It is entirely in the hands of the commonwealth to decide how much it wants to spend for defense."

His comment came amidst reports that Quezon and his military advisers were considering drastic changes in national defense policies with an eye toward a reduction in expenditures to permit economy on military appropriations.

"Any changes in defense plans are not subject to the approval of Washington," Sayre said, but he indicated the American war department had a great interest in Philippine defense.

Reserve Army of 400,000.

The Philippines commonwealth, under the present national defense act, is building up a reserve army of 400,000 by 1946, an air force, and an offshore patrol of speedy torpedo boats. The islands gain independence in 1946.

IRELAND'S POLICE HUNT LEADERS OF OUTLAWED ARMY

DUBLIN, Ireland, Jan. 5 (AP).—Ireland's police and militia hunted tonight for key men of the outlawed Irish Republican army to head off rebellious action which Justice Minister Gerald Boland said was feared "very soon."

Boland in addressing the senate, which passed a bill putting additional teeth in a previous measure giving the government power to intern persons suspected of offenses against the state, declared:

"We are afraid these men mean to do something very soon if allowed and that is why these bills are so urgent."

Explains Hunt for Arms.

Explaining the police search for hidden arms which might be used in an outbreak, Boland said:

"We cannot get the guns. We do not know where they are altho we are trying to get them. But we do our best to hold key men who might lead this movement."

More than a million rounds of ammunition were stolen recently from a Dublin army arsenal. Police said the theft was engineered by members of the Irish Republican army, whose aim is the unification of Ireland by violence. Only part of the loot has been recovered.

Government officials voiced fears that the Irish Republican army was planning a coup in Dublin or an attempt to oust the British from northern Ireland [Ulster] forcibly.

Ulster Police Massed.

Across the Ulster border, 5,000 special police were available to combat any disorders.

President Douglas Hyde of Ireland signed the bill giving the government power to intern suspects without trial as the senate completed legislative action on a companion measure dealing with "offenses against the state."

More than 20 suspected members of the Irish Republican army were said to have been arrested in the Cork area.

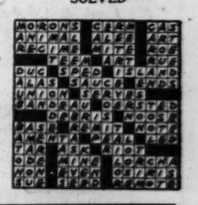
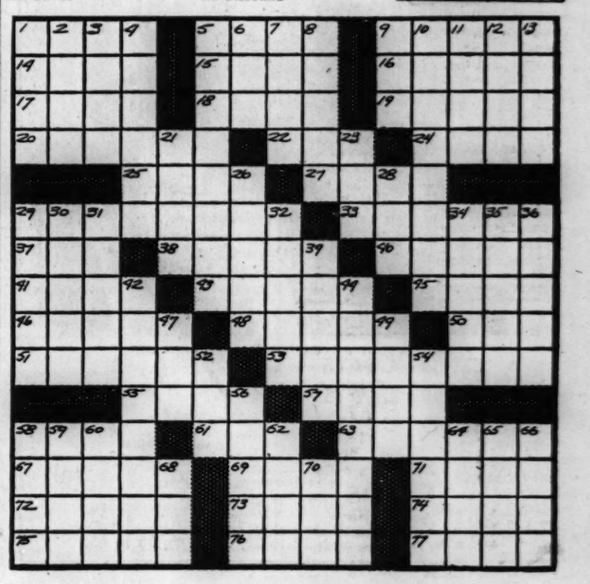
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





TELLS OF LABOR BOARD'S FAVORS TO C. I. O. UNIONS

A. F. L. Cases Ignored, Says Ex-Official.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—The house committee investigating the administration of the Wagner act by the National Labor Relations board was told today that the slogan of the labor board is: "The union is always right—if it is a C. I. O. union."

Mrs. Elinore Herrick, witness at inquiry. [A.P. Wirephoto.]

This testimony was given by Theodore H. Freter, former field examiner for the board in the Indianapolis region. Freter, a lawyer, investigator for the department of justice and general accounting office auditor before he was employed by the labor board, said he lost his job because he sometimes made findings that the complaining union was not justified in its complaint.

He was informed, he said, that his family background did not fit him for the work of a labor board employé.

Tells of Indiana Work.

Freter testified that he was sent to the Indianapolis office of the NLRB in 1937 with a temporary appointment as a field examiner. The duty of a field examiner is to investigate complaints of unfair labor practices and to report his findings to the regional director.

The first instructions Freter received, he told the committee, were that he should, under no circumstances, permit an employer to know the nature of the charges filed against him by a union

The regional director at Indianapolis, Robert C. Cowdrill, was openly contemptuous of the American Federation of Labor, Freter testified, and in favor of the Congress of Industrial organizations led by John L. Lewis.

A. F. of L. Cases Ditched.

"There was a feud between the board and the A. F. of L.," Freter declared. "When I arrived in Indianapolis I was struck with the fact that A. F. of L. cases were not being handled at all while the C. I. O. cases were. Cowdrill and his assistant, one Watson, would look at an A. F. of L. complaint and throw it aside with the remark, 'Another one of those damn A. F. of L. cases.'"

The witness named several cases which he investigated and which resulted in criticism for him because he did not recommend a complaint against the company involved.

"I made my recommendations on the basis of the facts I found," he told the committee. "Cowdrill informed me that my report was unfavorable to the complaining union and that my investigation must be at fault, because the union would not have filed a complaint unless the facts justified it."

Told Union Always Right.

He listed the cases involving the Roy S. Bailey company of Peru, Ind., and the George H. Rudy Coal company as among those for which he was criticized when he did not find the union's complaint justified.

"In the Bailey case, I was informed that the union was always right," he testified. "I was sent back but could only make the same report. Then I was taken off the case and another examiner sent out."

He quoted Cowdrill as saying that closed shop contracts and the check-off system were essential to the settling of labor disputes between employer and employé.

"Cowdrill said that a minority of employés in a company must join the union favored by the majority and pay dues, just as the Republicans must bow to the Democrats after an election in which the Democrats win," he said. "I tried to argue with him that Republicans continue to have representation at Washington, but I lost the argument."

Says C. I. O. Given Warnings.

When petitions for elections to determine the majority union were filed by the A. F. of L., Freter testified, the regional director or one of his subordinates would call up C. I. O. officials and advise them to "get busy."

"They would tell the C. I. O. they couldn't hold off an election indefinitely," he testified, "and for them to start work and obtain a majority before the election was held."

The temporary appointments of other field examiners were made permanent while he remained on a temporary basis, Freter said, and he finally went to Washington to discover why. He was told there by a board attaché, he said, that "the board feels that your family background doesn't fit you for the work."

No Crime in His Family.

"There has been no crime or lunacy in my family background for generations," Freter commented. "The only thing I could guess at that made my affiliation with the board impractical from their viewpoint was that my father was in business for himself and an employer."

While in Washington, Freter testified, he noted that C. I. O. victories in company elections were greeted with great rejoicing among labor board employés, while A. F. of L. victories created dismay.

"When a C. I. O. victory was reported the employés would celebrate, saying 'We beat them,'" he testified. "When the A. F. of L. won they would say, 'They beat us.'"

Cowdrill and Watson told Freter, he added, that there was no such thing as a bona fide independent union.

Woman Director Testifies.

Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, regional director in the New York area, was a witness before the committee most of the day. She repeated her criticism of the "OGPU methods" employed in investigating regional offices by two Washington agents of the board, Fred G. Krivonos and Robert Gates. These two men worked mysteriously behind the backs of regional directors in an endeavor to get information against them, she said.

Members of the committee questioned Mrs. Herrick at length regarding the procedure following by regional directors in prosecuting complaints against companies accused of unfair labor practices. Mrs. Herrick said she had once advised the board that closer attention be paid to the legal rules of evidence in the hearing of complaints but that she had since changed her mind.

Considers Rules Silly.

"After serving on a jury for three weeks in General Sessions court in New York City," she told the committee, "I came to the conclusion that rules of evidence were sometimes rather silly."

Mrs. Herrick admitted, however, that if she were on trial herself she would prefer the strict rules of evidence to apply.

Excerpts from the "personal and confidential files" of the labor board provoked much merriment among the audience and revealed the informality of labor board office relations.

A memo from Nathan Witt, secretary to the board, to Mrs. Herrick said that a complaint had been made against her that she was not taking proper action in a case involving the Press company, Inc., and Gannett company, publisher of a string of upper New York state newspapers.

Calls Request an Insult.

"Mrs. Herrick is a friend of Mrs. Gannett, and a mere continued hearing with her at the helm won't do any good," the complaint read.

To which Mrs. Herrick replied: "You surely do not expect me to comment on this. The very request is an insult. It's the last time I'll give preference to a damn guild case if this is the kind of thanks I get."

Witt replied: "I have your deliciously sweet memo. As you know, we feel you are Mrs. Caesar's husband. If you want to, come on down and cry on my shoulder, and maybe I will buy you a drink."

Charges Divorce Plot

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Florraine Kelsey, whose charge that her husband, James C., obtained decree by hiring an accomplice to get her into a compromising situation was strengthened by confession obtained by state's attorney's office from Charles English.

ADMITS LURING WOMAN TO HOTEL IN DIVORCE FAKE

State to Act Against Rich Eastern Publisher.

State's Attorney Courtney's office announced yesterday it had obtained a confession tending to substantiate the charge of Mrs. Florraine Kelsey that her husband hired an accomplice to get her into a compromising situation, so he might get a divorce.

Mrs. Kelsey, now employed in a loop store, lives at 66 East Goethe street. The husband is James C. Kelsey, publisher of a financial statistical service in Chicago and New York. He won the divorce before Judge Philip Finnegan on March 8, 1937.

Paid $1,000 for Part in Plot.

Mrs. Kelsey later failed in an appeal to the Appellate court to have the divorce decree set aside. The state's attorney's office continued the investigation of her charges. Yesterday Capt. Daniel Gilbert had in custody, as the second man in the divorce plot, Charles English, 25 years old, 2818 Lexington street.

Capt. Gilbert said English admitted Kelsey paid him $1,000 to get Mrs. Kelsey into an embarrassing situation in a west side hotel room. Then Kelsey and three other witnesses walked in.

"I was first hired by Mrs. Kelsey to trail Kelsey," Capt. Gilbert quoted English as saying. "I trailed him for several days. One day he and a woman came to my house. They took me uptown and Kelsey and I went to a bar.

Lured to Hotel Room.

"He told me he would pay me $1,000 if I compromised his wife so he could get a divorce. I met her a few days later and took her to a restaurant in Chinatown, to make my report on the case [she thought]. I gave her several drinks. There were no knockout drops in them, but she got woozy. I took her to the hotel. In the early morning Kelsey and three witnesses found us. I dressed and left."

English told Capt. Gilbert he collected the $1,000 in two instalments of $500 each.

In his divorce bill Kelsey ultimately substituted a charge of cruelty for his initial charge of infidelity. His wife was granted a $420 settlement and custody of their daughter, Rosanna, for 10 months of the year.

Seized for Kidnaping.

Kelsey has been arrested in Great Meadows, N. J., on a charge of kidnaping the girl, now 4 years old. He took Rosanna away last July for the two months allotted to him, and refused to return her, Mrs. Kelsey alleges.

Kelsey, who has offices at No. 1 Wall street, New York, is fighting extradition on the kidnaping charge. He is free on bond pending hearing on his petition for a writ of habeas corpus. He could not be reached last night to discuss the story of English.

Capt. Gilbert said warrants would be taken out today accusing Kelsey and English of conspiracy to defraud a court.

Judge Finnegan said the newly discovered evidence might not affect the divorce status since the evidence indicated adultery despite the fact that the compromising situation may have been obtained by a plot. Divorce attorneys were of the opinion, however, that Mrs. Kelsey might go before the courts with a bill of review, offer the new evidence, and herself obtain the divorce.

U. OF I. RESISTS PLUMBERS' UNION STRIKE DEMANDS

The executive committee of the University of Illinois board of trustees stood firm yesterday against demands of a union which Tuesday called a walkout of 70 plumbers and steamfitters employed on three new buildings on the university's Urbana campus.

The strike order was issued from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steamfitters, without a vote by the Urbana local.

Trustees said the walkout followed the university's efforts to save $10,000 on a pipe installation job thru using its own union employés. The union insisted the work be given to a contractor. The trustees, adamant on this point, said they would submit proposals to union officials today which would meet other union objections.

14 C. I. O. UNION MEMBERS HELD ON PLOT CHARGE

All Named in Blackmail Indictments.

Toledo, O., Jan. 5 [Special].—Fourteen officials and members of a C. I. O. union surrendered at the Lucas county courthouse today on an indictment charging them with blackmail in connection with a four months' strike at the Gulf Refining company plant here.

They were charged with conspiring to compel nonunion employés of the company to join the C. I. O. union and to contribute half their wages to the John L. Lewis' organization, in addition to paying an initiation fee of $10 and dues of $2 a month.

The union is local No. 346 of the Oil Workers International union. Its members went on strike at the Gulf plant last May 20 in an attempt to enforce their protests against labor policies of the company.

NLRB Appeal Made.

The C. I. O. group carried its complaint to the National Labor Relations board, but withdrew charges against the company under terms of a pact by which employés' seniority rights were not impaired. The strike ended Sept. 28. Any readjustment in wages, hours, or working conditions was not made public.

The indictment against the 14 men said they were actively engaged in the management and conduct of the union's business at the time of the strike. They were accused of threatening to use force against certain employés of the company if they did not submit to the alleged acts of extortion.

The men thus victimized were identified by Joel S. Rhinefort, assistant county prosecutor, as members of a skeleton crew of workmen who stayed in the plant during the strike as a measure of safety.

Four of these men, it was charged, were forced to pay the union half of the wages they earned while working at the plant during this time. The indictment said the defendants threatened the workers that unless they joined the union and paid the fees demanded they would forcibly be prevented from continuing their employment at the Gulf company.

Extortion Also Charged.

In addition to the counts of blackmail against nonunion members, the indictment also contains four counts of extortion in which members of the C. I. O. union were victims of their own officials.

Ex-Gov. Earle Expected to Be Envoy to Ireland

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—An authoritative source said tonight that former Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania would be appointed minister to Ireland soon, probably within the next week. Senator Guffey [D., Pa.] conferred with President Roosevelt today and said afterwards that a diplomatic assignment for Earle was assured but he did not know then what it would be. Earle was minister to Austria early in the first Roosevelt administration.

IT JUST GOES TO SHOW—

By CALEB

THE 19TH century was exactly in its halfway year when a Massachusetts farmer sought out a storekeeping friend of his in the neighborhood, and introduced to him a quiet-appearing lad of sixteen. "Jim, my son here wants to become a merchant. Try him out for a few weeks, and let me know what his chances are."

After two weeks had gone by, he returned. "Well, Jim, how's the son doing? Will he make a good merchant?" . . . "John," replied the storekeeper, "take him away. Your son will never be a merchant; he is no good. Take him back to the farm where he belongs."

Back the boy went—and stayed there two more years, still determined he was going to be a merchant. An absurd notion, of course—hadn't he tried it, and been told he was no good? Wasn't that reason enough for anyone to give up any notion?

Not for this boy, because, at eighteen, he went over to Deacon Davis's store in Pittsfield, and became a salesman. And there he stuck for the next four years—on hand from sunup till late-dark closing; studying merchandise; assimilating business procedure; keeping a memorandum book full of descriptions, costs and selling prices; handling customers better than they'd ever been handled before. He knew what he wanted to be—and he was learning how to be it! . . .

Deacon Davis well recalled the lad. "He was about the queerest-looking boy I ever saw when he came to work for me . . . Though he learned fast, and seemed to have an uncanny knowledge of merchandise and a remarkable memory for stocks and prices, I never thought he'd be a great merchant." Such was his verdict.

In 1856, the young man buttonholed the Deacon, and told him he was going on to Chicago to make his fortune. "You go West?" exclaimed the Deacon. "You'll never make a success out there! You'd better take an older man's advice, and stay nearer home. You go out there and you'll starve to death." But the lad stood his ground. "I'm going. And some day I'll have a store out there the doors of which will be worth more than your whole building." . . .

The sequel to these early episodes in the career of Marshall Field is business history. The present review of them just goes to show that if a young man's ambition is real enough to become a life's goal in his mind and heart, the hindrances, objections and obstacles haven't yet been created that can stop him. When you know what you want, ways to get it—sometimes under the most unexpected circumstances—are bound to open up. There's always a Chicago somewhere, waiting for a Marshall Field to come to it, see it, and conquer it.

Accepts President's Dare to Find a Way.

In urging that many bureaus be abolished, he named a string of those which he deemed might be dropped without public loss.

"The New Deal," he said, "has increased the number of federal employés from 563,000 in 1933 to 932,000 today. The additional pay roll alone totals 1 billion 200 million dollars."

Cites Agricultural Department.

As an example, he spoke of the department of agriculture, with 26,540 employés in 1933 and 107,712 last June, or four times the number in the Hoover régime. "They are scattered all over the United States," he said, "wasting the substance of the farmer like a plague of grasshoppers."

Regulation of agriculture and business, he suggested, should be cut to a minimum and reduction of burocracy would effect economy.

"Last year," said Taft, "the President was given power to reorganize. He did so frankly without any interest in securing economy; but with the statement that the combination would save the government pay roll 15 to 20 million dollars a year. Yet the total pay roll increased between April, 1939, when this order was issued, and August, 1939, at the rate of 100 million dollars a year."

Tells Relief Views.

As to relief, which Taft said was supposed to be a "hot potato," he remarked that the name of relief has been used to justify expenditures for every sort of burocratic activity.

"Relief can be handled effectively without gaps between federal and state relief only if direct relief and work relief are administered by a single local agency, handling both employables and unemployables, with federal assistance equal to about two-thirds of the entire cost," he said.

The proposed cut in WPA, Taft asserted, will work tremendous hardship unless WPA policy is changed. The change, he figured would reduce the cost of federal relief to about $750,000,000 in 1941, compared with $1,500,000,000 this year.

Grants Must End, He Says.

Grants to localities for local public works must end, Taft said, and federal public works should be cut to a normal amount, while subsidies to agriculture, housing, or industry should be substantially reduced.

"There is not a community," he said, "so shortsighted or selfish that it will not join in a general movement to avoid national bankruptcy if it can be assured that every other group is required to go along."

Taft said army and navy appropriations are running $1,775,000,000 a year, and the President is proposing a 25 per cent increase.

"Development of naval and aviation technique in the present war," he said, "may make obsolete many of our present plans. What the President proposes is a permanent increase of army and navy expense to two and a quarter billion dollars for years to come.

"We are in favor of adequate defense, but would like to be certain what we are defending." He said he suspected a good deal of the new spending is proposed "not for the sake of defense, but for the sake of spending."

Between his speaking engagements the Ohio senator met groups of friends at the Union League club. He told a press conference he does not intend to enter the Illinois preferential primary unless other Republican candidates for the presidency do.

Avoids Primary Contests.

"I have no desire to stir up primary contests," he said. "Except in Ohio, where I will be indorsed for the nomination, I have no present intention of making a fight for delegates in any state."

Taft said he has gathered the impression on his tours that party chiefs are more interested in party rehabilitation and harmony than in presidential candidacies. He predicted a majority of the delegates to the national convention will be uninstructed and that the Republicans will win in November.

Tells Conflicts in Bureaus.

Conflicts of action and purpose between New Deal agencies were described by Taft in his Union League club speech.

"Every department and almost every bureau at Washington," he said, "operates in a watertight compartment, with little concern for the purpose of the activities of thousands of clerks in the department next door.

"One of the most obvious contradictions is that of housing. We have the United States Housing authority in the department of the interior, building government owned apartment houses for rental to low income groups. We have the independent Federal Housing administration loaning money at low rates of interest to build apartment houses and residences alike. We have the Federal Home Loan bank system loaning money to building and loan associations to loan to home owners. We have what is left of the old Tugwelltown proposition, administered by the Farm Security administration.

Disagreements Are Aired

"The gentlemen who run each of these departments apparently disagree with the theory directing the other housing agencies, and do not hesitate to say so before congress.

"The government advocates codes and price fixing and trade associations under the national recovery act, and then Mr. Thurman Arnold prosecutes the oil companies and the milk producers who have followed the suggestions of other government officials.

"The President urges a cash and carry policy to keep American ships out of European danger zones, and the Maritime commission proposes to nullify the entire policy by promoting the transfer of American ships to Panamanian registry."

Spending Theories Clash.

Taft said the New Deal pursues two diametrically opposite theories with regard to government spending.

"Secretary Morgenthau," he said, "leans gently toward the only possible view that can be sound—that a government should balance its budget. Marriner Eccles [chairman of the federal reserve board] says deficits are a blessing in disguise and is promptly repudiated by the treasury.

"The President claims credit for an economy budget, but spends his whole message in arguing for the completely discredited theory that the government can spend itself into prosperity."

This morning Taft is to be interviewed over the radio by Mrs. William T. Brucker, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs. Accompanying him on the trip are Mrs. Taft and David S. Ingalls of Cleveland, Taft's campaign manager. They will leave for Cincinnati tonight.

YAQUI INDIANS LINKED TO MEXICAN UPRISING; ARMY CALLS IT MINOR

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, Jan. 5 (AP).—Border reports today indicated that Yaqui Indians participated in a Southern Sonora uprising, but Gen. Jesus Gutierrez Casarez, commander of the Sonora army district, said the situation presented no serious military problem. Federal troops engaged a band described as outlaws recently, killing three and capturing eight. The rest fled into the hills. Reports from Ciudad Obregon that dissatisfied Yaqui Indians composed the outlaw band of about 60 gained strength when several drums, similar to those used by tribesmen in religious rites, were found near the scene of the clash. One report was that the Indians feared their churches might be closed when a new national administration takes office this year.

CLAIM JAP SHOT BY MARINE WAS AT YANKEE WALL

PEKING, China, Jan. 5 (AP).—"An amicable settlement" of an incident in which an American marine sentry shot and slightly wounded a Japanese military gendarme was predicted tonight in a communique issued jointly by Japanese and American military authorities here. The incident occurred early today in the compound of the United States embassy guard. The embassy also is located in the compound. An unofficial source said the Japanese was attempting to scale the compound wall and he failed to halt when challenged by the sentry.

deficit could be reduced to 1 billion 716 million dollars by recapturing 700 million dollars from the receipts of government lending corporations and imposing 460 million dollars in new taxes. This was based on the premise that congress did not exceed the budget estimates, that the revenues came up to expectations, and that farm prices remained sufficiently high to make further subsidies unnecessary.

Byrd Approves Reductions.

Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], one of the senate's foremost economy advocates, said he approved Mr. Roosevelt's proposed reductions in expenditures as a gesture in the right direction and would vote for increased taxes as a step toward balancing the budget.

Senator Byrd, however, took exception to the President's treatment of the 700 million dollars to be recovered from the capital funds of government lending corporations as current receipts, to be deducted from the deficit.

"This is all borrowed money and it should be used to retire that much of the national debt, not deducted from the deficit," said Senator Byrd. "Adding that amount, the deficit is 3 billion 876 million dollars."

Senator Byrd explained that the RFC and other government lending corporations raise funds by issuing debentures, which are sold to the treasury. The treasury selis bonds to the public, thus increasing the national debt, to raise money with which to purchase the debentures.

Should Apply on Debt.

Since this money was raised by increasing the national debt, Byrd argues it should be used toward retiring the national debt, and not considered as current receipts as a bookkeeping expedient to reduce the deficit.

Senator Byrd also replied to the President's statement that those who "state baldly that the government's debt is 42 billion dollars" would be "more honest and more honorable" if they would say that "the government has 7 billion dollars of cash, gold available for debt redemption, and proprietary interest in government corporations, which reduces the net debt to 35 billion dollars."

It would be more honest and more honorable for the President to state, also, that the government has contingent liabilities of more than 5 billion dollars, represented by the outstanding obligations of the lending corporations, in addition to the direct national debt of 42 billion dollars, Senator Byrd said.

Will Oppose Raising Limit.

The Virginia senator said he would oppose any increase in the statutory debt limit of 45 billion dollars. The President estimated that the national debt would fall just short of the statutory limit, at 44 billion 938 million dollars, on June 30, 1941, if congress adhered to his fiscal program and the revenues came up to his expectations.

Few indeed are the members of congress who believe that the budgted expenditures will not be exceeded. Members of the so-called farm bloc, for example, already are clamoring for another 225 million dollar appropriation for "price adjustment" subsidies.

Any necessary increase in the statutory debt limit could be postponed until after the presidential election.

IRENE AGAIN WINS LEGAL RODEO ON NEIGHBOR'S COWS

August Hinterberg was in court yesterday for the second time in two years on Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin's charges of neglecting his cows. Mrs. McLaughlin, wearing riding breeches, told Police Magistrate Edwin Burgess of Lake Forest that the cows aren't getting enough water or adequate food.

Hinterberg is 73 years old. He lives alone on a farm on the southwestern outskirts of Lake Forest. Reminded that he had sold his cows last time to escape prosecution by Mrs. McLaughlin, he admitted this was true. But, he said, the farm was lonely without cows, and so he bought 13 more to have some live stock around, altho he didn't even sell their milk.

George W. Field, assistant state's attorney of Lake county, said he would demand the maximum fine of $200 unless Hinterberg agreed to sell his new cows. Mrs. McLaughlin promised to help find a buyer. Hinterberg agreed. The charges will be dropped if his cows are gone by Jan. 15.

START DELIVERY OF MILK IN 2 AND 4 QUART BOTTLES

Home delivery of milk in two and four quart glass containers at a saving of 2 to 3½ cents on the 13 cent price of a single quart was begun in several sections of Chicago yesterday. Dairy officials said, however, it was too early to determine customer demand for milk in the larger jars.

"The use of large containers is still in the experimental stage," said Stanley Wanzer, vice president of the Wanzer Dairy company. "We and other companies are serving only limited areas at present. Some companies still lack equipment for bottling these sizes."

A board of health official said the right to distribute the large bottles was not limited to the nine companies who had made application for permission, but that any company complying with health department regulations could use the two and four quart jugs.

Jupiter and Mars played a trick last night. They made it appear that they were very close together indeed in the southwestern heavens.

They weren't, tho. Northwestern university astronomers said. It was just an optical illusion. The planets were quite as far apart as usual, but the angle from which Chicagoans viewed them made the difference. It was as if you had looked far down the street at two street lamps which were half a block apart, but seemed, from where you stood, to be almost together.

The astronomers said the phenomenon is known as a conjunction of planets. The present one has been noticeable for some time and will continue to be. You won't need a telescope.

INDIANA G. O. P. PLANS 25C DINNER ON NIGHT OF JACKSON BANQUET

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 5 (AP).—As a counterattraction to the $25 a plate Jackson day dinner of Indiana Democrats Monday night the Republicans are going to have a 25 cent milk and cracker feast honoring Abraham Lincoln.

Ralph Hamill, chairman of the Young Republicans of Marion County [Indianapolis], sponsor of the two-bit affair, explained the holding of a Lincoln meeting in January this way:

"With all this date changing on the calendar we have a sneaking suspicion they might change Lincoln's birthday or even eliminate it. For that reason we decided to hold this meeting on Jackson day, which we know good and well the Democrats won't change."

EXPOSE SLUGGER RECORD OF 2 IN GARAGE SLAYING

Union Officers Involved in Oak Park Terrorism.

Murder Background

THE CRIME—Marinus Hvid, a garage owner, was beaten fatally by labor sluggers nine days ago. No clew to the identity of the slayers has been found.

THE INVESTIGATION — Police records revealed that two officials of the union which picketed the garage were involved in labor sluggings in Oak Park five years ago. Evidence of a link between the union and a garage owners' organization from which Hvid was expelled is being studied.

THE RECORD—The murder of Hvid was the 32d labor slaying in Chicago in the last nine years. There has been a conviction in only one case.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Two union officials who have been questioned in the goon slaying of Marinus Hvid, north side garage owner, were involved in the slugging of two Oak Park florists five years ago, police records disclosed yesterday. Capt. Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall station planned to call the union men in for further questioning in the Hvid case, which is the 32d labor slaying in Chicago in the last nine years.

Hvid, who was beaten Dec. 28 with baseball bats by two goons, died two days later.

The two whose connection with previous labor violence was learned yesterday are William Bibby, business agent of the Auto Livery Chauffeurs, Taxicab Drivers, and Garage Helpers' union, and Edward Gale, secretary of the union.

This union had been picketing Hvid's garage at 3514 North Halsted street. Investigation thus far has indicated a working agreement between the union and the Affiliated Garages of Chicago, a garage owners' organization, from which Hvid was expelled.

Seized in Slugging Quiz.

Bibby, whose name sometimes is spelled "Bibbe," and Gale were among six union officials arrested June 12, 1935, in Oak Park on charges of slugging two independent florists who had refused to join the Florists Drivers' union. This union and the garage helpers' union are affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Gale and three other men were accused of assaulting one of the florists, Peter Jarvaras, and Bibby and another man were charged with slugging the second florist, Gus Poulos. In the course of the investigation, James A. Howe, village president of Oak Park, alleged that the six union men who were arrested were under the protection of Chicago police.

On July 2, 1935, Bibby was fined $50 for assault and $50 for disorderly conduct by Justice of the Peace Martin H. McGrath in Oak Park. The assault charge against Gale was nol prossed.

Garage Fight Investigated.

In the Hvid case Capt. O'Connell has been investigating a fight between Bibby and John Leykauf, 730 Cornelia avenue, a mechanic, who leased space in Hvid's garage and helped him deliver customers' cars. Leykauf said Bibby attacked him in a quarrel over a second hand car parked in front of the garage, but Leykauf has refused to sign a complaint against the union agent.

Bibby, who is 37 years old, has been a member of the garage helpers' union for 15 years. He lives in the Larchmoor apartments, 149 LeClaire avenue. He formerly was a funeral car driver and became business agent of the union five years ago.

Gale has been in charge of the union picketing at the Hvid garage since last March. The picketing started after Hvid was expelled from Affiliated Garages for refusing to send a customer back to another member garage.

[The picketing has stopped since the fatal assault on Hvid. Leykauf, the mechanic, is in charge of the garage.]

Route Canvassed by Police.

The customer was Milton Cohen, 655 Buckingham place, in front of whose home Hvid was slugged by the labor goons. That night Cohen and Hvid had driven from the latter's garage to the Cohen home and the attack occurred as Cohen entered his home and Hvid prepared to drive the car back to the garage.

The route—about four blocks—from the garage to Cohen's home has been canvassed by police in an effort to find some one who saw the goons. Thus far no one has come forward with any information. Capt. O'Connell last night assigned four detectives to canvass the area again. They hope that some one who might have seen the terrorists has been afraid to say so, but may now have plucked up courage to tell the story to police.

Cohen had kept his car in Hvid's garage for several years, but early in 1938 he put it in the Belmont garage, 3157 Broadway. He moved it back to Hvid's garage in July, 1938. Later Mrs. Flora Enzweiler, wife of William P. Enzweiler, treasurer of Affiliated Garages, took over management of the Belmont garage.

Treasurer Quizzed Again.

The Enzweilers were questioned yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney William Crawford. As on Thursday, Enzweiler said he did not know that Emil Mermall, executive director of the association, had withdrawn $14,000 of the association funds between Jan. 1, 1938, and Oct. 1, 1939, as was disclosed Wednesday.

Enzweiler said he had not read the by-laws of the association, which required him as treasurer to disburse its funds only on properly drawn warrants or receipts.

Mrs. Enzweiler said she knew nothing of a $2,000 fund raised by contributions from members of the association in 1937. The fund was in a bank account in her name and was to be used to finance a campaign to prevent night parking on streets.

Money Returned to Donors.

The money was returned to the contributors in 1938. Crawford found correspondence in the association files in which members asked why the money had not been used for its "specific purpose" and for the "advancement of the garage industry." Enzweiler declared he did not know how the money was to be spent and what form the campaign to eliminate night street parking was to have taken.

Early last week Crawford had announced the Hvid case would be presented to the grand jury in a few days. Yesterday he said he could not go before the grand jury without orders from State's Attorney Courtney. Courtney was out of town yesterday.

Frank Hecht, chairman of the All-Chicago council of the Chicago Association of Commerce, was preparing yesterday to select two committees authorized Thursday at a meeting of Chicago business, civic, and religious leaders. The meeting, inspired by the Hvid slaying, brought an announcement that these leaders are determined to stamp out labor terrorism in the city.

One committee will draw up resolutions stating the position of the law abiding element in this drive on terrorism. The second committee will urge direct action by law enforcement authorities and labor leaders.

TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE

VI.

Below are questions for a man to ask himself and answer about his wife. Each question has a maximum score—indicated in parenthesis. However, any number of points less than the maximum may be noted:

DEMERITS.	MERITS.
1. Slows up card game with chatter and gossip. [6 points.]	1. Assists husband at office or shop. [6 points.]
2. Corrects husband's speech or actions before other people. [6 points.]	2. Wears her clothes well and dresses in good taste. [6 points.]
3. Serves a meal, but fails to sit down till meal is half over, then wants husband to wait for her. [6 points.]	3. Belongs to Parent-Teacher club or child study group. [6 points.]
4. Fails to bathe regularly. Has "B. O." [6 points.]	4. Ambitious for her family—urges higher attainment. [6 points.]
5. Is snobbish and tries to "keep up with the Joneses." [6 points.]	5. Bravely carries on during financial reverses or the depression. [6 points.]
6. Reneges at bridge or cheats at solitaire. [6 points.]	6. Tries to cultivate an interest in her husband's athletic recreations. [6 points.]
7. Catty and unsportsmanlike. Makes caustic remarks about people. [30 points.]	7. Shows that she loves her children and her home. [60 points.]
8. Applies makeup in public. [6 points.]	8. Even tempered. Has self-control. [30 points.]
9. Tries to show off her superior ability, talents, or education. [6 points.]	9. Healthy and athletic. Likes outdoor recreations. [6 points.]
10. A wallflower. Excessively shy and timid. [6 points.]	10. Retains a wholesome enthusiasm for life. Not bored or cynical. [6 points.]
Total demerits.....	Total merits.....

Now subtract total demerits from total merits and interpret score as follows: 0 to 27, very poor [failure]; 28 to 43, poor; 44 to 61, average; 62 to 80, superior; 81 and up, very superior.

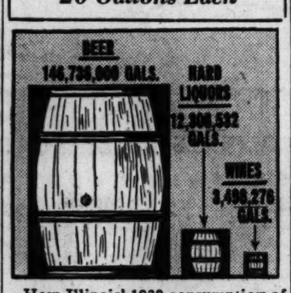
20 Gallons Each



How Illinois' 1939 consumption of alcoholic beverages was divided among three major types.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 5 (AP).—It took approximately 162,542,808 gallons of beer and other alcoholic drinks to satisfy Illinois' collective thirst in 1939, an average of roughly 20 gallons per person.

This estimate, based on the annual report of tax receipts by the state's liquor revenue division, was 5,448,424 gallons in excess of the 1938 consumption.

Beer drinkers quaffed 146,736,000 gallons of brew. Hard liquors sold in the state amounted to 12,308,532 gallons. Consumption of wine of more than 14 per cent alcoholic content was 2,883,536 gallons, and wine under 14 per cent, 614,740 gallons.

Over 24,000 liquor dispensaries distributed the beverages. The state's tax share was $9,963,515, of which $2,934,720 came from beer, $6,154,266 from hard liquors, and $874,529 from wines.

G. O. P. CANDIDATE LINKS CAPITAL'S PINKS WITH REDS

Must Be Defeated This Year, Says Brooks.

C. Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for United States senator, last night added "Washington pinks" to the coalition of Reds and Russian sympathizers he said must be defeated in this year's national election. He spoke at the sixth annual meeting of the National Association of Hardwood Wholesalers in the Congress hotel.

"The American people are tired of being bewildered by an old world so cruel," he said, "and they are likewise weary from constantly new emergencies proclaimed by executive edict every few weeks here at home.

Seeks Armistice at Home.

"They should be assured now that we will not enter the European war and also that we will have an armistice in the war which has been waged against American business for the last seven years by our own government.

"The only war we need to wage, and wage relentlessly, in America is against all those who have found their way into high places in our government and are using that power and using public funds to tear down the American system and implant foreign philosophies in its place.

Tired of Frustration and Fright.

"The American people are tired of being frustrated and frightened. We need a change. The coalition of Reds, Washington pinks, and Russian sympathizers will be defeated in 1940 and America will demand greater statesmanship in labor, business, and public office.

"We can then consolidate our gains and start putting our house in order for peace and plenty. Every proposal presented to congress today should be viewed from a twofold viewpoint. Will this proposal help keep America out of war? And will it help put 10 million unemployed back to work?

"There is no substitute for a good job in private enterprise."

Justice Can Complain with Justice That There is None

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme court learned today that, due to an error, the new Congressional Directory lists the court members: "Mr. Chief Justice Hughes, Mr. Justice McReynolds," etc., right down to the newest member of the court, who is set down merely as "Mr. William O. Douglas."

Boy, 11, Dashes Thru Flames to Save Mother, 5 Children

WARREN, Ont., Jan. 5 (AP).—Dashing thru flames, 11 year old Leo Bibeau guided his mother and two sisters safely out of their burning home early today, dropped two younger children from the second story into waiting arms below, and then jumped safely into the snow with the baby in his arms. Joseph Bibeau, father of the family, had left to work in the fields when the house caught fire, apparently from an overheated furnace.

2 MILLION SLASH PLANNED IN CITY'S OPERATING FUND

Conferees Study Methods of Cutting 1940 Costs.

A reduction of approximately $2,000,000 will be made in the city's 1940 operating budget when the council calls it up for passage next Wednesday, it was reported yesterday after a five hour conference of council finance committee leaders and department heads.

The budget was set tentatively at $58,078,392 when the finance committee presented it to the council on Dec. 21. Contemplated reductions in the fund for 1940 will bring the budget to approximately $56,000,000, or below the $57,805,248 operating budget of 1939. A public hearing on the budget will be held Monday.

Since Dec. 21 the committee staff has been meeting with department and bureau heads to find means of reducing expenditures by approximately 5 per cent. Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], finance committee chairman, returned to Chicago yesterday after a 10 day stay in California and conferred with Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th], vice chairman, and staff members.

Conference to Continue.

Arvey said the conference, which included consultations with department and bureau heads, will continue. The proposed reductions will be submitted to the finance committee when it meets Monday with Mayor Kelly.

A 5 per cent reduction would reduce the tentative budget approximately 3 million dollars. Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said, however, that improved alley cleaning service can be given if $500,000 is spent for new equipment and an additional $400,000 is provided for garbage disposal. Inclusion of these items would bring the total reduction to approximately 2 million dollars.

Two plans for effecting the decrease have been considered. The first is a general reduction in all requests bureau heads made for funds for 1940. This program has been carried on thru consultations with finance committee staff members.

Would Eliminate Vacant Jobs.

The second plan is the elimination of all city jobs now vacant. The finance committee felt that if departments could operate with certain positions vacant in 1939 they could continue to do so in 1940.

The police department has 194 vacancies. If these jobs were eliminated, a salary reduction of $442,020 would result. There are 103 vacancies in the fire department, totaling approximately $230,000 in salaries.

It also is planned to limit car allowances for city workers to $47 a month. Some workers previously received allowances of $70 a month.

CHICAGO RENEWS DRIVE AGAINST SMOKE NUISANCE

15 Building Operators Get Firing Advice.

Renewal of the campaign against violators of the city's antismoke ordinance was announced yesterday by Frank A. Chambers, head of the city smoke abatement department. Chambers said 35 inspectors are observing smoke stacks in the city and inspecting heating equipment.

Yesterday 15 owners or operators of buildings where heating plants were seen to be creating a smoke nuisance, appeared before department inspectors and promised to correct the faults. They were advised on proper methods of firing furnaces. Seventeen other violators were cited to appear Monday.

Chambers said the importance of correct furnace firing has increased with the colder weather. He warned householders against the tendency to overheat their furnaces.

Unburned coal should not be thrown on top of burning coal, Chambers said. Such a method heats the unburned coal before it is ignited and fumes or gasses pass up the flue.

Chambers said the correct method is to push the burning coal to one side of the fire box, and place the unburned coal on the empty side. This permits the fire to eat gradually downward into the fresh coal. Fumes or gas from the unburned coal then pass up thru the burning surface coal and are consumed.

LOW CEILINGS THWART SPORTSMAN AIR RACE, BUT THE SHOW GOES ON

Miami, Fla., Jan. 5 [Special].—Low ceilings and freezing mist north of Jacksonville, Fla., today washed out the sportsman pilots' speed race to the all-American air maneuvers here, but the show here went on as scheduled, with the temperature at 80 and in brilliant sunshine.

The first race of the day was won by Edward Walz of Camden, N. J., in a Continental powered Luscombe at 103.869 miles an hour around a 10 mile quadrangular course. Walz war a member of the flivver plane cavalcade.

The second race was for Aeroncas and was won by Ellis Eno of Fort Dodge, Ia., in the specially streamlined Continental powered Chief he flew in the air tour. Eno's time was 98.9 miles an hour.

Seven girl pilots flying ships with 65 or 75 horsepower motors competed in a women's light plane race. The winner was Virginia Snodgrass of Waterloo, Ia., in a Taylorcraft. She averaged 104.035 miles an hour around a special 25 mile course.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 5 [Special].—Altho the temperature was far below freezing it did not stop baptismal ceremonies in the ice covered waters of Mashpaug pond by members of the Church of God. Holes were cut in the ice to permit three candidates to be plunged into the pond.

FAIRBANKS' WILL LEAVES MILLION TO THIRD WIFE

Mary Pickford Receives No Mention.

New York, Jan. 5 (AP). — Douglas Fairbanks' will was filed today, bequeathing half his estate, up to a million dollars, to his widow, the former Lady Sylvia Ashley of England.

No mention was made of Mary Pickford, his second wife, nor of his first wife, the mother of Douglas Fairbanks Jr. She is now Mrs. Jack Whiting, wife of a musical comedy actor.

The dashing movie hero, who died in Santa Monica, Cal., on Dec. 12, left 12-40 of his property, up to $600,000, to Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and $400,000 to his "brother and other relatives."

Dated Just After Marriage.

The will was executed on Nov. 2, 1936, shortly after Fairbanks married Lady Ashley. A considerable part of his property was in United Artists, a film producing concern in which Miss Pickford is a partner. She now is the wife of Musician Buddy Rogers.

Among the bequests were $10,000 to the Motion Picture Actors' Relief fund of Los Angeles, to be known as the "Douglas Fairbanks fund," $10,000 to Charles L. Lewis of Los Angeles, Cal., $37,500 in a trust fund to Kenneth Davenport of Hollywood, and $37,500 to a cousin, Mrs. Adelaide Crombie of Los Angeles.

Four Nieces Named.

Four nieces—Flobelle Burden, Mary Margaret Chappellet, Letitia Fairbanks, and Lucille Fairbanks — also shared in the estate. A trust fund of one-fortieth of the residue, not to exceed $50,000, was provided for each.

The will, which covered 13 typewritten pages, named as executors the Guaranty Trust company of New York, which filed the document, and the Bank of America National Trust and Savings association of Los Angeles.

Jury Clears Policeman in Traffic Row Slaying

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury in the death of Albert Cline, 25 years old, 2548 North Halsted street. He was shot and fatally wounded by Sergt. James McGinnis in front of 1348 Madison street on Dec. 6. Testimony showed that Cline and two companions had become involved in a traffic scrape with another motorist and that McGinnis identified himself as a policeman and tried to intercede. Cline and his companions, it was testified, attacked the sergeant, who fired after being severely beaten.

Another Young Woman Escapes Uninjured.

A girl and her escort were killed last night when the coupe in which they were riding was struck by the Dixie Mail, fast passenger train of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad, at the 144th street crossing in Dolton. Another girl, also in the car, crawled out of the wreckage unhurt.

The dead were Miss Dorothy Medendorp, 18 years old, 13829 Atlantic street, Riverdale, and Charles Ted Williams, 19, of 138th street and Racine avenue, Riverdale. Miss Medendorp's sister, Betty, 20, escaped and was the first to notify police of the tragedy.

Side of Car Torn Off.

She said they were returning from a movie, driving east. Dorothy was sitting in the middle, with Williams driving. Betty saw the southbound train and screamed. Williams swung his car to the right. The locomotive tore off the left side of the coupe.

Betty Medendorp opened the one remaining door and got out.

The train was in charge of Engineer F. J. Wheeler. The crossing has 12 tracks at the place where the accident occurred. The Dixie Mail was running on the ninth track, counting from west to east.

"I thought we had cleared the tracks," said Betty. "Then I saw the headlight of the locomotive bearing down on us."

There are no blinker signals or gates at the crossing. Signs at each side are of the crossed board type bearing the words "Railroad crossing —12 tracks."

Policeman Fatally Injured.

Policeman Frank Morrall, 53 years old, of the Stanton Avenue station, was injured fatally yesterday when his automobile collided headon with a street car at 78th street and Vincennes avenue. Morrall was driving home in Vincennes avenue when, witnesses said, his car skidded on the rails and swerved into the path of the street car.

Morrall died in the St. George hospital. He was a member of the Morgan Park police force when the suburb was annexed in 1914. He then became a Chicago policeman. In his career he received 16 creditable mentions and won extra compensation twice. He lived at 8526 Sangamon street. Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Kate Morrall; a daughter, Elizabeth, and a son, William.

Alexander Ross, 41 years old, 4520 Sheridan road, a salesman, died last night in the Henrotin hospital of injuries suffered on Dec. 28 when he was struck by an automobile as he was standing on the sidewalk in front of 165 West Wacker drive. The driver was George R. Tennyson, 19, of 1738 Madison street. Police said he attempted to pass a truck on the right side and went upon the sidewalk.

Victim of Crash Dies.

Willard Reed, 59 years old, 356 Whitney avenue, Joliet, died in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, of injuries suffered Dec. 24 in an automobile collision in Niles Center. Reed's wife, Catherine, was injured. The driver of the other car was Albert Alexenburg, 1329 Estes avenue.

Nathan Morey, 72 years old, 208 South Albany avenue, a milk dealer, died in his home of injuries suffered Dec. 26 when his truck hit a fire hydrant at 4224 Chicago avenue.

Max Bakal, 66 years old, 1416 South Trumbull avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile at Douglas boulevard and Homan avenue. The driver was Harold Rosenthal, 3714 Roosevelt road.

Hurt on Holiday; Dies.

Theodore Henning, 51 years old, 4730 South Bishop street, died in County hospital of pneumonia. He was hit by an automobile at Ashland avenue and 42d street on New Year's day and suffered internal injuries.

An unidentified man about 60 years old was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile in front of 1500 North Cicero avenue. The driver was Leon Phillips, 1609 Garfield boulevard.

Two girls and five young men were injured last night when their car rammed a moving freight train on the Indiana Harbor Belt tracks at 119th street and Cicero avenue, near Oak Lawn. Miss Anna Jelenski, 16 years old, 3032 Lyman street, was the most seriously injured. She was taken to St. Francis' hospital, Blue Island, suffering from severe cuts. The others required only first aid. The driver of the car was Edward Juskiewcz, 20, of 1223 West 31st place.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 18 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 12 were killed in Chicago, where 301 persons were injured in the same period.

Young Woman Dragged Into Hallway and Raped

A young woman, 26 years old, was dragged into a hallway in the 1100 block Washburne avenue by a Negro last night and raped. He threatened her with a knife, she told police.

Crash Kills Actress

DOROTHY MACKAYE.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5 (AP).—Dorothy Mackaye, 37, former stage star and wife of screen actor Paul Kelly, died today from injuries suffered in an automobile accident. At her bedside were her husband and her daughter by a previous marriage, Mimi, 17.

Miss Mackaye served a 10 months prison term in 1928 on a charge of withholding information in connection with the slaying of her husband, Ray Raymond, by Kelly. Kelly served 2 years on a charge of manslaughter. Raymond died as a result of a beating he received in a fight with Kelly over Miss Mackaye's affections.

Driving alone Tuesday night to her husband's San Fernando valley ranch, she pulled off too far to the side of the road and struck a soft shoulder. Her car overturned three times, pinning her beneath the steering wheel.

OPEN NEW FIGHT ON CONGRESS ST. SUPERROAD PLAN

West Siders Declare It Lacks Loop Link.

BY HAL FOUST.

More opposition to the city's $32,000,000 Congress street superhighway plans was organized yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Motor club's west area council, a federation of 53 west side and west suburban neighborhood groups. State Representative Arthur M. Kaindl was directed as a spokesman for these local clubs and associations to appear before a city council committee meeting next Thursday morning with objections to the Congress parkway plans.

At another meeting yesterday northwest side civic leaders challenged a recommendation of Cook county highway engineers to build a $40,000,000 depressed superhighway northwest from the central business district, paralleling Clybourn avenue and then Elston avenue for most of the distance to Bryn Mawr and Harlem avenues.

Elevated Road Preferred.

The northwest siders, including Ald. William J. Cowhey [41st], said they preferred an elevated highway, which could be built at about the same cost to parallel an existing embankment of the North Western railroad. This is the Avondale avenue route, which has been advocated for more than a decade.

The west siders and west suburbanites, 26 of them notwithstanding near zero weather, met in the Central Plaza hotel and without a dissenting vote approved a committee report condemning the city's Congress street plans as lacking connections with the central business district and with rural highways.

In attendance were officers of chambers of commerce, Lions clubs, Kiwanis, and Optimist clubs of Oak Park, Forest Park, River Forest, Franklin Park, Austin, and other west side districts.

Changes View on Plan.

Even Frank R. Campbell of the Mid West Side Kiwanis club, a director of the Congress Street Development council, an organization promoting the $32,000,000 parkway project, spoke against it.

"I'm not so hot for it as I was," he said. "It seems to be putting too much money in a short mileage. Many west siders have told me that by the time they would drive as far south as Congress street they could get to the loop by way of Washington boulevard. Furthermore, I don't know what would become of the 20,000 or 25,000 persons who would be dispossessed in condemning a block wide right of way for the development."

The northwest siders met in the office of the Cook county highway department at the invitation of the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Chicago Regional Planning association, and the Chicago Motor club. These three organizations have been delegated to pass judgment on the northwest superhighway plans, prepared by the county engineers.

"The northwest side," said Ald. Cowhey, "is split by this earth embankment used by the railroad. A depressed highway on the Clybourn-Elston route, closing many local streets, would form a second barrier thru this district. We want a superhighway of any type at any location, but we prefer an elevated highway next to the existing railroad wall."

DELAYS HEARING ON BOWEN MOVE TO QUASH CHARGE

A motion to quash indictments charging A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare, and two others with malfeasance in office was continued yesterday until Jan. 12 by Judge Roscoe C. South in the Circuit court at Kankakee. John A. Mayhew, defense counsel, indicated he was ready to argue to the motion. Ralph T. Hinton, managing officer of the Manteno State hospital, and Mrs. Lillian Williams, dietitian, are the co-defendants. Dr. D. Louis Steinberg, assistant managing officer, also was indicted, but did not join the others in the motion. The indictments followed last summer's typhoid epidemic at the hospital.

Cab Driver Ordered Held on Manslaughter Charge

A coroner's jury recommended yesterday that Alfred Stein, 3149 Leland avenue, a taxicab driver, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Patrick J. McAndrews, 39, of 4810 Walton street, a street car conductor. McAndrews was struck by Stein's cab as he was alighting from a street car at Cicero and Chicago avenues on Dec. 30.

JULIET AND HER ROMEO ESCAPE BY AIR AND WED

North Conway, N. H., Jan. 5 (AP).—The turbulent, parent balked romance of pretty Eileen [Juliet] Herrick and George [Romeo] Lowther III. rocketed into a long delayed rendezvous with a preacher in this White mountain ski center today.

The wedding, made possible by a waiver of the state five day law, followed two months of frustrated courtship during which Lowther twice brought legal action against his bride's parents' undetailed objections to him.

With Ski Maestro Hannes Schneider as best man, the New York girl, 20 years old, and the handsome insurance salesman, 30, were married by the Rev. Raymond Phelps of the Congregational church.

They arrived suddenly by plane from Portland, Me., where they flew early today from New Haven, Conn. The couple had gone to New Haven by train from New York.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

THE BUDGET MESSAGE.

The President sent to congress Thursday the budget for the final half year of his administration and the initial half year of his successor's. The budget was accompanied by a message largely devoted to justifying the financial policies he has followed since early 1933.

Eight and a half billion dollars is the figure Mr. Roosevelt arrives at as the aggregate of necessary expenditures for the year ending June 30, 1941. By any standard of measurement this is excessive. It is double the post-war budgets. It tops the expenditures in the early years of his administration, when Mr. Roosevelt was trying, as he later has admitted, to unbalance the budget, and calling on any one with an idea about money spending to send it in. Not counting the soldiers' bonus, the new budget calls for a larger outgo than in any Rooseveltian year previous to 1939.

But this figure of 8½ billion, so vast by previous comparison, is certain to be exceeded. The relief item in the total was held down to 1.3 billions. That would be enough, the President pointed out, only if there was continuing business improvement. Obviously timed to appear on the same day as the budget message was a statement from the secretary of commerce that improvement in business is not continuing.

Thus the President is saying that the expenditures for last year can be trimmed a little only on the assumption of no interruption of a certain condition and has his adviser say at the same time that the interruption has occurred. Similarly, on the assumption of constant improvement now officially indicated as contrary to fact, the revenue of the government will mount to 5 billion 548 millions. Further, the revenue will be increased by 460 million dollars, again if congress enacts a new tax bill, which is doubtful at least, since congress always is shy at raising taxes in election years. Again, if conditions permit some of the government corporations are going to turn back 700 million dollars to the treasury. Deducting all of these if items from the 8½ billion of expenditures, the President arrives at a figure of 1.7 billions as the deficit for the year.

The formal budget is a comparatively recent innovation in the national government. During the treasuryship of Andrew Mellon, in which the budget was introduced, it always was in balance. He saw to it that the budget was the actual plan of the nation's finances for a year. The probable expenditures were fully stated, and income was conservatively estimated, just as in any well run business. Under Mr. Roosevelt the budget has become the annual January joke. He withholds from it some of his proposals for spending and overestimates the income.

Thus the budget figure for the deficit is nothing like the one subsequently realized. Mr. Roosevelt placed the deficit three years ago at 518 million dollars. It actually turned out to be six times as large. He understated the excess of expenditures over income by 2.6 billions two years ago and by 1.4 billions last year. In his term of office he has underestimated all his deficits for a combined total of 11.5 billion dollars.

Mr. Roosevelt's explanation of his financial policies is remarkable for many reasons. The principles of financial management followed by the largest business of the country are condemned as unsound and harmful by every American authority, both financial and economic. Mr. Roosevelt's views on finance as stated in his budget message are also remarkable because they are completely at variance with what he said when he was a candidate and immediately after he took office. He then believed and boldly asserted that "a government which continues to pile up deficits is on the road to bankruptcy." These were his exact words in his address on the budget just before the 1932 election.

On Thursday he asserted in his message that "in the early thirties—prior to 1933—the financial policy consisted in trying to keep expenditures as low as possible in the face of shrinking national income. Persistence in this came near bankrupting our people and our government."

Franklin D. Roosevelt [1939] agrees with Franklin D. Roosevelt [1932 and early 1933] only in believing that the country faced bankruptcy. Earlier he asserted that it was because the government spent too much. Now he asserts that it was because the government was spending too little. Most men of experience agree that he was right the first time and that he has greatly accentuated the hazard of collapse.

There is an explanation for this remarkable disagreement between Franklin D. Roosevelt now and the gentleman of the same name of eight years ago. But we aren't going to tell you what it is and spoil your enjoyment in reading an article in the Graphic section of tomorrow's TRIBUNE, telling what the explanation is. The article is entitled "The Englishman Who Rules America."

MR. MURPHY TO THE SUPREME COURT.

Some criticism of the nomination of Attorney General Frank Murphy to the Supreme court has been voiced in Washington on the ground that he is inadequately prepared in legal learning and experience. These are serious deficiencies in a candidate, but they are not easily proved. It is true, of course, that Mr. Murphy had only the ordinary law school training, followed by a year or two in private practice and a brief term in a minor judicial office in Detroit as specific preparation for the Supreme bench, but it would not necessarily follow that he was lacking in the intellectual and temperamental qualifications expected of a judge of the highest court.

It can be said with considerable certainty, however, that Mr. Roosevelt was not greatly concerned about his candidate's experience or inexperience, learning or lack of it. Mr. Murphy seems to owe his appointment to other considerations. Mr. Roosevelt's purposes may be inferred from other acts and circumstances.

Mr. Murphy was governor of Michigan at the time of the lawless sitdown strikes. The courts of his state ordered the trespassers out of the factories. They refused to go in defiance of the courts and of the officials who sought to enforce the court edicts. In these circumstances, faced by a rebellion of menacing proportions which he was sworn to put down, Mr. Murphy did a little less than nothing even when he saw his own capital city, Lansing, taken over by the mob. He actually employed the militia of his state to protect the sitdown strikers in their lawlessness.

Mr. Murphy's record was sharply disapproved by the people of Michigan. They refused to re-elect him to the governorship. They wanted a governor who would enforce the laws of Michigan, not the dictates of the C. I. O. or the communists who were influential in its counsels. It can scarcely be doubted that Mr. Roosevelt took exactly the opposite view. The reasons which prompted the people of Michigan to toss Mr. Murphy into the discard were the reasons which persuaded Mr. Roosevelt to make him his attorney general and later to nominate him to the Supreme court.

Mr. Roosevelt's tenderness toward the men of violence, the communists, and revolutionaries is an outstanding characteristic of his administrations. It is only a few days since Dean Landis, a Roosevelt favorite, selected as examiner to hear the evidence regarding Harry Bridges, dismissed as unproved the charge that Bridges was a communist and thus prevented his deportation. Bridges is the C. I. O. leader on the west coast and as such has been a principal figure in a long series of bloody civil disturbances.

Mr. Roosevelt granted recognition to the murderous Russian tyranny and from time to time has felicitated its leaders. He has found much to admire in the economic planning imposed by the communist dictators and has sought to introduce it in this country. He has been impatient of the restraints imposed by the constitution and the Supreme court upon the spread of totalitarianism in this country, and to surmount these obstacles he sought to pack the Supreme court. Tho he failed there, he was enabled to appoint to the court men who would further his aims.

Only the other day the Supreme court, in which his influence is now dominant, decided that the labor board may deprive workingmen of the right to choose their own bargaining agents, a right which the Wagner act and the labor board were supposed to guarantee. The court said it could not protect a minority of workingmen against an oppressive decree of an agency of the federal government, a new departure in our jurisprudence. It may be only a coincidence that the beneficiaries of this decision were precisely Mr. Bridges and the C. I. O., which have been responsible for so much bloodshed and economic dislocation on the Pacific coast.

The influence of the communists in the C. I. O. and many of its constituent organizations has been demonstrated repeatedly, beyond possibility of doubt, but Mr. Roosevelt has continued to play ball with the leaders of the organizations and especially with John L. Lewis. Thru Mr. Lewis the Roosevelt campaign fund was sweetened to the extent of half a million dollars, and more money from the same source is expected in the forthcoming election. It can hardly be a coincidence that Mr. Roosevelt, who permitted the contribution to be accepted, was considerate of Mr. Lewis' desires in setting up the coal control machinery and more especially in the labor board.

Mr. Murphy's appointment fits neatly into the same pattern. The court is to have another judge who will take no steps to prevent the growth of dictatorship in this country, who can be counted upon to take a friendly view toward men of violence, and who will look upon the spread of communistic ideas and practices without dismay.

Editorial of the Day

POETIC JUSTICE FOR FEDERAL JOB HOLDERS.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

Federal job holders once upon a time were the fair haired boys of the income tax system. For years they enjoyed exemption from state income levies, a juicy privilege that ended only recently, when the Supreme court abolished it. Government employés have stifled their protests and are facing stoically the prospect of paying taxes in 32 states, at least, but fresh screams are rending the air as many of them realize they now face a threat of double taxation.

This arises from the District of Columbia's new income tax law, applicable from 1940 on to all federal workers residing there. Rulings are coming along from various states holding that federal employés who keep their former legal residence, so they may vote or run for office, are still subject to the home commonwealth's tax, regardless of their payments to the District.

Double taxation is, of course, not a nice thing, but what ordinary tax paying citizen is going to lead a crusade to save the job holders from it? By and large, the public will take a mildly sadistic joy in seeing these former beneficiaries of exemption now squirming under a double burden. And it is, of course, an instance of poetic justice. However, some good may be accomplished while waiting for congress to free them from the district tax; some of the job holders may go so far as to give up their purely formal citizenship in distant states. Anything that helps reduce this item of political camouflage is to be welcomed.

TALK ABOUT TWELFTH NIGHT.

Today marks the true close of the Christmas season, and the anniversary of three shadowy and appealing characters—the Wise Men, Magi or Kings, who came to Bethlehem bearing gifts. If the facts of their mystical journey were known, what a story it would make!

* * *

They may have been star worshipers from Persia, or Buddhist priests from India—characters such as you find in Kipling's "Kim." But we like to think that they were grand lamas from Lhasa in Tibet, always a city of mystery. Their pilgrimage in search of a Divine Child is typical of Lamaism.

* * *

They were the original Christmas gift bearers, 12 days late. Their gifts were, no doubt, intended as symbols—gold for an eternal crown, frankincense for universal worship, myrrh for the general cleansing of hearts. So they came and so they went, in a night and a day, entering and leaving the Great Drama to convey the message that this Child was not for the small land of Palestine alone, but for the whole world.

* * *

The folklore of Twelfth Night has faded almost completely out of American customs, except for the religious observances of today's Feast of the Epiphany. But the occasion is red lettered in literature by Shakespeare's comedy; and the phrase always recalls gracious Viola, melancholy Orsino, fatuous Malvolio, roystering Sir Toby Belch, and "If music be the food of love, play on; give me excess of it." This play is, among other things, the most famous example of the use of an irrelevant title.

THE MODERN INFERNO.

Dim, eerie light, uncanny blue around
The Arc de Triomphe and Champs Elysées,
The Place des Invalides in shadow bound,
And dark the Seine and ancient La Cité.

And Piccadilly Circus plunged in black,
The light in Stratford out. A ghoulish glare
Along the Thames Embankment and the Strand,
Funereal glimmer in Trafalgar Square.

A letter postmarked Hastings: "We are safe
So far. We cannot tell you any more.
All Europe in eclipse—hill, city, shore.

While we across the ocean glimpse afar
The ghastly, ghostly blackout that is war.

If yer family had a bit of respect fer an indisposed parent, it woodn' be so tough draggin yerself back. After a binge my name's Garbo, yea, I vant to be alone.

By noon, with great effort I drag me to tha parlor sofa an I aint there 2 minutes when Spot, my black and white fox terrier, jumps on my stomach. He immediately added to his collection an now boasts of some red an blue spots.

Next comes my darling daughter, Mary, with 2 blasts from a tin horn. If she can sit down before Valentine's day I'm mistaken. After a few minutes of dozing off, little Joan dropped her mitten on tha carpet an I'd a swore tha piano tipped over. To cap tha climax, the Duchess brings in a dish of pickled herring. Some goof tole her that it was good fer jitters. One smell of that act was all I needed to bring back sweet memories of tha 6 course dinner of tha night before.

There used to be an old saying that went something like "What goes up must come down."

Footnote to "Pirates of Penzance."

Be not at all surprised if you receive a handsomely engraved card announcing the wedding on Feb. 29, 1940, of Mabel, the oldest daughter of Maj. Gen. Stanley, to Frederick, the apprentice pirate.

For on that date Frederick will reach his 21st birthday and receive his journeyman's card from the Pirates of Penzance. As you may recall, he was in duty bound to adhere to the articles of indenture, and you know what Frederick's sense of duty was!

I am confident that unless the German U-boats torpedo his barque, the 84 year old Frederick will sail home and claim his bride soon, since this is the 21st leap year since his birth on Feb. 29, 1856. And I'll bet a pretty that Rupert d'Oyly Carte will be the best man.

WHEN FAT DIGESTION FAILS.

A PECULIAR digestive upset is known as Gee-Herter disease, steatorrhea, or celiac disease. For some curious reason the alimentary mechanism which governs the solution of fats goes on a strike and huge quantities of this substance are discharged via the stools.

As a rule, when cream, butter, olive oil, and the fats of meat reach the duodenum, the secretion from the pancreas welcomes this constituent and converts it partly into soap. Simultaneously, bile aids in the process—acting as a solvent. The resulting compounds—glycerin, soap, and fatty acids—are taken up in the small intestine, where the fat is reconstituted and absorbed, finally reaching the blood. Should any single step along this pathway be interfered with—should the pancreas, for example, fail to produce its normal output—the chain will be broken. There is no place further along the tract where this component can be handled properly.

With certain persons the stomach will empty precipitately and the food may be hurried along. Sufficient time, therefore, may not elapse to permit the chemical modifications to take place. In consequence, the feces are loaded with unchanged, oily material.

Several years ago Samuel Gee described a malady closely resembling sprue. It was thought that an inadequate flow of bile was to blame. While the origin is not yet known, we must admit that the failure of the body to utilize fat may be the basis.

There appears to be no essential difference between celiac disease, so-called, and sprue. In children—at first—there is an obvious loss of appetite with some looseness of the bowel. Discharges then become copious in amount, foul smelling, and pale. The bulk is so great that it can scarcely be accounted for by the meals eaten. Anemia is quite marked and increases in severity. In fact, the youngster represents an irritable, stunted child with thin legs, arms, and a soft watermelon "tummy." The enlargement of the abdominal area is due to distention and hence stretching of the wall.

The pasty face, the listless attitude, and the lack of growth are quite typical. Not infrequently the altered disposition is cause enough to suspect the true nature of the trouble.

Fortunately, the remedy is relatively simple. The first requirement is to prescribe a strictly fat-free diet. All cream, butter, meat fat, and egg yolk are omitted. Starches and sugars are greatly reduced and saccharin may be substituted for sweetening purposes. Proteins, therefore, remain as the chief items on the menu. Cottage cheese, the whites of eggs, skimmed milk, mashed bananas, orange juice, and honey are the articles allowed. In addition, large doses of vitamins A, B, C, and D and calcium are supplied. Vitamins cannot be administered as cod liver oil or halibut oil, as such a procedure will upset the dietary program designed to exclude greasy particles.

Under this management, improvement will be noted very soon, altho an occasional case will prove stubborn. The content of the colon loses its bulky, slimy character, the abdomen begins to regain its tone, and appetite returns. Within a short while a steady gain in weight is observed despite the sparsity of the diet. Iron may be needed to aid the anemia and any soluble form may be administered by mouth.

But this ailment is not confined to children wholly. A similar disorder affecting adults is termed nontropical sprue. Those who have never lived near the equator may exhibit bowel movements generously loaded with yeast, a characteristic of the type peculiar to torrid regions. Whether or not these plant fungi are responsible is not clear.

Naturally, fats that are not absorbed must be expelled. It is only by relieving that portion of the digestive machinery which is immediately concerned that function may be restored. After a time—as health returns—this food element may be added slowly and cautiously.

PAINLESS BUMP.

M. B. writes: My 34 year old brother developed a soft bump on his head, just behind the right ear. It is the size of a golf ball. It does not grow any larger and causes no pain. Since our father died of cancer, I am worried about this lump.

REPLY.

A soft tumor in this area is probably a sebaceous cyst or a lipoma. Neither is serious. These growths may be removed easily under a local anesthetic. A visit to your physician is advised.

VITAMIN B HELPS.

J. S. writes: For over ten years I have been a victim of chronic multiple neuritis, affecting arms, shoulders, and finger tips. There is a partial paralysis. Would injections of vitamin B be helpful in my case?

REPLY.

Injections of vitamin B have been recommended for this condition. Beneficial results often follow its use. Generous doses are suggested.

NO.

N. M. writes:

1. Is there such a thing as eating too much raw fruit?
2. Are fruits capable of producing an acid condition of the body?

REPLY.

1. Not unless you are sensitive to certain varieties or suffer from an irritable colon.
2. No. Citrus products [oranges, lemons, etc.] furnish alkaline elements.

NOT THE SAME.

J. G. writes:

1. What is meant by intestinal putrefaction?
2. Is it the same as "autointoxication?"

REPLY.

1. A condition in which the food decomposes instead of digesting normally.
2. No. This term refers to an absorption of toxic materials from the bowel.

THEY NEED LUBRICATION.

J. W. writes: What is the cause of cracking knee joints? This is worse in the morning on getting up. The age is 35 years.

REPLY.

It is thought that lack of lubricating [synovial] fluid is responsible. It may be associated with some form of arthritis. Exercise and heat are suggested.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY VICENTE ALBANO PACIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, Philippine Islands. — A bad case of war jitters has hit Filipinos because they expect to be involved in war twice. Also, if taken by an enemy, they eventually may suffer more devastation from American attack than from any other source.

The Philippines may be invaded by Japan as a development of the Chinese-Japanese war. They may be invaded by Japan or Russia if the United States enters the European war or if Japan joins the Berlin-Moscow front.

In either case, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's plan of strategically retreating from the islands in the event of invasion and retaking them under more favorable circumstances may be followed.

Current developments lead the Filipinos to pessimistic war speculations. These include movement of American forces to the Philippines and Hawaii, the reported doubling of Singapore's defenses, and the hostile Japanese reaction to these developments.

All this, along with the expected attempt of Japan to oust Britain, France, and perhaps the United States from China, indicates that some developments may involve the Philippines in war. At the least, there still is the possibility that seizure of the Philippines is part of Japan's expansion program indicated by the taking of the Hainan and Spratley Islands.

President Manuel Quezon recently announced the complete loyalty of the Philippines to the United States and its readiness to throw its full support behind America in peace or war.

There is a widespread fear here that America eventually will be involved in the European war. Russia is not so far from the Philippines. But if Japan should join Germany and Russia, and the United States also is involved, the Philippines probably would be the first objective of Japanese operations on the Pacific.

If the Philippines are attacked before the United States can reinforce its forces here, both the American army and navy would have to fight while retreating because the 10,000 United States troops in the islands, supported by Corregidor and Stotsenberg forts, the Cavite and Olongapo naval bases, and the Asiatic fleet could not ward off a serious invasion, and Manila and all other towns and cities are wide open from the air. Altho Corregidor is reputed to be a modern fort with 16 inch guns, subterranean shelters, and ordnance and food sufficient for a six month siege, it cannot protect Manila except from enemies entering Manila bay, since enemy bombers above the city would be beyond the range of its antiaircraft guns. Corregidor was built when aerial warfare still was unknown.

The 10 year national defense plan of Gen. MacArthur has had less than four years of life and no acceleration of its execution has been noticed. Only a little over 40,000 enlisted men have been trained, while the air force and the off-shore patrol are just beginning to get attention. The Philippines does not own more than 50 airplanes and three torpedo boats, altho there is a long range program to build these branches up to some 500 airplanes and 24 torpedo boats.

This being the case, the plan of leaving the islands to the enemy at the outset of attack but of retaking them eventually will most likely be followed. Retaking the islands will probably be very difficult and destructive. Given time to consolidate their positions, the Japanese could hold the islands, the MacArthur plan estimates, against 500,000 men.

With such thoughts in Filipino minds, the feeling here is that the United States should keep out of war and that one way of doing so would be to reinforce the defenses of America's possessions.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Jan. 6, 1915.

[162d day of the world war; 128th day of the present war.]

PARIS—Further advances in Alsace were reported following the capture of Steinbach, with intensive fighting on the whole western line.

BERLIN—French attacks were repulsed in the Argonne and near Arras, according to German reports which stated that the French command had been wasteful in its sacrifice of troops to gain minor objectives.

PETROGRAD—Russians claimed the annihilation of the ninth Turkish army corps, consisting of 38,400 men, and destruction of portions of the 10th and 11th army corps.

GENEVA—Reports were confirmed that the Austrian battleships Viribus Unitis and Radetzke had been damaged seriously during an attack by the Anglo-French fleet at Pola, where the crippled vessels put in for repairs.

LONDON—The British government rejected an American proposal that American ships not be delayed if cargoes were certified officially by United States authorities.

A WARNING TO IRELAND.

Dubuque, Ia., Jan. 2.—Don't you think that the Irish Free State would do well to take warning from the fate of Czecho-Slovakia and Poland? Like the Irish, the Czechs and the Poles were oppressed for centuries, but when their hour of freedom struck they were not content to be free, but insisted on being oppressors in their turn. This brought on the German invasions and their present misery.

If the Irish Free State should succeed in taking over and oppressing Ulster it would only be a matter of time and opportunity for the Scotch and English to come to the rescue of their blood brothers and probably to do to the Irish Free State what the Germans have done to the Czechs and Poles. CAUTIOUS.

NORTH DIVISION HIGH.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—In 1875 three divisional public high schools were established in Chicago. The North Division High school, now called Robert A. Waller, is the oldest high school on the north side.

This year—1940—marks the 65th anniversary of the founding of old North Division. An Old-Timers' banquet and reunion is being planned by the alumni, and invitations will be sent to every old-timer whose address is known to the committee.

Of course there are a few thousand old-timers of this old school whose present addresses are unknown. The writer believes that many of these could be supplied by the readers of your column and, therefore, hopes that this appeal for names and addresses may be published as soon as possible.

MISS CORINNE CAMPBELL,
Corresponding secretary, Waller-North Division Alumni association, 2146 Dayton street, Chicago.

1934 TAX REFUNDS.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—For the information of "Waiting," the person who today in your column asked why the 1934 tax refunds have never been paid, may we state that only a few thousand of the 200,000 refund checks are still in our possession and that the remaining ones are being sent out as rapidly as the clerks can do so.

Only those taxpayers, however, whose tax bills were stamped "protested" when the bills were paid, are entitled to refunds. "Waiting" in the article stated that the Illinois Supreme court ordered the refunds paid in February. This is an error. The court did not order payment until June 1, 1939. JOHN TOMAN, County Treasurer.

A WAR BOOM.

Theodore, Ala., Dec. 30.—The American people should not be misled by the clever efforts of New Dealers to blame the war in Europe for any unfavorable developments in foreign trade, while denying that the war has caused important improvements in business or commerce. Just as the Wilson administration tried to take credit for the boom caused by the first world war, so this administration is trying to gain partisan advantage from improved conditions resulting from the present conflict.

A. W. PRESCOTT.

TWO LEGGED GOB REPLIES.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—I am sure the average doughboy, one legged or otherwise, does not share the opinion of "One Legged Doughboy" about changing the congressional medal of honor. And, speaking of the occupational safety of the navy, I'll admit it must have been dogone dangerous for all those soldiers, getting in each other's way during the blundering maneuvers of the middle west divisions a few months ago. The United States navy doesn't need a press agent—in this country. TWO LEGGED GOB.

THANKS FROM THE VETERANS.

Hines, Ill., Dec. 30.—We, the patients of ward G-4, Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital, on behalf of all the patients in this hospital, wish to extend our most sincere thanks to all the organizations and individuals who sacrificed so much and worked so hard collecting and distributing presents and Christmas cheer to the patients of this hospital.

PATIENT.

IN DEFENSE OF ADMIRAL BYRD.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—As a student of the antarctic for several years I feel the letter by Ted Leitzell, entitled "Byrd and Ellsworth," should not go unanswered. It appeared in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on Dec. 27. Apparently Mr. Leitzell either has a grudge against Admiral Byrd or an unreasoning admiration for Mr. Ellsworth—and, perhaps, both. Mr. Leitzell criticizes Admiral Byrd for his north pole flight merely because all but 100 miles of it had previously been explored by Ellsworth and Amundsen. Perhaps the greatest polar journey of all—that of the great Capt. Robert F. Scott to the south pole—was one which, except for 97 miles, had been made previously over the same ground by Sir Ernest H. Shackleton. Yet Shackleton's achievement has never dimmed that glorious and tragic journey of Scott.

The antarctic flight of Mr. Ellsworth, from Graham Land to Little America, is mentioned with high praise by Mr. Leitzell. It was a brilliant exploit, but a mere glance at the map of Antarctica will show it was only transcontinental in a limited sense. And Mr. Leitzell makes no mention of the long flight of Admiral Byrd over unknown and hitherto unseen territory to the southeast of Little America, to solve the problem of whether or not Antarctica was really two continents divided by an ice strait.

Mr. Leitzell speaks disparagingly of the vigil kept by Admiral Byrd at Advance Base, but he fails to tell that special and emergent local conditions developed at Little America which materially altered the original plans for Advance Base, both as to location and the number of men who were to have stayed there. He does not even mention that the purposes of Advance Base were scientific and that these purposes were fulfilled.

The credit for discovering Marie Byrd Land is largely taken from Admiral Byrd and given to Amundsen because three men of Amundsen's party visited Scott Land. As a matter of fact, Marie Byrd Land is between 120 and 150 degrees west longitude and Scott Land properly considered includes no part of it but adjoins it on the west, Scott Land being part of the Ross Dependency claimed by England.

Surely everything accomplished by Mr. Ellsworth cannot be marvelous, and everything accomplished by Admiral Byrd merely commonplace. Mr. Leitzell seems to wish to uphold the reputation of Mr. Ellsworth at the expense of Admiral Byrd, and he overlooks the fact that such arguments may imply that Mr. Ellsworth's achievements are not sufficient to stand on their own merit. In the opinion of this writer, both Mr. Ellsworth and Admiral Byrd can stand on their own performances. DAVID DAVIS.

MISSING HEIR.

Elgin, Ill., Dec. 27 [Legal Friend of the People]. — In the matter of the estate of my father which was settled in Probate court, Vermilion county, in March, 1928, one heir, my brother, has never appeared or been heard from.

1. The money is still being held for him. This summer my brothers and sisters decided that since no heirs had laid claim to this brother's estate, that I should have it.
2. The amount is so small that it wouldn't pay to turn it over to a lawyer. Now, I should like to know:
3. If I can lay claim to this amount and [4] to whom I should direct this claim. D. L. D.

1. You do not state who is holding it. The ordinary course would be to turn such a share over to the county treasurer and something like a lawsuit would be necessary in order to get it out of his hands. You can try writing to him.
2. We could advise to better advantage if you had stated the allowance.
3. Of course you can lay claim, but see preceding answers.
4. Depends on the facts as to who has the money. If you do not know the facts you should investigate the record of your father's estate in the Probate office.

ATTORNEY SHOT BY PRESIDENT OF UNION DIES

Wounded During Fight in Official's Office.

Leon R. Cooke, lawyer and founder of the Scrap Iron and Junk Handlers' union, who was shot four weeks ago in a fight with John Martin, president of the union, in Martin's office at 3159 Roosevelt road, died of his wound in the Mount Sinai hospital last night.

Leon R. Cooke.

Police immediately ordered the rearrest of Martin, who is out on bond of $1,000 on a charge of assault with intent to kill. He was freed several days after the shooting because Cooke's wound then was not considered serious. An infection developed, however, and this caused his death.

Calls at Office to Complain.

Cooke was 27 years old and lived at 1135 South Sacramento boulevard. Altho he was the founder of Martin's union, he held no office in the organization. He established the union about two and one-half years ago.

On Dec. 8 Cooke called at the union office to complain, he said later, about Martin's failure to get more pay for union employés in a certain junkyard. Martin, he related, became angry, grabbed a gun, and fired three shots at him. One struck Cooke in the back. He went to the hospital alone.

Martin disappeared immediately after the shooting, as did his secretary, Mrs. Gladys Walsh, 35, of 409 Walnut street, Hinsdale, a witness of the shooting. They surrendered to the police 24 hours later. Martin is 48, a veteran employé of the sanitary district, and lives at 8023 South Wolcott avenue.

Tells Story of Self-Defense.

Martin's story was one of self defense. He said Attorney Cooke came to his office and started to use his telephone. He told Cooke to put it down and get out. They quarreled, Martin asserted, and Cooke, he said, drew a revolver. Martin said he and Cooke struggled for the weapon and it was discharged. Mrs. Walsh told police she saw the struggle but did not know who fired the gun. Martin's face, when he surrendered, was cut and his eyes were discolored.

Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the state's attorney's office and Supervising Captain John Stege, working with Capt. Dan Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's investigating staff, seized the union records.

These showed that it had about 500 members paying dues of $2 a month. Their salaries range from $15 to $22.50 a week. According to Lieut. Kelly, the union paid no sick or death benefits and apparently did nothing for its members. The union was affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan said the local is now out of business.

ACCUSE UNION AID IN WILL COUNTY JUROR TAMPERING

An information charging Dennis Kelly, business agent of the Joliet bartenders' union, and his secretary, Miss Evelyn Welch, with attempting to tamper with a prospective juror was filed in Will county Circuit court yesterday by State's Attorney James E. Burke.

Kelly is one of several defendants accused of fraud in the county judicial election of last June 5. The prospective juror, Raymond Peterson of Lockport, was drawn in the panel which is to sit in the cases. The information charges that Miss Welch arranged with Peterson's brother, Robert, for an interview between Kelly and Raymond Peterson at which Kelly sought to persuade the prospective juror to "go along" with him.

Miss Welch lives at 20 North Hickory street in Joliet. Judge James V. Bartley ordered her and Kelly to show cause Jan. 13 why they should not be held in contempt of court.

U. S. JURY GIVEN UNION RECORDS IN BUILDING QUIZ

Records of the Ceramic, Mosaic and Encoustic Tile Layers union, local 67, were surrendered yesterday to the federal grand jury investigating the Chicago building industry. Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward ordered the records brought in and an hour later the union secretary, Robert E. Shepherd, complied.

Last Wednesday Shepherd refused to give up the records unless he was granted immunity. Leo F. Tierney, assistant United States attorney general in charge of antitrust prosecutions here, argued the government was not calling for Shepherd's personal testimony, but merely sought the records. Judge Woodward then issued the order.

Government attorneys obtained 25 subpenas yesterday for individuals and corporations in the plywood industry. This makes 210 subpenas issued to date with the prospect that the total will reach 500.

CALLS GAMBLING CASES FOOLISH; JURY ACQUITS 3

Prosecution of handbook operators was described as foolish yesterday by the foreman of a Municipal court jury which acquitted three men of a charge of operating a handbook.

The defendants, John Roche, Daniel Raymond, and Charles Mandello, were tried before Judge J. M. Braude in the Jury court. It was charged that they had operated a handbook in violation of the laws, at 3838 Chicago avenue. Their trial was the first handbook case before a jury in 1940.

Louis E. Himmel, 6421 Harvard avenue, foreman of the jury, was asked whether he believed that prosecution of such cases should be continued.

"It was the feeling of all the jurors in this case that such action is foolish," he replied. "The law is unpopular and should be changed. People want to bet on races, and they'll keep right on doing it."

Gov. Horner Can't Attend $25 Jackson Day Dinner

Gov. Henry Horner announced yesterday that the press of state business has forced him to cancel plans for attending the Jackson day dinner in the Palmer House Monday night. He said he would probably send a brief message to the party leaders who will be present at the $25 a plate dinner, planned to raise campaign funds. The governor is preparing for the impending special session of the general assembly.

TELL OF METHODS USED IN BALLOT FRAUD RECOUNTS

Election Officials Testify in Injunction Suit.

Officials and employés of the board of election commissioners testified yesterday in the Circuit court of Judge Robert Jerome Dunne about the methods used in counting ballots during the current investigation of frauds in the 1939 mayoral and judicial elections.

The witnesses were called after Judge Dunne decided to entertain a petition, filed by Attorney Joseph T. Harrington as a taxpayer, which asked that the entire investigation be halted temporarily by injunction. It is Harrington's contention that there should be no further action until the Illinois Supreme court acts on another suit, which requests an order that all the 1939 ballots be destroyed.

Refuses to Quash Plea.

Judge Dunne overruled a motion to quash the Harrington suit. He also denied a plea by attorneys for the election board that he issue or refuse the injunction without taking testimony.

The first witness called was Harry A. Lipsky, the board chairman. He asserted that neither he nor the board had appointed John Cashen special investigator and prosecutor of election frauds. The appointment was made, he said, by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki acting in his judicial capacity. Judge Jarecki is ex-officio a member of the election board.

Lipsky was then asked by Harrington if he or the board had appointed Dr. Katherine Keeler, handwriting expert whose testimony has been used in election fraud cases, or Stanley Wronski, who is custodian of the ballots held after elections. Lipsky said Dr. Keeler was not a board appointee, but that Wronski was.

"Did the board appoint James P. Connery a special commissioner to open ballot boxes?" was the next question. The answer was, no.

"Were you ever told by Judge Jarecki that the board was disqualified from examining ballots six months after the election?" Harrington asked. Again the reply was negative.

Not Present at Openings.

"Did you ever attend the opening of ballot boxes?"

"No," said Lipsky.

"Were representatives of political parties, as required by law, present at the opening?"

"Not that I know of," replied the board chairman.

Wronski described the handling of ballots after elections. He said that since 1932 precinct officials had delivered their boxes in the first floor corridor of the county building. These boxes were then loaded on trucks and taken to a warehouse at 4917 Broadway for storage, he said.

Under questioning, Wronski admitted that after the mayoral election last April the boxes were held for three days before they were formally checked. He was asked if any inventory was made of the precinct bundles, and he said one was made in the warehouse.

Connery testified that he had been an employé of the board since April and that he was paid $180 a month.

Gunmen Terrorize Home; Flee with Coat and Cash

Three masked gunmen invaded the home of Mrs. Helen Kaplan at 5037 North Hamlin avenue yesterday and terrorized Mrs. Kaplan; her father, Zelik Mednikoff, 85 years old; her daughter, Sylvia, 23, and her maid, Augusta Hartman. The bandits ransacked the house and escaped with a mink coat and a watch, both valued at $2,100, and $33 cash. Mrs. Kaplan is the wife of Harry Kaplan, a contractor.

WIDOW INDICTED FOR RUINING HOLC HOME SHE LOST

Accused of Wrecking It After Eviction.

When the Home Owners' Loan corporation started proceedings last August to evict Mrs. Augusta Carmichael, a widow 55 years old, from her home at 1646 Homer street, she warned that the HOLC would get only a shell.

Mrs. Augusta Carmichael.

When the HOLC moved in it got even less than that, and yesterday Mrs. Carmichael, who had lived in the home for 22 years, was indicted by the federal grand jury on charges of destroying government property.

Milton Lapore, assistant regional director of the HOLC said that when agents opened the door to repossess the home two inches of water covering the floors rushed out at them. He said the woodwork was daubed with green paint and the walls were daubed with oil. The plumbing was damaged and the kitchen sink had been removed and one of poor grade had been substituted for it.

Dismantling of House Charged.

The indictment charged Mrs. Carmichael with defacing the walls, destroying the fixtures, ruining the plumbing, and dismantling and flooding the house.

HOLC records showed that Mrs. Carmichael, who gave her occupation as a scrub woman, applied for an HOLC loan in October, 1934. At that time there was a $1,000 mortgage on the home and $3,022 was owed in taxes.

The HOLC lent her $2,854, to be repaid at the rate of $22.50 a month. Records showed that up to last July she had paid only $249, and her eviction was ordered.

Tells Neighbors of Defiance.

The HOLC complaint said that when Mrs. Carmichael received the eviction notice she told neighbors: "They'll get nothing but a shell, and if they put me in jail for it they'll have to feed me."

United States Attorney William J. Campbell said the HOLC has reported between 60 and 70 other instances in which houses have been wrecked by evicted owners.

Routs Two Robbers; Hits One with Meat Cleaver

Henry Martin's meat cleaver got the decision over a bandit's blackjack yesterday. The bandit, with a companion, came into Martin's Little Pig Hickory Pit barbecue at 952 Belmont avenue. He grabbed Martin by the shirt and tried to blackjack him. Martin twisted free, seized the cleaver, and struck his attacker over the head with the dull back edge. Both robbers fled.

CLEARS WOMAN JUROR IN FAILURE TO TELL OF SUIT

Judge U. S. Schwartz of the Superior court praised women jurors for their enthusiasm yesterday and cleared one of them of blame for failing to give information which might have disqualified her for jury service. The judge said:

"To women, the opportunity to serve on a jury is not only a duty to be performed conscientiously but also an exciting adventure. Most of them are eager to get to actual deliberation and decision of a case. To them it has not yet become a boresome and burdensome function to be performed by the other fellow."

Judge Schwartz paid this tribute when he over-ruled a motion to set aside a $5,000 verdict in a personal injury suit. One of the jurors, Mrs. Alphonse Young, 5341 Crystal street, failed to reveal that her husband had been plaintiff in a personal injury suit against the city when asked during selection of the jury whether any of her family ever had been a party to a personal injury suit. The defendant had asked that the verdict be set aside on the ground that Mrs. Young might have been prejudiced.

Financier Granted Parole After 10 Years in Prison

San Quentin, Cal., Jan. 5 (AP).—The state board of prison and paroles granted a parole today to Gilbert Beesemyer, 54, former Los Angeles financier. Ten years ago he entered San Quentin to serve 40 years in connection with the collapse of the Guaranty Building and Loan corporation of Hollywood. Acting Board Chairman Joseph P. Stephens said: "The board has decided to parole Beesemyer. He has a position in Chicago." Prosecutors said the Guaranty company shortage totaled $8,000,000.

PRESIDENT'S SON QUITS AS HEAD OF NEW RADIO CHAIN

Elliott Roosevelt Makes No Explanation.

New York, Jan. 5 [Special].—The resignation of Elliott Roosevelt as president of the projected Transcontinental Broadcasting system, which failed to open as planned on New Year's day, was affirmed here today by other officers of the network.

Roosevelt, son of the President, had been an organizer of the proposed new network. He resigned as of Dec. 31, giving no reason. In Fort Worth, Tex., Roosevelt declined to state why he had quit.

Last Minute Postponement.

After announcing some time ago that the network would make its bow Jan. 1 with more than 100 affiliated stations, Board Chairman John T. Adams, manager of the Texas State network, headed by Roosevelt, announced on Dec. 30 a last minute postponement until Feb. 1. Since then plans have been in doubt.

The network had announced that it had obtained contracts for approximately 35 hours a week of sponsored time. Then it was reported that clients who had reserved time declined to go thru with their commitments.

Special programs were arranged for New Year's day opening, but less than 48 hours before the debut the postponement was announced.

PRESIDENT'S VOICE HEARD.

The voice of President Roosevelt was heard on a commercially sponsored program—so far as is known for the first time—on W-G-N last night. A recording of a portion of President Roosevelt's message to congress Wednesday was broadcast on the I Want a Job program between 9:30 and 10 p. m. The program, sponsored by a clothing store, presents interviews with unemployed persons who are seeking jobs.

The program last night was devoted to interviews with unemployed youths, several of them college graduates. In his message to congress President Roosevelt touched on the need of solving the unemployment problem for youth. The advertising agency producing the radio program for the sponsor sent a telegram to President Roosevelt, requesting permission to rebroadcast, by way of a recording, that portion of his address. The request was granted, but it was stipulated that the paragraphs from the address used must be identified as to time and place of delivery and that no commercialization of the President's words be permitted.

FRED HINTZE, WHO SAILED LAKE FOR 55 YEARS, IS DEAD

Capt. Fred Hintze, one of the oldest of Lake Michigan skippers, who had sailed the lake for 55 years in craft ranging from a fishing tug to an excursion steamer, died yesterday in the United States Marine hospital. He was 78 years old.

Capt. Hintze continued active until about three months ago when he suffered a fracture of a hip in a fall in his home at 2814 North Maplewood avenue. He called his enterprise the North Shore Steamship Line. It will be carried on by his son, Fred Hintze Jr., and the latter's wife, Marie, first woman to hold a navigator's license on the lake.

Capt. Hintze took part in a number of thrilling lake rescues, among them the saving of many survivors of the Eastland disaster. He had eight children, and one of his strict rules was that all children should ride free on his boats.

Surviving are his widow, Emma, three daughters, Mrs. Clara Kohne, Mrs. Mary Ubel, Mrs. Marguerite Hall, and the four other sons, James, Edward, Alfred, and John. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the chapel at 3301 Fullerton avenue, with burial in Mount Emblem cemetery.

JOHN H. STEHMAN FUNERAL TODAY; PIONEER TEACHER

Funeral services for John Hess Stehman, a pioneer school teacher known as the "grand old man" of the Logan Square district, will be conducted at 2 p. m. today in the Avondale Methodist church, George street and Spaulding avenue. Mr. Stehman died yesterday at the age of 89. He was principal of the Avondale school from 1881 until his retirement in 1926, and was founder and chairman of the board of trustees of the Avondale Methodist church.

John H. Stehman.

Mr. Stehman was born in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, and received his early education in a log cabin school. He attended a teachers' college in Pennsylvania and came to Plainfield, Will county, in 1878, to teach school. Mr. Stehman and his wife, Letta, became the first teachers in the Avondale school in 1881, before Avondale was annexed to Chicago.

Surviving, in addition to his widow, are a son, John H. Jr., and three daughters, Mrs. Mary Duff, Mrs. Helen Houseman, and Mrs. Isabelle Cutting.

CLARA STERLING, FORMER CHICAGO PHYSICIAN, DIES

News was received here yesterday of the death of Dr. Clara C. Sterling, former Chicago physician and civic leader. She died on Thursday at the age of 72 on the plantation of her son, Douglas T. Sterling, near Macon, Ga.

Dr. Sterling practiced here from 1908 until 1937, when she retired to the plantation. She was on the faculty of the old Hering Medical college and was consulting physician for the women's auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. She was also an early leader in the field of child psychology.

A pioneer in the women's suffrage movement, Dr. Sterling helped organize the first women's suffrage convention in Illinois. She was the author of works of fiction as well as medical treatises.

OBITUARIES

Herman H. Kroeplin.

He was employed by Lyon & Healy from 1905 to 1924 and became a foreign buyer and manager of retail sales of small musical instruments. In later years he was in business for himself with offices at 306 South Wabash avenue. Surviving are his widow, Pearl, and a daughter, Marion.

Dr. Alexander M. Sowler.

Dr. Alexander M. Sowler, a practicing dentist in Chicago for 42 years, died yesterday in his home at 6597 Hiawatha avenue. Dr. Sowler was 67 years old. He was a life member of the Chicago Dental society, a member of the Illinois Dental society, and had offices at 3225 Lawrence avenue. Surviving are his widow, Clara, and a daughter, Mrs. Helen Lahr. The funeral will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 3224 Montrose avenue. Burial will be in Aylmer, Ont.

Dr. Oscar E. Grant.

Dr. Oscar Emanuel Grant, a former Chicagoan, died Thursday at his winter home in Fairhope, Ala., friends here learned yesterday. He was an eye, ear, and nose specialist, and practiced in Chicago for 25 years before moving south. Dr. Grant was born at New Windsor, Ill. Burial will be in Chicago.

CHARLES NAGEL DIES IN ST. LOUIS; IN TAFT CABINET

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 5 [Special].—Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor in President Taft's cabinet and one of the most successful lawyers in the middle west, died at his home here today.

Charles Nagel.

He was 90 years old, but despite his age he had been active in his legal business until a week ago. Death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Nagel often was referred to as the father of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

He was the last official to serve as secretary of commerce and labor. That post was divided into the separate departments of commerce and of labor in 1913.

Oldest Woman Physician in Kansas Frozen to Death

Atchison, Kas., Jan. 5 (AP).—Dr. Minda A. McLintock, 83 years old, believed to be the oldest woman physician in Kansas, was found frozen to death today at her home three miles south of Atchison. Dr. Robert C. Jeffries, coroner, said death was due to exposure. Miss Cora McLintock, 75, a sister, suffering from exposure, was taken to a hospital. Her condition was described as critical.

Connecting Horace, Lincoln, Field, and Lamon.

The greatest collector of Horace in the country, Stephen E. Hurley of Chicago, has among his 2,100 Horace editions a Horace from the library of Eugene Field. Mention of it was made in this column recently.

"I am wondering if this can be the volume which Ward Hill Lamon, bodyguard of President Lincoln during the war between the states, owned," writes Clint Clay Tilton of Danville. "In the papers of his daughter, Dorothy, now Mme. Xavier Teillard, of Mural, Cantal, France, is a letter written to her by Field upon being notified of her father's passing. It says in part:

I should like a further souvenir, either something that Lincoln gave your father or some little copy of Horace that your father read and loved.

The letter was dated Chicago, May 14, 1893.

Mr. Tilton continues: "In the Transactions of the Illinois State Historical Society for 1931 there appears a sketch dealing with the close relations that existed between Lincoln and the man about whom David Davis wrote: 'Lincoln trusted no man to the full, but he trusted Lamon more than any other.'

"Lamon is a neglected but picturesque figure in the Lincoln story who went his staggering, swaggering way, regardless of opposition or criticism, from the time of his legal partnership with Lincoln here in Danville until that day when he wept in public when the martyr was laid away. You may recall he was the one man selected by Lincoln to accompany him when he made the secret journey from Harrisburg to Washington."

Dancers at Luncheon.

It was fun seeing so many of the great dancers of the world—whom one usually sees only at night behind the footlights—at midday, eating artichokes with hollandaise and sweetbreads at the Arts club. It was Ruth Page's farewell luncheon before she leaves on a dance tour.

Danilova, gracious, smiling, blue-eyed, the bandage about her injured ankle showing thru her thin stocking; Paul Draper, his red hair shining above gray tweeds; Alice Markova, black-eyed, wearing black (she danced that evening in white in Rouge et Noire); Walter Camryn, Chicago dancer; Vincenzio Celli, the Chicago ballet-master of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe; Clifton Webb (and the Man Who Came to Lunch) was not like The Man Who Came to Dinner, in that he was witty without malice, gay; engaging]; beautiful Heidi Voessler; and Freddie Franklin, the superb young dancer with the Ballet Russe whom audiences applauded that evening in Ghost Town.

Book Title.

A man left an American Airlines flagship in Chicago the other day and forgot his copy of The Memoirs of Marshal Foch. He notified the company by telephone. A few days later he received a letter in reply that read: "We have made a thoro search for your lost book, L'Amours of Marshal Foch, bringing the matter to the attention of the stewardesses and station personnel between Chicago and New York."

The man is showing the letter around town delightedly.

"I think American Airlines has a great, tender spot somewhere under its great, powerful motors," he said.

City Prepares a Welcome for Finnish Envoy

BY JUDITH CASS.

HAVING just finished feting the British ambassador to the United States, Lord Lothian, Chicago is preparing to receive another distinguished statesman, the youthful and handsome Finnish minister, Hjalmar Procope. Mr. Procope will arrive from Washington next Thursday or Friday to be the principal speaker at a dinner the American Scandinavian Foundation will give on Friday night at the Stevens hotel.

The other speaker that night will be Gen. Charles G. Dawes. They are appearing with the stipulation that there be no solicitation of funds at the affair. The foundation was organized in 1911 with the gift of a half million dollars from Nils Poulson, a Dane. It was established to exchange graduate students between the United States and Scandinavian countries and to give Scandinavians and Americans a better opportunity to know each other.

Ira Nelson Morris Heads Midwest Branch.

Ira Nelson Morris, whose guest Mr. Procope will be, is the president of the middle west branch of the foundation. Dr. Henry Goddard Leach is president of the New York branch. Mrs. John Stephan is secretary of the local branch, but her duties are being taken over by Miss Mildred Fitz Henry, as Mrs. Stephan went to Arizona following the recent death of her father, Charles R. Walgreen.

Mr. Morris' sister, Mrs. Hubert Martineaux of London, is spending three or four days at the Drake hotel before returning to New York. Her husband is in the war office in London.

Milo Winter Jr. to Wed Elizabeth Klingensmith.

Interesting romantic news has come from Bloomfield Hills, Mich., where Mr. and Mrs. Frank Klingensmith have announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Ann, to Milo Kendall Winter Jr. Miss Klingensmith and Mr. Winter spent the week after Christmas with his parents, the senior Mr. and Mrs. Winter, at their Lake Shore drive apartment.

Mr. Winter and Miss Klingensmith met at the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Michigan, where she was studying sculpture.

Mr. Winter was graduated from the Chicago Art institute before entering Cranbrook. He is teaching in the Rhode Island School of Design in Providence. During the summers he assists Eliot O'Hara at the latter's water color school in Biddeford, Me. No plans have been made for the wedding.

Grannis-Ely Nuptials Today.

Mrs. Josephine Hamline Ely will become the bride of Uri Balcom Grannis today at noon in a quiet ceremony at the residence of her mother, Mrs. John Henry Hamline of Lake Forest. The Rev. Herbert M. Prince of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest will officiate.

Only the families will be present. Dustin, the oldest of the bridegroom's three sons, will be the best man. Mrs. Ely will have no attendants. Her younger daughter, Adrienne, will leave this afternoon to return to Dobbs Ferry.

Miss Martha Thomas to Be Bride Today.

A wedding of interest in Chicago is taking place in New York today. The bride is Miss Martha Thomas, daughter of Mrs. Cary Wood Thomas of New York, and of Charles Neil Thomas. She will be married to Timothy Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Fuller of Boston.

Thomas MacPherson Thomas of Chicago will give his sister away.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett will be at home in Lake Forest tomorrow from 4 until 7 o'clock to celebrate their tenth wedding anniversary. Jan. 5 is their anniversary, but Sunday is a better day for a party in the country than Friday.

Mrs. Bennett, the former Mrs. Olive Mary Holden Mead, and her daughter, Miss Betty Mead, are leaving next month for several weeks of hunting at Tryon, N. C. Mr. Bennett will join them later.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris have been saying "au revoir" to their Chicago friends for they are leaving today for their new home in Leesburg, Va. Leesburg is to be their permanent address. They plan to return in May for a visit.

Hold Preview Tomorrow of Architects' Ball.

The Sunday Tallyho luncheons which were discontinued at the Tavern club during the busy holidays will be resumed tomorrow. A dozen striking models will give a preview of some of the costumes that have been designed for the Architects' ball, to be given next Friday night at the Trianon ballroom. William Deknatel is chairman of the costume committee and those working with him are William P. Welsh, Victor Elting, and Fortunato Jerace.

The Dunham Woods Riding club skating rink was open over the last week-end, but its formal opening will not be held until tomorrow night. The club has planned a buffet supper, followed by a skating exhibition. Leonid Remisoff and Mrs. William Joyce are in charge of the party.

Good Morning!

Away back, when the movies were new and silent, Louella Parsons and I reviewed pictures for rival morning newspapers. . . . She went to Hollywood. . . . I stayed right in my own back yard, and for years we've known each other only thru the medium of our columns. . . . You can imagine what a kick I got yesterday—observing Louella as an actress—gracious, poised, and beautifully dressed—and renewing acquaintance with her back stage after her act was over.

As herself she appears in a well balanced little skit in which she introduces Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan, also in the Chicago's feature picture, "Brother Rat and a Baby"; June ["Babes in Arms"] Preisser, Arleen ["Young Mr. Lincoln"] Whelan, Susan ["Beau Geste"] Hayward, and Joy ["Little Accident"] Hodges. . . . She "previews" her column, answers fan letters, and threatens to sing a song by Micky Rooney—but is prevented from doing so. An entertaining act, and my congratulations to the star and her accompanying bevy of refreshing young people!

"Brother Rat and a Baby" is a lot of fun.

You will remember that in "Brother Rat" Wayne Morris, Eddie Albert, and Ronald Reagan were graduated from military college—Eddie and Jane Bryan, wed while Eddie was still an undergraduate, were the proud parents of a baby, while Morris and Reagan were in the happy throes of engagements to, respectively, Priscilla Lane and Jane Wyman. . . . This yarn picks them all up once more after a year has passed.

Billy Randolph and Dan Crawford are working in New York for Billy's father. Joyce and Claire are still in college. Bing and Kate and their baby boy, Commencement, reside in a small southern town where Bing is athletic coach.

He loses his job and the three come to New York by bus in the hope that Bing can land himself a job from Billy's father, president of the alumni association, and Claire's dad, Maj. Terry. . . .

Billy constitutes himself a Mr. Fix-it. Commencement hilariously provides complications aplenty. . . . Rings are swallowed, violins are hocked, money appears and disappears, steamship tickets are bought by one and turned back for cash by another, and in general mad and merry mixups—with just a soupçon of pathos thrown in for shadow relief—are the order of the day. The film ends on a joyous note and I think you'll love it.

The players are aptly cast and well directed. Dialog's clever and, all in all, the piece has what's known as ZIP.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Reviewing Stand.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 5.—You can doubt that this year in Hollywood will be distinguished, as was 1939, by the amount of novels transferred successfully to the screen. . . . "Gone with the Wind," "Northwest Passage," "The Rains Came," "Grapes of Wrath," "Of Mice and Men," "Gulliver's Travels," "Wuthering Heights," "Pinocchio," "Good Bye, Mr. Chips," "The Light That Failed," "The Wizard of Oz," "Disputed Passage," "Jamaica Inn," "Dust Be My Destiny," "We Are Not Alone," and "The Citadel" were noteworthy dramatizations of books in the last Hollywood year.

It is an amazing tribute to the novelists that of these 16 transferred to celluloid, at least 11 of them proved commercially successful. . . . Three of them, "Gone with the Wind," "Wuthering Heights," and "Good Bye, Mr. Chips" were included in the four top pictures of the season.

Selznick's "Gone with the Wind," as you have been assured in this space time and again, is busting and will break all boxoffice records. . . . In particular, it will crack the record established in 1926 by "Ben Hur," the book which was transferred to celluloid and grossed 4 million dollars. . . . No novel ever had proved so potent in screen form, and for 13 years "Ben Hur" has held that unique position. . . . "Gone with the Wind" will surpass that figure by at least 10 million by the time the final returns are in.

Movie studios, as a result of the 1939 windfall, will be shopping for everything between covers, because the enormous success of novels has focused attention on that field of writing. . . . Not that Hollywood should have needed a reminder, because novels always have been successful at the movie box office grilles.

"Little Women" grossed $2,500,000. . . . "Cimarron" hit a gross of $2,000,000 and introduced Irene Dunne to pictures. . . . Wanger's "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" ran up to $1,600,000 in world grosses. . . . "Daddy Long Legs" amassed $1,500,000.

Wesley Ruggles directed "Cimarron." We had lunch together yesterday at Lucey's, an Italian grotto restaurant which is close to the RKO, Paramount and Columbia studios and therefore is a favorite rendezvous of the film biggies.

I asked him to tell me something about Irene Dunne in her first picture and he grinned: "She was one of the poorest listeners I ever worked with." . . . I told him that I didn't understand exactly what he meant by that and he explained.

"Some performers in pictures or in plays," he said, "concentrate only on their cues. The minute they get the cue to speak, they speak. But everyday conversation isn't carried on in that fashion. While I'm talking to you, you are listening to me and your eyes and facial expressions mirror your interest or lack of interest in what I'm telling you.

"When I stop talking, or come to a pause, you will start talking to me and I'll listen to you. That is conversation as it is carried on in real life. Irene Dunne, in her first picture, was so intent on listening for her cue to speak that she didn't listen to the performer who was addressing her—it was evident from her face and eyes that she wasn't listening and didn't know or care what the other performer was talking about. Today she is one of the greatest 'listeners' in the profession. Watch her the next time you see one of her pictures. She smiles, her eyes sparkle, she nods her head when another player is speaking to her. That is one definite reason she is a great star."

Occasionally, says Ruggles, a player comes along who is a bad "listener" but who has such a magnificent sense of timing that she can get away with it and not destroy illusion.

Listening, as Ruggles points out, is a high art. . . . Your reporter found that out when he made a newsreel with Myrna Loy and Clark Gable. . . . Victor Fleming, who directed "Gone with the Wind," came to our stage to direct the newsreel as a "rib." . . . When Gable started talking to me, I didn't know what to do.

"You might pretend," acidly remarked Fleming, "to be able to understand English, even as Gable speaks it. Listen to him. He's saying words and there must be a reaction from you."

The more I tried the cornier I got. . . . Later, Fleming was consoling: "Don't worry about it. Some of the alleged stars of this business are just as bad in scenes where they have to stand and listen. They're all right if they can talk, but listening is the severest strain."

Lord Lothian to Close Visit to City Today

Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, is leaving for Washington, D. C., this morning after a two day visit in Chicago. Yesterday morning he visited the Italian masterpieces at the Art institute, spending almost an hour in the galleries where the priceless paintings and sculpture are on display.

Potter Palmer, president of the institute; Chauncey McCormick, vice president; Daniel C. Rich, curator of fine arts; Lewis Bernays, the British consul general, and Commander Eugenio Ventura, who represents the Italian government, accompanied the visitor on the tour.

Art is one of Lord Lothian's major interests and he was most enthusiastic about the exhibit.

Lord Lothian lunched yesterday, privately, with Ira Nelson Morris and a small group of men in the directors' room of the First National bank. In the afternoon there was a tea at the Bernayses' home in Lake View avenue for the ambassador, the guests being men friends of his from the University of Chicago and Northwestern university. Last night there was a small family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, also in Lake View avenue, for Lord Lothian and Leander McCormick-Goodhart, honorary commercial attaché at the British embassy.

Mr. McCormick-Goodhart's mother was Henrietta McCormick, daughter of the first Leander McCormick of Chicago and sister of the late L. Hamilton and R. Hall McCormick.

New Costumes Add to Grace of Any Skater

BY RHEA SEEGER.

With more than half the winter population whirling about on skates in snug ensembles and outfits of bright color designed to repel winter temperatures and yet streamline the performer with professional smoothness, it's no wonder the current showings of correct winter sports clothes have capacity audiences.

Double cartwheel skirts, padded and quilted top jackets, fancy dresses of wool jersey or corduroy costumes and all sorts of bright accessories are as plentiful as any exacting shopper could demand.

One necessity for a smooth streamline is the fitted lastex pantie. Gleaming beauties in either white or black are lined with wool and have concealed garters so that long hose are held smoothly and comfortably. These new affairs are cut with a much higher belt or waistline and that extra width is boned with four shallow lengths of feather boning to assure comfort and a slim belt area. They launder successfully, fitting even more smoothly after each trip thru the suds.

For the young set . . . those speedsters of below teen age, there are the flannel panties in royal blue, black and fire red, the last item just about the most cheerful eyeful in town. Such brevities in knitted stretchable flannel come with ribbed waistbands and give a supersmooth and cozy comfort for the out of doors skating enthusiast. They also tub with ease.

Engagement

More Women Join Campaign for Opera Fund

If the Opera Foundation fund increases the way the women's committee is growing, it won't be long before the $200,000 fund is raised. There were many new faces at yesterday's meeting, held at Mrs. Howard W. Fenton's, and her butler was kept busy bringing in more chairs all during the meeting.

He must have dechaired the halls, the dining room and the bedchambers, for as fast as he brought in two more chairs for late arrivals in would come two more guests. Several of the women gracefully sat on the floor, but the hostess and the chairman, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, would have none of that.

To date $121,600 has been raised, Joseph C. Nate, campaign manager, announced yesterday. This amount included $6,200 announced at the tea. Next Friday Mrs. Jacob Baur will entertain the women at her home at tea time. The north shore committee, which organized yesterday at the home of Mrs. Carpenter's co-chairman, Mrs. James G. McMillan, in Winnetka, will meet a week from Monday with Mrs. McMillan.

Among the founder members reported yesterday—a $200 contribution makes one a founder member—were Miss Helen Gurley, Miss Florence Bartlett, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. George Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Fenton, Mrs. George Macdonald, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Sidley, W. E. Macfarlane, and Mrs. John F. Jelke.

Mrs. George B. Dryden has given $1,000, and $100 each has been given by Stanley Harris, George Waldeck, and Mrs. John Morrow. Mrs. Charles H. Swift reported a $200 anonymous contribution.

Friends Greet Two Brides at Wedding Today

John Crosby Brydon Jr. and his bride-to-be of this afternoon, Miss Welthyan Harmon, won't be the only ones receiving congratulations, for her brother, Hubert Harmon Jr., brought a bride west with him from New York when he came for the wedding. She is the former Mrs. Louise Katherine de Mocher Frazier.

Mr. Harmon and the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William de Mocher of New York were married quietly Tuesday morning in the chapel of Christ Episcopal church in Greenwich, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Pack of New York were the only witnesses.

Following the wedding today Mr. Harmon and his bride will return east to make their home at 51 East 51st street. Later they plan a trip to Jamaica and Martinique. Mr. Harmon grew up in Highland Park, where his parents, the senior Mr. and Mrs. Harmon, lived until they gave up their house a few years ago. The bridegroom has lived abroad for the last three or four years, designing fashions in Paris and London, work that he is continuing in New York. As soon as conditions abroad permit it he and his bride will return to Paris.

There will be no formal reception following the marriage of Miss Harmon and Mr. Brydon at 4:30 o'clock in St. James' church, but the wedding party and a few intimate friends will return to the Harmon apartment in East Schiller street to drink a toast to both newly married couples.

Mr. Brydon and his bride will live temporarily in Booneville, Ind.

WEDDINGS

William P. Barry announces the marriage on Dec. 21 of his sister, Mrs. Jewell B. Organ, to John W. Coleman. Mrs. Coleman is state chairman of music for the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, past president of the Chicago Civic and Professional Women's club, president and organizer of the Republican Woman's club, member of the National Republican Speakers' bureau, and organizer of the Jewell assembly, No. 6, Order of the Rainbow for Girls.

The marriage of Miss Josephine Halvorsen, 1116 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, to Felix Conlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Conlin of Auburn, Ill., will take place at 8 o'clock tonight at St. Eulalia's Catholic church, Maywood. Mr. Conlin is on the personnel staff of the Edward Hines Memorial hospital.

ENGAGEMENT

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Gary Garrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Austin Turner of Charlotte, N. C., and New York, to Donald de Lisser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry George de Lisser of High Gate, Jamaica. Miss Garrison is spending a month at the Drake hotel. Her fiancé is engaged in business here.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

One little group of experts maintains that eye grooming and makeup, properly carried out, not only highlight good qualities of your eyes but can be utilized to minimize the not so good ones.

Here are some of their suggestions:

For eyes set too close together, keep brows wide apart and moderately heavy. If necessary, extend the brow line beyond outer eye corner. Apply shadow near center of upper lid, blending up half way to brow, and extend this, too, slightly beyond eyes. Apply the mascara heavily toward the temples, not on lashes toward the nose.

For small eyes: Keep the brows fairly wide apart. Don't arch too high, but make a slight peak three-quarters of the way across. Keep brows heavier near the nose, tapering only at outer end, and finish with a slight upward stroke of the eyebrow pencil. Blend shadow from center of lid upward and outward beyond corner of the eye. Concentrate the mascara on the outer lashes toward the temples.

For deep set eyes: Keep the brows far apart in a slight curve of medium thickness, tapering upward at the end. Spread shadow very gingerly across the upper lid, only above the crease, not down close to the lashes. Shade it upward. And try concentrating mascara on the lower lashes if the eyes are unusually deep set.

For protruding eyes: Keep the brows moderately close together and tweeze from the under side to a fairly high arch over eyeball, where they should be quite heavy. Taper slightly toward the nose and more at outer corner, ending with a short upward slant. You'll probably need pencil for this last. Use dark shadow rather heavily across entire upper lid very close to the eye and concentrate your mascara on the center lashes.

Danger on the Border

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

[Copyright: 1939: By Frederick R. Bechdolt]

INSTALMENT XLVIII.

PRISONERS.

Mrs. Sebastian, now Miss Riley, was quite near the break of the mesa where the road descended abruptly to the plain below. The approaching car was kicking up a good deal of dust. It was coming at high speed. Too fast for prudence. Mrs. Sebastian's eyes narrowed and her face lost some of its pleeasant rounded lines, it became hard. She was thinking:

"You never can tell."

With her right hand she reached forward and opened the door of one of those little compartments in the dash which are so handy for road maps, spare gloves, cigarets, and matches. Within it there were two of her most precious possessions. It was not once in a blue moon that she had occasion to use either of them, for her work these days was, as has been mentioned, accomplished under cover. She took them both out and she laid them on the seat beside her. She slackened the speed slightly. So she brought it about that the two cars met, both of them, in the middle of the narrow road midway down the grade.

There was a loud bang of colliding fenders. The slight shock made the drivers lean forward over their wheels. By the time the pallid woman in the white dress was recovering herself, the swarthy one in gray had flung open the door and was climbing out with a nimbleness which seemed utterly incongruous to such a voluminous form. She said:

"O, yo' mus' excuse me, plis!"

Panic was in Anna's eyes. Panic had been in them ever since she drove out of San Ilario. A thousand thoughts had raced thru her mind during those few miles, she had made a dozen plans and rejected all of them. If she had only had the forethought to take several morphine tablets from the narcotic closet in the hospital! If there were only some one in Nogales whom she could trust! Some one from whom she could get help. How much did those officers in the tan colored cars know? Was she ever going to see her husband again? Whatever she was going to do with this girl must be done soon. It must be done as soon as she was out of sight from town. But what?

She remembered something that she had read in a Los Angeles newspaper two years before: They had knocked that woman senseless, and then they had laid her down on the road and run over her with a car. And no one had dreamed of murder until a weak willed confederate had spilled the whole thing. That was an idea. She was going over it, examining its possibilities, when the collision came, and when she looked up she saw that fat night club woman coming toward her. She heard her saying:

"O, yo' mus' excuse me, plis!"

"It's all right," Anna said. "No need to worry. I don't want your help." She was clawing at the gear lever, about to shift into reverse, when Mrs. Sebastian mounted the running board.

It was the thought of the girl who lay in the rear of the sedan between the seats that made Anna lose her head for the instant.

"Get off!" Her voice was thrill. She thrust her hand forth to enforce the command. But Mrs. Sebastian had learned a number of things about this game of rough and tumble during the days when she was Maggie Riley, handling women prisoners en route to Blackwell's Island. She sidestepped the blow and seized Anna's wrist, all in one movement, she did something scientific to Anna's arm that left it numb and helpless. She said:

"Open that door before I break your wrist. And get out. I am an officer."

Anna's lips were white with pain when she came forth. But her eyes were dangerous. Mrs. Sebastian put just enough more pressure on the arm which she was holding, to wring a sob from her prisoner.

"Now, march!" Her voice was like a whiplash.

It would have been a curious sight if there had been any one near by to see it; the two cars standing bumper to bumper, the two women, one walking ahead, the other half a step behind, holding her prisoner by the wrist. When Anna opened the right hand door of the cream colored sedan she saw the little blue automatic revolver and the pair of handcuffs on the driver's seat. But they might have been a mile away, for the relentless fingers were twisting again and the agony made her turn faint.

"Now you will get into the back seat," Mrs. Sebastian told her. "And you will behave." She picked up the handcuffs while Anna was complying. She snapped one on the free wrist, she pulled Anna forward, passed the links over the rug rack on the back of the front seat, and then the other handcuff clicked tight.

When she went to Anna's car to back it off the road so that she could pass, she came very near to a failure which would have brought her deep regret. It was, she acknowledged afterward, a sort of premonition that made her glance between the seats, a feeling of another presence. She looked very grim when she carried Pat in her arms and placed her on the driver's seat of the cream colored sedan. And while she drove on toward San Ilario she held the steering wheel in one hand, she held the little automatic in the other.

"I've got to get her to a doctor," she was thinking. And she remembered that there was no doctor in San Ilario. It was then that she made up her mind to take pat to the hotel in Old Town.

"She'll be safe there now," she told herself. "And the Chinaman can help look after her."

"Three cars," said Mestres. "The chief of police is driving that roadster.'

"Some one else coming," said he. "Helios now! That is the sheriff. There will be some complications. Well, we will stand by and watch this, anyway."

The chief of police was crossing the walk to the hotel. The door swung wide to admit him. The two gunmen from the paymaster's car were at his heels. The miners trooped behind, the little paymaster came last of all. The door banged shut.

The sheriff's car stopped, with its rubber squealing protest. It vomited its passengers and they, too, went within.

Mestres and his companion were gazing at the closed door when Mrs. Sebastian arrived a few moments later. They did not turn, only her voice made them glance around. Mestres said:

"Well, look who's here!" He was speaking English now, and it was without more than a trace of accent. His eyes rested on the little form beside Mrs. Sebastian on the driver's seat, and the smile left his face.

"She's doped," Mrs. Sebastian told him. "And see who I brought you. In the back. You can open the door. She won't get away."

"Well done, my friend!" he cried.

"Some one else got his," said Mestres. His face sobered, a network of little worried lines appeared around his eyes. He turned and studied the hotel, they were all silent.

At last the door swung wide and the miners began to drift away. It was nearly ten minutes later that the four men from the the sheriff's office brought forth their prisoners, and Mestres said:

"The paymaster and both of those torpedoes. That clears up your pay car robbery."

Just then Leonard and Papago emerged from the old hotel. They hastened toward Mestres and his companions.

It was three hours later when the effects of the morphine wore off that Pat awakened in her own room. Her first consciousness was one of deep fear. As she opened her eyes to see familiar objects around her, the colored pictures from magazines upon the walls, the sunlight streaming thru the window making a square of light on the worn carpet, she believed that she had awakened from an ugly dream. She heard a footstep, Mrs. Sebastian was bending over her. Then she began to realize that the fears were true, the terrible visions which had passed before her eys were realities.

They had taken the body of Collins away. The sheriff's officers had cleared up their end of the case. The Mexican constabulary had finished their work in San Ilario. The official cars had departed for Nogales with their prisoners and the old hotel was very quiet.

GASOLINE ALLEY—BEATING HER AT IT

Career Is No Special Claim to Popularity

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Career girls must not make the mistake of thinking that because they have interesting jobs, they automatically turn out to be more fascinating, more stimulating than the woman who stays at home. Theirs is the need for extra efforts," observes Patricia Bowman, noted ballerina.

"No matter how absorbing your prpfession is to you," she warns, "it will not be of paramount importance to any of your beaux. Nor will it keep them interested in you for long, without outside stimulation."

There's a world of truth in what the charming young woman says. Career girls have been known to look down their noses at the woman in the home for not being so well informed, as they, the careerists, see it; for not being so widely traveled, or for not being so aware of the goings-on in the so-called "smart" world.

Meanwhile the little darling in the home, surprisingly enough to the careerist, keeps on pleasing her man by the very talents that won him in the beginning, and wearing and owning a good many signs of his continued approval.

Patricia Bowman suggests that outside interests entirely alien to one's profession or job should be cultivated. To round out one's character; likewise, to acquaint one's self with the worthwhile and important doings of perhaps those same little women in the home they deprecate.

One's job and one's fine progress in it are mightily important to the individual herself, but to a man they might easily inspire recentment, boredom anyway, after a brief while.

Remember the Cake That Is Eggless, Etc.?

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

For years "eggless, butterless, milkless" cake has been a favorite with readers of this column. I don't think the name is very appealing, except from the economy standpoint, but the cake really is surprisingly good. Some cooks add other fruits along with the raisins, or toss in a few nuts. It's a simple cake to make and one which is easy on the food budget.

Eggless, Butterless, Milkless Cake.

1 cup brown sugar
½ cup lard
1½ cups water
2 cups raisins
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda

Put brown sugar, lard, water, raisins, and spices in a saucepan and boil for 2 minutes, timing after mixture has come to a full boil. Cool to room temperature and stir in the flour which has been sifted several times with baking powder and soda. Bake in a greased loaf pan at 325 degrees for 45 minutes.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT:

1. Hot French toast-applesauce sandwiches. Season hot applesauce with cinnamon and nutmeg and spread between French toast slices. Serve maple sirup with this delicacy. A luncheon or Sunday breakfast special, if ever there was one.

2. Broiled tomato-cheese snacks. Cut dried bread in rounds. Toast one side of each, spread the other with butter, and top with a thick slice of tomato. Spread the tomato with cream cheese seasoned with prepared mustard. Broil until tomato is thoroly hot.

3. Coconut squares.

Coconut Squares.

Part 1.
¾ cup shortening
¾ cup brown sugar, packed
½ cup sifted flour

Part 2.
½ cup packed brown sugar
3½ tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup shredded coconut
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening in part 1, add sugar gradually, and mix well. Mix in flour. Pat the mixture into a greased 8 inch square pan. Bake for 15 to 20 minutes at 375 degrees. Remove from the oven and spread with part 2 mixture.

Blend sugar, flour, and first portion of salt in part 2. Add egg and mix well. Combine the other ½ teaspoon salt with coconut and nuts. Add to sugar-flour-egg mixture and blend. Spread coconut topping over baked part of the cookies and return to the oven for 10 minutes longer. Cut in squares to serve.

Cider and Sage Jelly.

[Eleven 6 ounce glasses]
3 tablespoons sage
½ cup boiling water
7½ cups sugar
3½ cups cider
1 bottle pectin

Pour the half cup boiling water over the sage, cover, and let stand 15 minutes. Strain. Measure sugar, cider, and this prepared sage infusion into a large saucepan and mix well. Bring to boil over hot burner and add pectin at once, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from heat, skim, and pour quickly into clean glasses. Paraffin at once.

Simple Sweater in Angora

BY JEAN MacDONALD.

The tyro knitter must have a garment which she can complete in record time, and one which will remain in high style. The simple angora wool, knitted on large needles, is just such a model. It may be made by the novice who can knit and purl evenly and without fear of dropping stitches. Experienced knitters can make this garment in two or three days of steady working. The directions for the sweater are available in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42.

For instructions in knitting the simple angora sweater, No. X-177, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

All Lies Aren't Lies and Have Varied Causes

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Does your small child tell you "tall tales"?

Does your older child relate far-fetched or fantastic experiences?

Has your son lied to you about things he's done of which you disapprove.

Do you label any deviation from fact or from truth [they're not the same thing, by the way] a lie?

It isn't as simple as all that. Age, temperament, circumstance all color the importance and nature of what a child may say that does not adhere to actual fact or truth.

If your child is being untruthful, run over the following list and check up which kind of lie he is telling. Is it:

1. The lie of imagination?
2. The lie caused by inaccuracy of observation; that is, caused by a misinterpretation of facts?
3. The lie caused by fear?
4. The lie told to make an impression or to attract attention?
5. The lie told to protect some one?
6. The lie told to hurt some one?
7. The lie told to cover something of which he is ashamed—such as poverty or an unpleasant family situation?

For cures—taking each in order:

1. Accept the imaginative tale as a story pure and simple, making no issue of its being true. If it lasts for a number of years, lead your child to see the distinction between fact and fancy.

2. Wait for the young child to learn to know names and colors and also wait for him to develop enough mentally to describe things accurately.

3. Remove the cause of fear. Avoid punishment and censure. Gain your child's friendship and complete trust.

4. Give your child interest and attention of an agreeable kind.

5. Respect this kind of untruth. But try to prevent this sense of loyalty being carried too far.

6. Deal most seriously with this, trying to wipe out the impulse of revenge.

7. Help your child to face the fact he is ashamed of. Bring it out in the open, talk it over with him, and explain the situation as intelligently as you can to rid him of the sense of shame.

That is all except for a few don'ts:

Don't accuse your child or take it for granted that he is lying.

Don't call him a liar.

Don't be rash or cold.

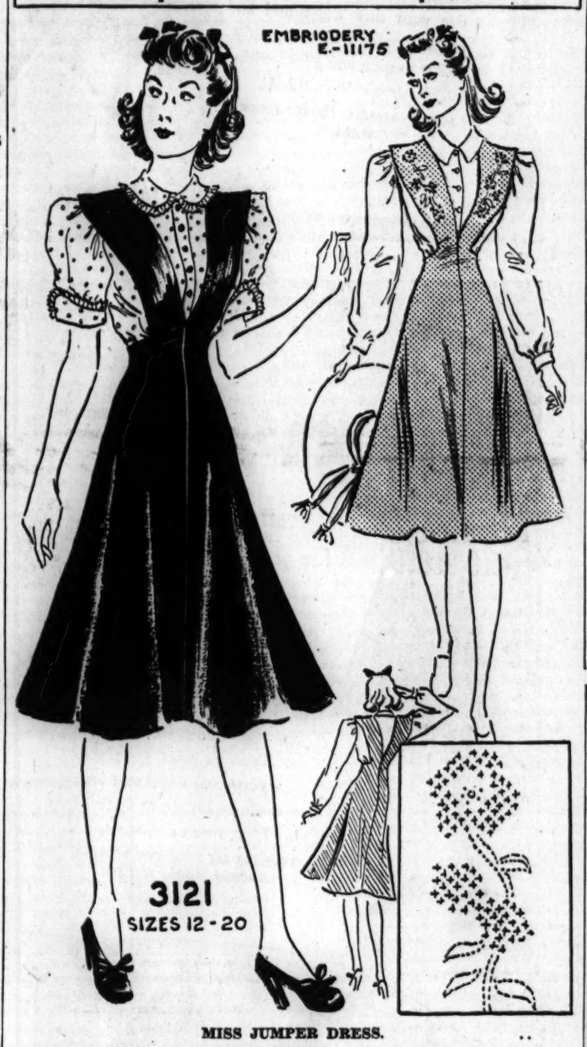
Jumper Dress Is Popular



MISS JUMPER DRESS.

The quaintness of the jumper dress has won it great popularity with the younger set. This particular model has comfortably wide shoulder straps, a deep V-neckline, a slim waist, unbelted, and a gracefully flared skirt below a molded hipline. The blouse is tailored, with a shirtwaist collar and full sleeves. Two versions of the blouse are sketched. This costume may combine silk with cotton, woolen with silk, etc., and a great variety of color schemes is available to you for a little imagination.

Do you like embroidery? For 10 cents extra you may procure pattern No. E-11175, used to trim the shoulders of the model sketched at the right.

Stype No. 3121 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material for jumper; 1 yard of 39 inch for short sleeved blouse.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Florsheim Has Art Exhibition of Great Force

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An extraordinary power and force are felt in the paintings by Richard Aberle Florsheim which went on view at the Quest galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue, yesterday to remain for two weeks.

Mr. Florsheim is a young man and one endowed with a vivid imagination, a tragic and fatalistic point of view.

These paintings of his are superb in the sense of desolation, melancholy and fear which they convey.

Mr. Florsheim uses color with the aptitude of an actor knowing when to throw his cloak about his shoulders, when to sweep its folds across his face. A feeling of theater is sensed in all of these canvases.

There are landscapes and figures. War plays a dominant rôle in a number of the compositions. Bleak skies, bleak fields, twisted trees [grotesque and old], seas that break on sullen shores, black, gray, a streak of lemon yellow, vivid red, or dull orange putting periods to the overpowering gray and black, these are what you will find in Mr. Florsheim's paintings. They are interesting, different, and worth seeing.

At the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, is an exhibit by three women artists, Marian Foulds, Carrie G. Krost, and Catherine M. Ogren. The exhibit is diversified—landscapes, still life, and portraits.

Of the three, perhaps, Marian Foulds shows the most individuality. Her "The Old Opera House" is a vivid piece of comedy; the "Chicago Harbor" is definitely Chapinesque. The still life arrangements are cleverly handled. A fondness for red is discovered in most of Mrs. Foulds' work.

"Tulips" and "Chrysanthemums" by Carrie F. Krost are pleasing, and "Left from the Summer's Garden" by Catherine M. Ogren stands out as one of the nicest things in the show.

Richard R. Epperly is showing oils and crayon portraits at the Drake hotel under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts to Jan. 31. The crayon portraits are unusually well done. The "Bockelmann Children" is as fine a piece of portraiture as one could wish for. "Pope Pius XI." and "Pope Pius XII." are splendid heads, and the portrait of "Marianne de Larco" is another charming bit of drawing.

Katherine Groh Blasingham has an attractive exhibit of water colors and oils at the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive. The pictures are colorful and decorative, very well done.

The Stage

As a valedictory gesture to Chicago John Barrymore will greet Constance Bennett, who follows him into the Selwyn theater, at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow and carry her across the stage door sill, sealing his action with a kiss.

This old Barrymore custom is said to carry the augury of a prosperous engagement for his successor. Mr. Barrymore's run in "My Dear Children" closes tonight. The première of Miss Bennett's comedy, "Easy Virtue," takes place tomorrow evening.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

As important as bridge is in the American social scene, it is infinitely more so in what we like to refer to as the outlying districts of the world, South Africa, for instance. I recently received a report of a "par contest" held in Johannesburg which drew players from a radius of a thousand miles. The entry fees in this contest, which is run tournament style, go to charities and, according to my information, considerable sums are raised in this way. Not that we Americans need to take any leaf from another country's book in this respect—bridge has long been a source of revenue for deserving causes in this country.

South, dealer.

NORTH
♠J 10 8 5
♥A 9 6 5
♦Q 3
♣10 9 8

WEST
♠4
♥K Q J 8
♦10 9 7 2
♣K J 7 3

EAST
♠7 6 3 2
♥10 7 3 2

SOUTH
♠A K Q 9
♥4
♣A Q 4

According to the South African committee that prepared the hands and judged the results, "there should be no difficulty in reaching the contract of six spades with the North-South hands." I heartily agree, and suggest the following method of reaching that contract:

South	West	North	East
2 diamonds	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 spades	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

It was not enough to reach and make six spades. Credit was given for the contract itself, of course, but in the play an extra trick should have been made by the safest method, namely: West opens the heart king, the logical lead. Dummy's ace wins and now declarer [South] should see that his own spades are not needed for trump drawing purposes, inasmuch as dummy's J-10-8 are equivalents of the A-K-Q-9. This being so, declarer should find a more effective use for his own trumps, which is not difficult to do. Winning the first trick with the heart ace, he should ruff a heart with a high trump; then should return to the diamond queen and ruff a second heart with another high trump. He now should cash his remaining high trump and, when both opponents follow suit, thereby disclosing that the trump break can be no worse than 4-1, should cash the club ace and then lead the nine of spades, overtaking in dummy. Next the jack and eight of spades draw the trumps still outstanding, and declarer can discard his queen and four of clubs. He then leads the diamond to his own hand and rattles off the last four tricks with diamonds.

The proper line of play, far from risking the contract itself in an effort to make an extra trick, is by far the safest method. If declarer makes the mistake, as so many would, of drawing all the trumps immediately, he will end up a sadder man.

INDIANA OBEYS BIG 10 CODE PRESIDENT WELLS

WESTERN CONFERENCE QUINTETS OPEN RACE TONIGHT

UNBEATEN N. U. FACES PURDUE IN PATTEN GYM

Games Tonight

Illinois at Indiana.
Wisconsin at Chicago.
Purdue at Northwestern.
Minnesota at Iowa.

OTHER GAMES.
Syracuse at Notre Dame.
Marquette at Wayne.
Iowa State at Creighton.
Tennessee at Michigan State.
Chicago Teachers at Concordia [River Forest].
North Central at Augustana.
Wheaton at De Kalb Teachers.

Ten more or less powerful basketball teams, primed for the arduous competition by series of preseason games, will fire the opening guns tonight in the annual campaign for the championship of the Western conference.

Only three of the 10—Northwestern, Illinois and Indiana—came thru early tests with perfect records. On this basis they became the teams to watch in their first conference competition, altho Ohio State won the undisputed championship last winter. Northwestern fares forth on its home floor to meet the challenge of Purdue's Boilermakers and there are those who will wager that the Wildcats are destined to run one, two, or three in the final standings.

Illinois Meets Indiana.

Indiana fans will have the opportunity of witnessing a duel between the other two unbeaten entries when the Illini engage the always dangerous Hoosiers in Bloomington. Ohio State opens defense of its crown against Michigan in Ann Arbor, Minnesota will meet the Hawkeyes in Iowa City and Chicago, whose only major Big Ten sport now is basketball, will entertain Wisconsin, one of the disappointments of preseason battles.

PURDUE AT N. U.

Northwestern will place its five game winning streak at stake when it meets Purdue in Patten gymnasium. A near capacity crowd is expected.

Despite losses to Southern California and De Paul, the Boilermakers possess a veteran team which combines speed with uniform shooting ability. The leading scorer for the Boilermakers is Bob Igney, veteran forward, who collected 55 points in eight preseason games. Second in the scoring list is Don Blanken, former Dundee, Ill., High school star who has 52 points. Other starters include Dan Fisher, center, and Capt. Fred Beretta and Elwood Yeager, guards.

Two sophomores and three veterans will be in the Wildcats' lineup. The new men are Dick Klein, 6 foot 3 inch center from Fort Madison, Ia., and Don Kruger, forward, from Fenwick High, Chicago. The other member of the front line is Les Harman, a senior. Capt. Ad Vance and Bob Shepard, both letter men, hold down the guard assignments.

MAROONS MEET BADGERS

The University of Chicago's basketball team, which has not won a Big Ten season opener since 1931, when the Maroons defeated Indiana, 28 to 27, expects to beat Wisconsin in the Midway fieldhouse tonight.

Joe Stampf, who averaged 13 points in Chicago's four preseason games, is expected to lead the scoring, since Andy Smith, regular Wisconsin forward who scored 89 points in the conference race last year, will be out of the game with an old leg injury.

ILLINOIS VS. INDIANA

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 5 [Special].—Unbeaten Illinois probably will be without the services of its captain and leading scorer—Bill Hapac—when it meets Indiana in the fieldhouse tomorrow night. Hapac is hospitalized with flu.

O. S. U. MEETS MICHIGAN

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 5 [Special].—A high spirited Michigan quintet will meet Ohio State's defending champions here tomorrow night. The Wolverine quintet enters conference competition with a record of six games won and only one lost—to the University of Rochester. The list of Michigan victims includes Michigan State, Notre Dame, Connecticut State, Tulane, Cornell and Pittsburgh.

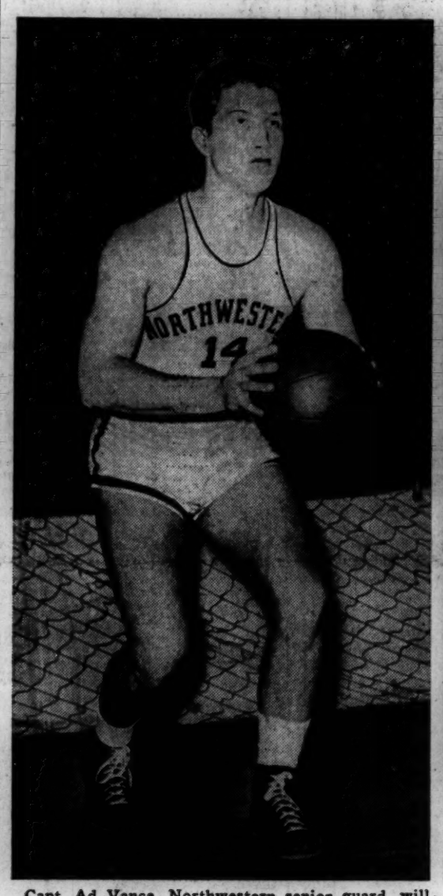
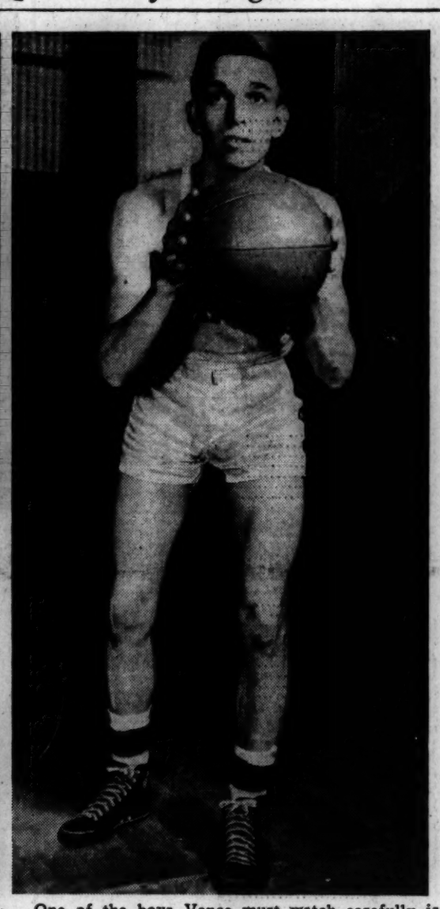
They Expect to Be Quite Busy Tonight



Capt. Ad Vance, Northwestern senior guard, will have his work cut out for him tonight when the Wildcats meet Purdue in the opening game of the Western conference season in Patten gymnasium.



One of the boys Vance must watch carefully is Bob Igney, Purdue forward, who has piled up 55 points in pre-season games. A near capacity crowd is expected. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Wehrle Leads Los Angeles Open with 67

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5 (AP).—Wilford Wehrle, Chicago amateur, outshot the best professionals in the country today by scoring a 67 in the first round of the Los Angeles annual open golf tournament.

Playing over the Los Angeles Country club, where he won the Western amateur title in 1937, Wehrle put together a 34-33 for the par 35-35—70 course. A stroke behind were E. J. [Dutch] Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., and Jimmy Hines of New York.

The 25 year old Wehrle, who formerly lived in Racine, Wis., was over par only once. Three shots back of Wehrle were Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, Cal., and Al Krueger of Beloit, Wis.

Eleven players were listed in the 71's, 9 in the 72's, 11 in the 73's, and the 74's were bulging with 21, with Dick Metz of Oak Park, Ill., and John Montague, Beverly Hills, Cal., the last to make this nonselect group.

Heading the also rans in the amateur ranks were Ellsworth Vines, the tennis champion, who came in with a 71, and Bruce McCormick of Los Angeles, Cal., former national public links champion.

Included in the 71's, too, were numerous dangerous contenders, among them Clayton Haefner of North Carolina, Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J.; Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., and Charles Kocsis of Detroit, Mich.

Apostoli Is Given Verdict Over Bettina

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—Fred Apostoli of San Francisco won a close 12 round decision over Melio Bettina at Beacon, N. Y., in Madison Square Garden tonight in his debut as a light heavyweight. Thru the last four rounds there was more clinching than fighting and Referee Johny McAvoy was doing most of the work breaking the fighters. Time after time he warned Bettina, who held the light heavyweight championship until Billy Conn came along, for holding in the clinches.

There were three knockdowns, Apostoli going down for counts of eight and nine in the second and third rounds, and Bettina taking a nine count in the tenth.

PACIFIC COAST SCHOOLS ELECT A COMMISSIONER

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 5 (AP).—Edwin N. Atherton was named high commissioner of the Pacific Coast conference today in a move by the 10-college organization to enforce its future athletic policies. Armed with full authority to police the conference in the maintenance of rigid obedience of the rules, Atherton was appointed as the climax of his two year survey of its athletic conduct. He was appointed for three years, his contract effective immediately.

Atherton will have headquarters in San Francisco.

Legislation adopted included elimination of proselyting activities by alumni groups, establishment of safeguards against falsification of reports on athletes' eligibility, prevention of diversion of athletic funds into scholarships, and assurance of uniform practice in the elimination of illegal aid given athletes before or after enrollment.

2 ENTHUSIASTIC ROOKIE CATCHERS ENTER CUBS' FOLD

McCullough, Collins Hear Opportunity Knocking.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Catchers took care of what little happened yesterday in the Cubs' 1940 contract affairs. Two backstops, both freshmen in the ranks now under Gabby Hartnett's command, came to terms and can hardly be blamed for showing enthusiasm over what was offered them in the shape of pay. There's a wide open spot for a youthful catcher in the north side ensemble and both kids are wise to this fact.

The first of the pad and mask wearers to respond was Clyde McCullough, an ex-Yankee farm hand, purchased from Kansas City. Using the contract as a good excuse for a trip to Chicago from his winter home at Nashville, Tenn., the stocky youngster hopped in his car and delivered his document in person. When he starts to California with the first squad next month it will mark his second big league training venture. His other was with the Yanks in 1936, but, he admits, they didn't give him much of a tumble.

Coast Likes Collins.

After McCullough had made his visit and attended to the bit of business at hand, the postman dropped in with the signed papers of Bob Collins, whose home is at Pittsburgh, Pa., but who couldn't find work any closer than at Los Angeles, Cal., last season. The Coast league experts think Collins is such a worthy prospect that they have standing offers to bet he'll catch at least 60 games for the Cubs this summer.

The Cubs' front office knew nothing about the report put in circulation by Dizzy Dean that Dizzy Dean wasn't at all satisfied with the contract he received a few days ago. Diz hasn't had a chance to pop off for a long time, so when he was called via phone at his Texas home yesterday his tongue was in such excellent wagging shape that he ran the long distance bill up into staggering figures.

Has Reputation to Uphold.

Mr. Diz, who once picked cotton for a few cents an hour, claims his previous $20,000 salary has been cut in half and he'll starve if forced to toil for such a pittance. Charles [Boots] Weber, Cub vice president, would neither deny nor admit that Diz was telling the truth about the $10,000.

It was expected, of course, that Diz who had a soft time for two seasons at $20,000 per, would resent being trimmed down to relief wages but thus far he hasn't expressed his agony direct to the club's offices. However, he'll probably be heard from, knowing as he does that haggling will uphold his headline reputation. Whether he'll find his employer sympathetic is doubtful. Diz knew last fall that he was going to be trimmed down considerably and he didn't complain then, so the present beef must be taken with a grain of salt.

FAUROT TO GET NEW CONTRACT AT MORE SALARY

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 5 (AP).—Don Faurot, head football coach at the University of Missouri, who led the 1939 team to a Big Six conference championship and an Orange bowl game, was reappointed by the board of curators today at an increase in salary.

Leslie Cowan, secretary of the board, said the length of the contract and the amount of the salary boost would be announced after the Missouri coach had been officially notified of the board's action. Faurot's salary this year was $6,500.

At his home in Columbia, Mo., Faurot said by telephone:

"I'll probably accept their offer. I have not been offered a job by anybody else. I'm a Missouri boy and want to stay at Columbia."

Returned to lay his homage at Christ's feet
In thankfulness for what the Lord had done;
The other nine were hurrying to meet
The friends of other days that they might find
Their utter selfishness had made them blind
To the supernal law of gratitude.
Do not these lepers typify the race
Who crave God's many blessings day by day,
And when He lavishes His healing grace
Upon them, one by one they go away;
And once again we hear the Lord repine:

With her dolls in dainty frocks.

Perhaps I can take them upon my knee,
And hold them securely there,
While I tell them again some fairy tales

I return to the Land of Today,

SAYS FOOTBALL HELPS MAINTAIN SCHOOL SPIRIT

Prefers Boys from Within State.

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 5.—Herman B. Wells, president of Indiana university, thinks it would be just dandy if the Hoosiers had a football team strong enough to knock the stuffing out of any other outfit in the country.

He expressed opinions along that line today when asked for some of his football philosophy as a repercussion to remarks attributed to a "spokesman" for the University of Chicago trustees. According to this anonymous spokesman, the Maroons withdrew from Western conference football because "you can't play Big Ten football without being crooked as far as the league's rules are concerned."

Prefers Homegrown Boys.

That superteam Mr. Wells would like to see would have to consist of genuine Indiana boys, rather than imported athletes. The players would have to keep up their marks, pay their tuition and do bona fide work if they were holding remunerative jobs.

No matter how great a drawing card that hypothetical team might become, Mr. Wells would like to have it play as many games as possible at home, where the campus boys and girls could see them, even tho comparatively few spectators made the trips from the somewhat distant urban centers.

Mr. Wells is all in favor of just such a team—but if Indiana doesn't get it, that's all right, too. The Hoosiers have been going along for quite a few years now, getting a lot of fun out of football, having some pretty good teams, and bringing out such players as Corby Davis, Vernon Huffman, and Chuck Bennett without violating the spirit or the letter of Big Ten regulations in Mr. Wells' opinion.

Winners Aid Spirit.

"Football unquestionably has an effect on the spirit of an institution, provided it is winning football," Mr. Wells said. "For that reason I wish for Indiana a winning football team. The spirit on the campus, the loyalty of alumni, and the attitude of the public toward a university all are affected by the success of its football team, provided that success is achieved under sound rules and regulations."

Mr. Wells smiled blandly when his attention was directed to the anonymous spokesman's remark that universities had to commercialize sport whether they wanted to or not, because the football teams had to earn the money to pay off debts on stadiums, fieldhouses, and other expensive athletic equipment. Mr. Wells pointed out that the Indiana stadium is a gift of the students and alumni with no strings attached to it. Every stick and stone in it is paid for. The last indebtedness on the fieldhouse will be wiped out within a year—and the annual payments have been too low to be felt, Mr. Wells said.

Faculty Still Is Supreme.

When asked about the alumni's part in influencing the school's athletic policy, Mr. Wells replied that he is glad to see the graduates take a lively interest in the teams. However, the ultimate control remains in the hands of the faculty. He said that the athletic committee consists of eighteen members, twelve of whom are from the faculty and only six from the alumni. Most of the faculty members of this committee have no connection whatever with the athletic department.

As to the matter of scholarships, Mr. Wells said that all such awards are based solely on intellectual merit. Two scholarships a year are appor-

LA GRANGE AND GLENBARD FIVES STAY UNBEATEN

Win in West Suburban Title Race.

La Grange High school's basketball team won its fifth game and Glenbard its fourth in the heavyweight division of the West Suburban league last night to stay unbeaten in league competition.

La Grange defeated Hinsdale, 30 to 21, and Glenbard whipped Riverside, 28 to 25. Glenbard and Riverside were tied 14-all at the half, but in the third quarter Glenbard scored 10 points to Riverside's 4 to set up its victory edge. Lineups:

CATHOLIC LEAGUE

Six high schools in the Catholic league launched their drives for sectional basketball titles last night in both the junior and senior divisions. Mount Carmel, senior champion, and St. George, junior titleholder, drew byes.

The tightest contest in the senior division was Fenwick's 23 to 22 victory over St. Philip. A 13 to 7 advantage at the half carried Fenwick thru as St. Philip came back strong in the last half.

Patrick accounted for 23 points to give Leo a 41 to 30 triumph over De La Salle. Lineups:

tioned to each county in the state. Students coming in from out of the state have an additional fee added to their tuition. No one ever is excused from meeting his fees, all these matters being audited by the state board of accounts.

They're Mostly Hoosiers.

The student body consists almost entirely of boys and girls from within the boundaries of Indiana. The proportion of athletes from other states is just about the same as among the general student body.

The discussion then turned to those soft jobs that athletes are supposed to find thrust upon them everywhere they turn. Mr. Wells stated that these sinecures are nonexistent at Indiana. He said that the proportion of workers is almost exactly the same among the athletes as among the remainder of the students. This is unusually high—46 per cent of the undergraduates earning at least a portion of their expenses.

"Strange as it may be," Mr. Wells said, "The best athletes, at least at Indiana, are in many cases boys who must work their way thru the university if they are to obtain the advantages of higher education. Also, many of our students showing greatest intellectual promise must support themselves either in part or wholly. We endeavor to find jobs for as many students as possible, including those athletically inclined, and we insist that every student, athlete, and nonathlete, shall give full measure in time and effort to his employer. We have no 'clock winding jobs' for students."

He Was a Worker, Too.

When it comes to talking about jobs, Mr. Wells knows whereof he speaks because he's had a bit of experience along that line himself. When he was a 10 year old boy living in the little town of Jamestown, Ind., he tried to get his father to advance him enough money to buy a paper route, but for some reason or other, the request was turned down. Thereupon, the youngster went to the country town bank of which his father was an official, and negotiated a loan of $8. With this capital he bought the paper route and soon paid off the note with the proceeds of his labor.

When he was appointed to his present position two years ago, Mr. Wells was only 36 years old—the youngest president of a state university in the country. In appearance and manner, he easily could pass for a business man rather than an educator. There may be a reason for that. His father is a former country school master who became a banker and he himself is a business man who became a professor. So the cultural and the commercial elements are pretty well balanced in Mr. Wells' makeup.

Sponsors Extension Projects.

One of his primary aims is to make the intellectual and artistic influence of the university an integral part of the everyday life of all the people of Indiana from the steel workers in the north to the remote hill farmers in the south. In line with this policy he has established extensions of the university in widespread localities. For instance the musical department has helped establish symphony orchestras and choruses amid the industrial din of the Gary region.

Mr. Wells is attempting not only to take the university out to the people but he is trying to do something even more difficult. He's trying to bring the people into the university. Various groups, such as business men, bankers, journalists, and scientists, gather here at intervals for conferences.

In the general setup, however, Mr. Wells never forgets athletics—especially football.

"There's something about it," he says, "that we like to associate with American qualities—its ruggedness and virility and aggressiveness."

Deadline for Silver Skates OnlyDayAway

With the deadline for entries set for midnight Sunday big teams of potential Silver Skates winners entered the competition yesterday, but a squad of only 29 from the George Barrett A. C. appeared to be the best balanced. The Barrett aggregation will send contestants into almost every class when the two day competition starts a week from today on the Garfield park lagoon.

Three sets of brothers are enrolled with the Barrett A. C. They are the Andruchs, John and Mike; the Lehnhardts, Ralph and Gerald, and the Legners, Richard, Bill and Roger Jr. Mike Andruch is in the men's senior competition, while John is an intermediate. Gerald Lehnhardt also is a senior and his brother, Ralph is an intermediate. Bill Legner hopes to capture senior honors, with Roger seeking the junior boys' Silver Skates and Richard the juvenile award.

Ralph a 1937 Winner.

Ralph Lehnhardt already has won his spurs in Silver Skates competition by capturing the juvenile prize in 1937. His toughest competition in quest of the 1940 intermediate Silver Skates may be provided by his teammate, Johnny Andruch.

The lone girl member of the Barretts' is Lenore [Billie] Long. She will strive to win the girls' senior silver blades.

In point of numbers the George Barrett color bearers will be dwarfed by such clubs as the Tilden S. C., whose membership is more than 100; the Catholic Youth organization team of nearly 100 and the Northwest S. C., whose representatives number more than 50.

Individual entries may be filed by filling out the entry which is printed in these columns.

SCHOOLBOYS MEET

Held in four divisions, the annual ice skating tournament sponsored by the board of education's recreation bureau is scheduled today on the north pond in Lincoln park. The competition, which will attract 1,000 boys, will start at 10 a. m. and is scheduled to finish at 4:30 p. m.

For boys under 12 years old events will be the 110 yard and 220 yard dashes and relays. Boys under 15 will contest in the 220 and 440 yard and relay events. The 220 yard, half mile, and relay is listed for boys under 18. Contestants over 18 will compete at 440 yards, the mile, and relay. A crowd of 1,500 is expected.

SEARS AND WARD SET RECORDS IN HOLIDAY SALES

Report for December and 11 Months.

Christmas sales of the nation's two largest mail order houses, Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery Ward & Co., broke all previous records, the companies reported yesterday. Sears-Roebuck sales in the 12th period of its fiscal year were the highest for any period in the company's history, and Montgomery Ward volume for December established a similar all time peak for any month.

Sears-Roebuck sales in the four weeks, Dec. 4 to Dec. 31, totaled $76,113,727, spurting 25.5 per cent over sales of $60,633,795 in the corresponding period.

Previous Record Far Exceeded.

Volume was far ahead of the previous record for any four week period, established in the Sept. 11 to Oct. 8 period of 1939, when sales were $62,505,149.

Sales for the 12 periods, Jan. 30 to Dec. 31 were $619,294,199, a jump of $116,049,363, or 23.1 per cent, over the comparable 1938 period.

Sears Roebuck business for the 48 weeks reported to date, with four weeks remaining in the current fiscal year, has already exceeded the total for any full fiscal year in the past. The previous yearly record was $572,874,101 for the 52 weeks ended Jan. 28, 1938.

Montgomery Ward Sales Climb.

Montgomery Ward's record December business amounted to $66,020,061, up 15.65 per cent from December, 1938, when the company sold $57,084,529 worth of goods. Sales for the 11 months ended Dec. 31 were $471,835,169, the best 11 month period ever reported and an increase of 15.63 per cent over sales of $408,044,956 in the first 11 months of 1938. The dollar increase over the 1938 period was $63,790,213.

December sales of Spiegel, Inc., Chicago mail order house, spurted 18.6 per cent over sales during the final month of 1938 and established a new all-time high for that month, the company reported yesterday. The total was $6,650,149, compared with $5,607,719 a year ago.

Sales for the 12 months ended Dec. 31 amounted to $52,981,982, an increase of 6.5 per cent over total 1938 sales of $49,732,671.

2 CARSON PIRIE MEN HONORED; SERVE 50 YEARS

Two employés who have been associated with Carson Pirie Scott & Co. for 50 years were congratulated yesterday by officials of the company at an anniversary luncheon in the 8th floor tearoom. They were J. B. T. La Rochelle, 7504 South Peoria street, 81 years old, and Charles John Irvin, 1725 Foster avenue, who is 62.

La Rochelle has worked continuously as a salesman in the silk section. Irvin, who went to work at the age of 12 in the packing rooms, is the company's wholesale representative in Michigan.

Each was presented with an engraved gold watch. La Rochelle received his memento from Frederick H. Scott, president of the company, and Irvin's was presented by Gordon L. Pirie, general retail manager.

Federal Power Policy.

Dubuque, Ia., Dec. 31.—Your article of Sunday, Dec. 31, with the heading "Federal Power Groups Vie to Win Customers" is very much to the point and should receive special attention by all midwest authorities.

Just as you say, midwest industry is threatened by this new menace to our industrial and freight rate structure. The contract with Aluminum Company of America, both at Bonneville [Ore.] and the Tennessee Valley authority district, places both districts in a superior advantage to the midwest from a rate standpoint.

This new menace should receive the attention of all the people of the midwest and is not strictly a New Deal and an anti-New Deal matter. You want to approach the subject in a manner strictly divorced from any anti-New Deal aspects and then you are going to get the support of all classes of people of the midwest. It is strictly a nonpartisan matter and should be considered as such.

NLRB Probe Reports Asked by Industry

Rep. Howard W. Smith sent request for report.

The house committee in Washington which has been investigating the National Labor Relations board was urged yesterday by the Illinois Manufacturers' association to make interim reports on the progress of its studies instead of waiting until the work is concluded. The association said that interim reports should help congress to expedite action on labor legislation. The request was sent to Representative Howard W. Smith [D., Va.], chairman of the special committee investigating the NLRB.

"We understand that it may not be possible for your committee to complete its work in its entirety prior to the expiration of several more months," the Illinois manufacturers said. "In the meantime, from day to day, it is convincingly demonstrated that the stability essential to sound and lasting industrial recovery cannot be expected until the national labor relations act has been substantially amended.

Statement of Manufacturers.

"We understand there is before your committee the vast information collected thru your questionnaires as well as the testimony taken from the senate committee on education and labor. We understand that in the course of similar investigations it has been the practice of committees of the houses of congress to issue interim or current reports of the results of their investigations without the delay that is involved in a long investigation to reach an ultimate report.

"With the purpose of expediting action by congress in this most vital matter, the board of directors of the Illinois Manufacturers' association urges that your committee release interim and current reports concerning your investigation at the earliest possible date."

Four Changes Advocated.

The association reiterated its four point program for the amendment of the national labor relations act. These points were:

1. Revision of the preamble of the act to indicate a mutuality of interest between management and men and to encourage the development of harmonious labor relations.

2. Amendment of the act to require fair and impartial trials by the board and to give full power of review to the courts.

3. Repeal of provisions of the act which encourage the "closed shop" and establish "majority rule."

4. Prohibition of members of the labor board and their agents from acting as mediators and conciliators in labor disputes.

CHICAGO WORLD TRADE SESSION IS TO BE HELD FEB. 20

The annual Chicago World Trade conference, sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Export Managers Club of Chicago, will be held at the Stevens hotel Feb. 20, C. M. Wynne, general chairman of the conference, announced yesterday. He said delegates from all parts of the nation are expected to attend.

"Trade possibilities in Latin America will be stressed in the meeting this year," Wynne said. "The unprecedented opportunity for the sale of American products in those countries which formerly looked to the nations now at war for their supplies relieves the United States of its chief competition.

"We are making an effort to present a program this year that will be of practical appeal to the exporter."

Auto Production Lower but Gain Is Predicted

Automobile production this week was estimated by Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., at 87,510 units, compared with 89,365 last week, and 76,685 a year ago. The decline this week and last week from the preceeding weeks' volumes was attributed to the holiday season. Ward's predicted that production next week will go above the 100,000 mark and it indicated that January production will exceed 400,000.

LAKE SHORE TRUST AND SAVINGS BANKS' NET PROFIT $141,667

The Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank had a net profit of $141,667 in 1939, after bond profits, recoveries, and current chargeoffs, Joseph R. Frey, president, told stockholders yesterday at their annual meeting. In the preceding year profit was $152,321.

Joseph R. Frey.

Operating earnings, Frey said, were $111,387, against $119,220 in 1938. Deposits on Dec. 31, 1939, were at a new high level of $13,519,624, an increase of $1,289,834 as compared with a year earlier. All directors and officers were reëlected.

The First National Bank of Boston, New England's largest banking organization, announced that it earned $5,467,096, equal to $2.46 a share, last year, compared with $5,317,343, or $2.39 a share, in the preceding year.

I. C. C. OFFICIAL URGES COAL RATE VIA LAKE BE CUT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—An Interstate Commerce commissioner recommended today that the commission approve reduced rates on bituminous coal from southern Illinois, Indiana, and western Kentucky to Chicago, for transshipment by lake. The examiner, R. N. Trezise, said the proposed reduced rates had been justified.

There are no lake cargo coal rates from Illinois, Indiana, and western Kentucky mines to Chicago, nor to any other lake ports. For many years such rates have been maintained by eastern carriers to Lake Erie ports from the Appalachian fields which include mining groups in Ohio, western Pennsylvania, northern Virginia, West Virginia, eastern Kentucky and Tennessee.

"The specific purpose of the proposed rates is to develop a movement of coal from midwestern mines by rail to Chicago and by vessel beyond for ultimate consumption in the dock cities along the shores of Lake Superior and Lake Michigan, and possibly in the territory immediately adjacent thereto," Trezise commented.

BANK 109.5 PCT. LIQUID, RATES FDIC AT ZERO

The First National Bank of Englewood is 109.5 per cent liquid and still values its membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation at exactly zero, stockholders were informed yesterday in a statement of condition as of Dec. 30.

J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, the bank's president and widely known in banking circles for his resistance to the deposit insurance plan when it was first launched in 1934, has in the past used the bank's statement as a vehicle for attacking what he viewed as New Deal profligacy, but he did not include any comments in the new report.

The statement showed deposits of $5,263,102, compared with liquid assets of $5,763,702.

Investment Firm Buys 'War Stocks'

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—Adams Express company, a firm 86 years old which went out of the railway express business during the world war, has kept step with the times and acquired a line of "war securities." Its 1939 report today showed it had expanded holdings in stock of aircraft, oil, sugar, chemical, and mining companies.

Adams Express, organized in 1854, and identified with much of the conquest of the west after the civil war, was converted into an investment company after the United States took over control of the railroads in 1918.

Cuts Bethlehem Holdings.

The company's investment managers cut holdings of Bethlehem Steel, rated by analysts the No. 1 "war baby" of the 1939 market, to 1,100 shares from 4,000. On the other hand, holdings of International Nickel of Canada increased by 13,300 shares to 24,300, and 4,100 shares were added to its block of Bendix Aviation, making a total of 10,100.

Sizable blocks of Pure Oil company, United States Steel, American Radiator, Allis Chalmers, General Electric, Lockheed Aircraft, American Hawaiian Steamship, American Ship Building, du Pont, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical and several sugar producers were added.

Sells General Motors.

An outstanding change was a decrease of 12,100 shares of General Motors, leaving only 700.

Cash on hand at the end of the year amounted to $4,072,442 compared with $2,687,930 at the close of 1938. Net assets applicable to the common stock, the report said, were equivalent to $12.64 a share against $15.42 at the end of 1938.

WATERWAY PLAN ENCOUNTERS NEW SNAG IN QUEBEC

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 5 [Special].—Indications today were that the St. Lawrence waterway and power project would not have the smooth sailing expected when Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie announced its revival a few days ago. The Ontario opposition has been placated, but trouble threatens in the province of Quebec.

The attitude of the Quebec provincial government is that Canada's own water power should be developed before the dominion embarks upon an international project as costly as the St. Lawrence scheme. The Shawinigan power interests in the province say that the St. Lawrence power sources can scarcely be developed in time to be a factor in meeting war requirements, whereas ample power can be made available from wholly national sources.

The consultation with the United States delegation beginning on Sunday will be informal and preliminary. The conference is expected to last only a few days.

U. S. TO EXPORT LESS TINPLATE SCRAP TO JAPAN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—The state department has cut exports of tinplate scrap to Japan for 1940 almost in half, allotments announced today disclosed.

In contrast with allotments totaling 13,363 long tons of scrap assigned for export during the calendar year 1939, the state department has allotted only 7,263 tons for the new year. The department said that all licenses for export issued during 1939 named Japan as the country of destination.

Applications for 1940 were received from 38 countries and totaled 11,961 long tons. The department said three applicants failed to comply with the requirements set forth in state department rules, and some of the other applications were reduced to comply with requirements.

Mercantile National Bank Deposits, Loans Increase

Deposits of the Mercantile National Bank of Chicago increased $852,000 to $18,721,000 as of Dec. 30, William W. Farrell, president, said yesterday. Deposits were $17,869,000 on Oct. 2. Savings deposits rose $220,000 to $3,673,000. Loans and discounts gained $33,000 to $4,341,000. Cash resources declined $687,000 to $8,498,000.

LAST QUARTER STEEL OUTPUT SETS RECORD, 16,020,857 GROSS TONS

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—Steel ingot output in the final three months of 1939 established a quarterly high record of 16,020,857 gross tons, the American Iron and Steel institute reported today. The previous best quarter was 15,139,254 in the spring months of 1929.

The December output of open hearth and Bessemer ingots, the institute said, was 5,164,420, the third consecutive monthly production above 5,000,000.

For the full year production was placed at 45,768,899 against the 1938 total of 27,742,225, a gain of nearly 65 per cent. It fell short by 16 per cent of 1929s total of 54,312,279 gross tons.

Operations for the year, the institute said, averaged 64.29 per cent of capacity, compared with 39.65 in 1938. The December rate was 85.57, against 52.79 in 1938.

1939 RAILROAD FREIGHT TOTAL 12 PCT. LARGER

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday that carloadings in 1939 were 12 per cent above the total in 1938, but 9.5 per cent below 1937. Revenue freight loadings in the year, the report disclosed, were 34,102,759 cars, compared with 30,457,078 in 1938 and 37,674,464 in 1937.

A total of 550,270 cars was loaded in the final week of the year. This was a decrease of 104,547 cars, or 16 per cent, from the preceding week, but an increase of 50,815, or 10.2 per cent, over 1938. The 1937 figure was 95,364 cars.

Loadings of various commodities for the week compare as follows:

WHEAT LOWER; SNOW, BREAK IN COLD FORECAST

A forecast of snow and rising temperatures over the western and southwestern parts of the winter wheat belt resulted in a lower range of wheat prices yesterday.

The market fluctuated in an erratic manner within a range of about 1 cent a bushel. Closing trades on the Chicago Board of Trade were at the bottom with losses of ⅝ to 1⅛ cents. Subzero temperatures in parts of the southwest had a tendency to check professional selling.

Corn prices held within narrow limits, with buying attributed to exporters. Closing trades were ⅛ to ¼ cent lower.

MONEY, GOLD, AND SILVER

Rumors in foreign exchange trading circles that Holland and Belgium might be drawn into the European war caused a drop in prices of the two nation's currencies at New York yesterday.

The Belgian belga slipped 0.07 cent to a closing price of 16.74 cents, and the Dutch guilder declined 0.07 cent to 53.26 cents. The British pound sterling rose ¾ cent to $3.93¾, and the French franc closed at 2.23½ cents, compared with 2.23 cents on the preceding day.

MEXICO ADMITS BREAKDOWN IN OIL INDUSTRY

Inefficiency, Thefts Are Revealed.

Cancel Ethyl Patent

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5 (AP).—The Mexican government today canceled patents registered for exploitation in Mexico of a fluid [ethyl] for increasing the octane content of gasoline. The notice was served on Gonzalo Gusman, representative of the General Motors corporation, which, with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, is interested in manufacture of the product. The government has been pushing plans for its own manufacture of a fluid to increase the octane content of gasoline.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5 [Special].—Urging petroleum workers to "save the oil industry," Vicente Cortes Herrera, engineer and general manager of the Mexican oil monopoly, today denounced the "disastrous condition" in which the petroleum industry finds itself 22 months after the expropriation of March, 1938.

Vincente Cortes Herrera.

Inefficiency, inexperience, and a lack of discipline and sense of responsibility are rampant thruout the industry, he said. Wholesale thefts and rising costs, coupled with decreasing production, have brought about an extremely delicate situation.

These charges were made by Herrera in a memorandum he read to a meeting of the petroleum workers syndicate in Mexico City some time ago and published yesterday by the newspaper El Mundo of Tampico.

Causes Wide Disturbance.

Publication of this extremely frank document at the time when an effort apparently is being made at Washington to resume the negotiations with the expropriated companies, caused surprise and consternation thruout Mexico. It also provoked a strong reaction on the part of the oil workers, who are loudly demanding Herrera's dismissal.

Publication of Herrera's indictment of the oil workers appears likely to precipitate a fight between the labor syndicates and the management of the oil monopoly for control of the industry. On one hand, the management accuses the workers of inefficiency and lack of coöperation; on the other, workers charge the management does not know its business.

Costs Move Much Higher.

Herrara said in his memorandum that the oil companies' properties were expropriated because they refused to grant the workers salary increases that would have cost 26,000,000 pesos [the peso is quoted nominally at about 16 cents] yearly. From the day of expropriation to today, he said, the expenses of the Mexican oil monopoly have increased by more than that yearly amount, but the individual workers have not benefited, because the large number of workers is unjustified.

Chief responsibility for this situation, according to Herrera, lies with the workers' syndicates which uphold their right to engage workers without consulting the management. He disclosed various alleged cases of lack of discipline.

The workers in Minatitlan caused the Edeleanau plant to close because they refused to apply plans elaborated by the management. The workers almost caused the closing of the Arbolgrande refinery in Tampico because they refused to let certain materials be transferred to another refinery "on the infantile pretext that this would have been prejudicial to the workers."

Big Thefts Alleged.

Herrera also accuses the workers of large scale thefts of piping and even of running pipes from storage tanks to their own houses, where they sell the oil to unscrupulous middlemen.

He says workers get free medicines from the management, then sell them. He accuses at least one superintendent of assigning a "fabulous salary" to himself. He accuses another superintendent of spending a large sum for toys that he distributed to workers' children at Christmas.

Finally, says Herrera, the workers show a complete lack of responsibility. On one occasion a large quantity of oil ran into the sea because the workers refused to repair a defective pipe or stop the pumps.

The expropriation decree was published March 19, 1938. In April, 1938, Herrera disclosed, petroleum workers numbered 15,895 and the petroleum industry cost of operation was 4,273,000 pesos a month. Now the number 19,316 and monthly costs have risen to 6,500,000 pesos.

[Reliable figures on Mexican oil production are not available. The best estimate on December output was only 100,000 barrels daily, or far below earlier production.]

Hanes Defines Tax on Profits Not Disbursed

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5.—Fair and reasonable application of section 102 of the internal revenue code, providing for stiff penalties on corporations retaining earnings in excess of business needs, has been promised by the treasury.

These assurances to business were contained in a letter from John W. Hanes, former undersecretary of the treasury, to Representative John W. Boehne Jr. [D., Ind.], who released the letter today. Hanes' letter was sent before his resignation became effective. It was in answer to a request from Boehne for an explanation of the treasury's instructions for enforcement of the revenue act of 1938.

Boehne is a member of the house ways and means committee on taxation.

Business Men Protest.

These instructions for enforcement supplanted the much hated undistributed profits tax, which congress allowed to expire on Dec. 31, 1939, business men charge. It had been enacted in 1936 at the insistence of the administration. It forced unwarranted distribution of corporation earnings.

Application of the new instructions to revenue agents for enforcement of section 102, after the demise of the undistributed profits tax was assured, has been accused of doing the same.

Section 102 had always been considered as applying only to personal holding companies until the treasury last July 26 issued "instructions" to apply the rule to all corporations and exempt them by a process of elimination.

An editorial in THE TRIBUNE on Dec. 23 particularly aroused attention and brought complaints against the regulations to congressmen.

Seeks to Assure Business.

The Hanes' letter is interpreted here as an assurance to business and an attempt to remove the pressure for congressional consideration of section 102 during this session. If a tax bill is drawn it is considered certain that some demands will be made for study of section 102 as adopted in the 1938 act, which put teeth into a previously existing provision of the same order.

"The effect of the instructions in the treasury decision," wrote Hanes, "is simply to require revenue agents examining corporate returns, especially in the five classes described therein, to give close attention to the question of whether the corporation has withheld earnings from distribution to permit the avoidance of surtax by individual shareholders.

"The first of the five classes is of corporations which have not distributed at least 70 per cent of their earnings as taxable dividends.

Explains Basis for Tax.

"The figure of 70 per cent was adopted for the reason that that figure represents the approximate average over a long period of prior years of the annual ratios of cash dividends paid to adjusted net income for corporations with income. The 70 per cent rule is regarded as restricting rather than expanding any inclination of the revenue agents to recommend the application of section 102."

The section referred to provides for a surtax of 25 per cent on the first $100,000 of income and 35 per cent on the remainder. While the instructions do not mean that a corporation which distributes less than 70 per cent of its earnings will have to pay the penalties, objectors have contended that they place all corporations in this category under suspicion as tax evaders.

Whether Hanes' resignation will have any effect on this statement of treasury policy remains to be seen. But opponents feel that searching publicity on the treasury regulation has helped provide more equitable consideration in its application.

MIDWEST STORE YEAR-END SALES GAIN OVER 1938

Department stores in the seventh federal reserve [Chicago] district rounded out the final week of 1939 with sales 10.7 per cent better than in the last week of 1938, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. Sales in Chicago proper in the week ended Dec. 30 were 12.9 per cent ahead of the corresponding 1938 week.

Sales in both Chicago and the seventh district showed a larger percentage increase than did department store sales for the nation as a whole, which were up 8 per cent, the Federal Reserve board's report showed.

Department store sales in the nation for the four weeks ended Dec. 30 were 8 per cent higher than in the corresponding 1938 period. Sales in the seventh district were up 9.6 per cent, and in Chicago proper they gained 9.9 per cent.

WOMAN HEADS SHORTEST RAIL LINE IN NATION

Cassville, Mo., Jan. 5 (AP).—Mrs. Ida Gardner Dingler, a small town housewife these many years, is a railroad president at 65. She was elected by the board of the Cassville and Exeter, the nation's shortest standard gauge line, which operates the 4.8 miles to Exeter.

Mrs. Dingler isn't a stranger to railroading. Her husband, who died a few weeks ago, was president, general agent, traffic manager, conductor, and engineer of the line for 20 years.

TRADE PARLEYS WITH ARGENTINA ARE SUSPENDED

Break Over Highly Competitive Items.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 5 (AP).—Negotiations for an Argentine-United States trade pact today entered a state of "temporary suspension" which observers of both nations said might easily result in abandonment of all efforts to reach an agreement.

The trade talks started last August and quickly became involved in heated controversies on both sides because of the highly competitive nature of many of their products.

Foreign Minister José Maria Cantilo announced after an hour long conference with President Roberto M. Ortiz and United States Ambassador Norman Armour that the negotiations were suspended "until the international situation changes."

British Influence Felt.

The shadow of powerful British influence in Argentina was seen by observers as one important factor blocking an agreement. Britain is one of Argentina's best customers for wheat and beef. Moreover, President Ortiz is facing a severe test of political strength in Buenos Aires province elections within three months, and was reluctant to give away too far to United States demands.

The negotiations were finally snagged on the question of quotas which the United States proposed to place on Argentine exports of canned meats and linseed which would come in under special reduced tariffs.

In midDecember, the negotiators seemed near agreement, and sponsors of the negotiations had hopes a pact would pave the way for closer Argentine-United States coöperation in Latin American affairs. The two countries have opposed one another in many Latin American matters.

Improvement Expected.

United States officials expressed the belief that trade relations in 1940 would improve despite lack of a treaty, because of Argentina's growing dependence upon the United States for products she now is unable to obtain from Europe.

United States business leaders, however, openly expressed fears that United States products would be subjected to new and severe import restrictions such as cut their sales almost half in 1939. They recalled recent official statements that Argentina must buy more from the European allies to keep pace with growing allied purchases of Argentine products.

In the last eight years United States sales to Argentina have averaged $56,000,000 annually, while Argentina averaged $53,000,000 in sales to the United States.

Program Faces Attack.

Improvement of Argentine-United States trade relations long has been an objective of the Washington state department, partly to counteract German and Italian barter deals. The blow-up in the negotiations came as Secretary of State Hull's program faced attack in congress.

The suspension of talks came as a blow to Ambassador Armour, state department trouble shooter, who handled the first reciprocal trade agreement with Canada, worked on the Haiti agreement, and concluded a preliminary agreement with Chile before coming here.

Break-Down Admitted.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 5 (AP).—Negotiations for a trade agreement between the United States and Argentina "have broken down," the state department announced tonight. It added that "an official statement will be issued by the two governments early next week."

The announcement is expected to facilitate the administration's defense of the trade agreements program, now under attack in congress. Some of the opposition to the program is based on the fears of cattle and other interests in the midwest that they would be adversely affected by the Argentina pact. Only recently it was announced there would be no tariff reduction on Argentine copper.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—Quiet selling again tipped the stock market scales downward today and leaders lost fractions to around 2 points. Steels, aircrafts, and motors led the retreat despite moderate strength exhibited by an assortment of preferred issues and specialties.

The news, on the whole, was more optimistic than otherwise. Brokers attributed the setback mainly to the desire of some traders to hold aloof pending further light on what congress will do about the budget and taxes, and the question of how much of a seasonal reaction may hit business during the next several months.

It was the second day's decline after five successive advancing sessions. Transfers dwindled appreciably on the drop with the day's total of 760,090 shares comparing with 855,150 yesterday.

Principal losers included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, United States Rubber, Goodyear, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Sperry, Great Northern, Santa Fe, Westinghouse, United States Gypsum, and Sears Roebuck.

Retaining advances of as much as a point or more were preference shares of American and Foreign Power, American Power and Light, and Electric Power and Light. American Telephone and Loft made new highs for 1939-'40.

New York Bonds.

New York, Jan. 5 (AP).—Loans of important Scandinavian countries, put under new pressure in the bond market today, retreated fractions to around 2 points.

Their setback, interrupting a rally which had run for the last two weeks, was coincident with reports from abroad indicating the nations were facing increasing difficulties in maintaining neutrality.

United States government issues advanced uniformly, but domestic corporate issues were well scrambled in terms of gains and losses. Generally changes were narrow. Some of the federals were up nearly ½ point.

Chicago Stocks.

Most stock declined yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Trading was moderately heavy, with turnover amounting to 34,000 shares. Commonwealth Edison, volume leader, sold ¼ point lower at 32⅛.

Wisconsin Bankshares, Asbestos Manufacturing, Aviation and Transportation, Woodall Industries, and Central and South West Utilities advanced ⅛ to ⅜ point. Allied Laboratories established a new high at 19½, up ⅛.

Bank Stocks.

Northern Trust shares declined a point in bank stock trading yesterday, closing at 562 bid. Continental Illinois eased half a point to 90½. Other issues were steady.

RESERVE FUNDS NOT NEEDED BY MEMBER BANKS

Chicago 'Fed' Oversupplied with Idle Money.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago remained oversupplied with idle lendable funds in 1939 and, as in the preceding year, was called upon by reserve system member banks for only a small amount of assistance in meeting the financing needs of business enterprise, the bank's annual statement showed yesterday.

George J. Schaller.

The statement, released by George J. Schaller, president of the reserve bank, disclosed that the institution's earnings declined, and that the total of industrial advances and discounted bills increased only $354,700 over the 1938 year-end figure.

Banks Able to Meet Demands.

Whatever increased demand for business loans developed along with the 1939 recovery was taken care of by the member banks out of their own increased idle funds, officials of the reserve bank said. That, they said, explains why the member banks are not borrowing from the reserve bank, even tho business has improved since the end of 1938.

Schaller, commenting on the report, said investments in government bonds constitute nearly all of the bank's earning assets since the demand for loans has dwindled to negligible proportions. Citing the statement's figure of less than a million dollars for loans at the end of 1938, he contrasted that total with the all-time loan peak of about $500,000,000 in 1922.

Loans Show Vast Shrinkage.

In other words, he said, loans at present are less than 1-500 of the volume in the early 1920s. At the end of last year the bank's main earning assets consisted of $273,146,000 of government securities.

The Chicago banks' federal reserve note circulation last Dec. 30, Schaller said, was the highest on record at $1,085,378,190, compared with $996,721,090 a year earlier.

Schaller illustrated the magnitude of the task of handling the individual pieces of money and the checks that flow thru the institution. In 1939 the bank handled 317,252,817 pieces of paper money, the value of which was $1,302,395,720.

Owned by Member Banks.

The Chicago reserve bank and the 11 others are "bankers' banks." The stock of each reserve bank is owned by commercial banks in each federal reserve system district. The member banks deposit with the reserve banks the reserves required by law and also the funds for which there is no commercial demand—excess reserves.

According to latest figures, covering the week ended Jan. 3, member banks in the nation had lendable excess reserves totaling $5,270,000,000, or $1,970,000,000 more than a year ago.

Net earnings in 1939 were $982,917, compared with $1,090,752 in 1938. Of last year's earnings, $487,913 was profit from sales of United States government securities, against $932,996 in 1938.

The amount transferred to surplus last year was $158,265, against $279,031. in the preceding year, and dividends paid in 1939 totaled $819,531, against $791,007 in 1938.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The range of hog prices widened abruptly yesterday as lights rose in value while heavy stock declined. The top and average prices were 60 cents apart at $6.00 and $5.40, respectively, the widest spread between these two prices since last September. The range on Thursday was 40 cents and a month ago 20 cents.

Best grades of stock under 200 pounds met good demand at strong to slightly higher rates, the day's top showing 15 cents gain. Other hogs were slow, and steady to 10 cents lower.

Steady prices were paid for the supply of fat lambs offered. Cattle met narrow demand and weaker rates. Some were carried over unsold on account of low bids.

Oil Producer Earns Less in Nine Months.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MORAL EMBARGO.

I understand the state department has declared a "moral embargo" against Molybdenum exports to nations which have bombed civilian populations. Will this affect Climax Molybdenum? What have been the company's earnings in the last few years?—A. S. D.

Answer: The state department has requested producers of molybdenum and aluminum to halt shipments of these metals to countries whose armies have bombed civilians. The metals are considered necessary in the manufacture of airplanes, upon which a moral embargo was declared earlier. The state department has no legal power to enforce its request but has appealed to American manufacturers for voluntary coöperation.

The Climax Molybdenum company is the world's largest producer of molybdenum, which is a metallic element of the chromium group used to toughen iron and steel. The company mines from large deposits near Climax, Colo., 85 per cent of the domestic output of the metal. [This country has a virtual monopoly on molybdenum ore and produces 92.5 per cent of the world supply.]

Max Schott, president, informed stockholders the company would comply with the "moral embargo" against Russia, Japan, and Germany. He said that 58 per cent of molybdenum sales in 1939 went to these nations compared with 72 per cent in 1938.

In concentrates, salts, oxides and alloys, the metal is used mainly in the steel industry, but also in the automotive, chemical and construction trades. The accelerated production of armaments in Europe increased exports of the metal.

1934	$1,826,000	$2.17	$ .50
1935	3,228,000	*1.28	*1.27½
1936	5,206,000	2.07	1.00
1937	7,174,000	2.85	1.70
1938	7,872,000	3.13	2.20

Net income in the first nine months of 1939 rose to $5,663,755, equal to $2.25 a share on 2,520,000 no par common shares. This compared with net income of $5,271,541 or $2.09 a share in the corresponding period of 1938. Dividends on the shares in 1939 totaled $3.20 a share.

The company has no funded debt. Total assets at the end of 1938 were $81,061,675. Current assets totaled $8,675,123 against current liabilities of $1,777,530.

Reds Bomb Southern Finland Again—Admiral Richardson to Command Fleet—Bill Powell Weds Young Actress

An aged Finnish mother casting flower on grave of son killed in air raid in Helsingfors, according to Finnish caption.
[Associated Press Wirephoto.] (Story on page 1.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Admiral James O. Richardson of Texas, who will take command of the United States fleet at San Pedro, Cal., today.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Elder Benjamin Watkins of the Church of God and Saints of Christ raising his arm before plunging Charles Harris into icy water in baptismal ceremony at Providence, R. I. The elder's assistants are stirring aside the broken ice. Holes were cut in ice to baptize three persons.
